TOURIST FLOOD FROM U.S. SEEN BY CANADIANS

Await Yanks Tired of Byrnes Edicts.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., March 6.—Canada is wondering if it is about to happen again—and quietly preparing for the cheerful probability.

"It" would be the golden harvest which the dominion reaped from thirsty American tourists while the United States was indulging in its prohibition experiment of 1919-1933.

This time Canadian business men anticipate a flood of American money to come from visitors seeking a momentary escape from the "psychological" war time restrictions of War Mobilization Director Byrnes and the rationing limitations of other government agencies.

Race tracks will be running full blast thruout Canada this summer. All sports have been encouraged to carry on. There's no depressing brownout of shop windows in the cities. Big conventions are not considered destructive of the war effort. There's no midnight curfew, and night life was never merrier and more unconfined than in this city.

The rate of exchange, which gives American visitors an automatic 10 per cent increase in the purchasing power of their dollars, is another inducement.

No Rationing Woes.

Most important of all, perhaps, to the ration conscious American public, there are no restrictions or scarcities affecting cigarets or meat or shoes or cleaning tissues or cheese or bacon, or any of dozens of other commodities which United States citizens have come to regard as hard-to-get luxuries.

In other words, Canada today offers a glimpse to the American of what life used to be like in his own country.

A half dozen business leaders, interviewed here and in other Canadian cities, cautiously admitted expecting a possible boom in tourist trade because of this situation.

They didn't want to talk much about it. There is an underlying resentment among them about the bad advertising the dominion has been getting as a result of riots against conscription for foreign service.

They feel there is a widespread—and false—impression that Canada isn't behind the war as enthusiastically as the United States.

They are keenly alive, however, to the profitable potentialities of what they label the "hysteria" in Washington which has been responsible for recent bans. The popular scorn was expressed by a Montreal newspaper columnist last week:

"Canada carries on in the British tradition, no curfews, no black-outs, no hysteria, no drastic and far-reaching swings . . . level headed is probably the word for it."

Needs No Extra Income.

There was the same feeling about prohibition when it was in force in the United States but the business men are just as aware now as they were then of what the bans can mean to them.

At the moment, Canada needs no extra income. It is at the peak of war time prosperity, operating 600 millions worth of war factories and plants with 750,000 employes.

But it's no secret that the expected defeat of Germany in the near

MOST OF CANADIAN 1ST ARMY BRITISH, PARLIAMENT TOLD

LONDON, March 6 (AP).—War Secretary James Grigg informed the house of commons today that United Kingdom troops form two-thirds of the Canadian 1st army "at the present time." He said he could not give the full composition of the Canadian army, now engaged in an offensive against the Germans, because such information would be of the greatest value to the enemy while the battle was progressing.

Unruly Idlers Have Lark at U.S. Expense

BY FRANK HUGHES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Germfask, Mich., March 6.—In an abandoned CCC camp about a mile from this northwoods town is the headquarters of the we-won't-work-or-fight club, a camp of about 80 conscientious objectors, clothed, fed, and paid by the federal government to spend most of their time in idleness under discipline so lax nobody can touch them.

This afternoon, after lunch, about 20 of them left in a truck to cut firewood. The rest of the conscientious objectors, except for a half dozen assigned to office work or kitchen police, loafed.

Paul Voelker, the new camp manager, who assumed his duties two days ago, and Harvey Saunders, a veteran woods boss and project director of the camp, say that these 60 healthy, husky young men probably will continue to loaf until somebody "changes the system."

Run by Gen. Hershey.

Civilian public service camp 135 at Germfask is run by selective service under Gen. Hershey, and the federal government foots all the bills, including food, a fine, warm G. I. issue of work clothing, boots and shoes, blankets, cots, and housing; the salaries of the seven paid employes at the camp, and $5 a month allowance for each objector. This camp is the "dumping ground" for trouble makers and nonreligious men who come from various camps run by and financed by pacifistic religious sects. It was opened last May 12 and is one of three selective service camps.

Just Like Ladies' Aid.

"We don't have any more authority over these men than a preacher does over the ladies' aid society," Saunders said. "They can go absent without leave for nine days and return and we can't do a thing to them except to cancel their 15 day furlough privilege.

"If they refuse to work, we enter an RTW on their records, but they won't be prosecuted and sent to jail until they have 10 of these consecutive RTW's. Most of them don't actually refuse, they just stall, and we can't raise a hand to them, touch them, or discipline them in any way."

Saunders told how men assigned to burn brush would stand over a fire breaking a twig into inch long pieces.

Cut Wood to Keep Warm.

Another, told to drive a staple "over a wire" on a fence post chose to interpret the order facetiously. He drove the staple in the post, all right, but two feet above the wire. He then hammered 20 more staples into the wood, carefully missing the wire. Finally he was taken off the job.

The objectors admit quite frankly that they do not intend to do any work.

"We cut firewood to keep warm, so that we can live until another day to cut more firewood to keep warm," one of them said.

THE RUSSIAN FLAG

THE BRAVERY of THE RUSSIAN SOLDIER BRINGS GLORY TO HIS FLAG.
THE CHICANERY of THE AMERICAN COMMUNIST MAKES IT A THING of SCORN.

20,000 BRIDES WAIT U. S. SHIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Approximately 20,000 foreign women who married American service men overseas and who now want to come to the United States are unable to leave Great Britain, Australia, and New Zealand because of lack of ship space, the state department disclosed today.

There are 15,000 brides in Great Britain alone and those in Australia and New Zealand number several thousand. Marriages in some areas of India have posed a special problem to the state department that may take an act of congress to iron out.

Fifty Excluded by Law.

Under the immigration act of 1924 natives of a certain zone in southern India and the Malay states are excluded by law from coming to the United States. However, some American soldiers have married women in this zone and tomorrow the house immigration committee will open hearings on a bill to admit these women.

"This is just one of the problems the state department has encountered in handling the requests of service men that their wives be permitted to come to the United States," a state department spokesman said. There are about 50 of these India cases to date.

In areas where there is no such bar, such as England and Australia, foreign born women may come to the United States as wives of American citizens thru a relatively simple procedure.

Some Visas Denied.

"The soldier or sailor who has married and wishes to send his wife to America fills out a petition to the United States commissioner of immigration," the state department representative explained. "He may do this thru a United States consul or certain of his own officers. Unless the woman is a native of an enemy country, such as a German or an Austrian, there is seldom any objection raised."

Because of lack of shipping space, however, consuls are not issuing visas to all who request them, and this has caused erroneous reports that wives are being prevented from coming to America.

The spokesman disclosed that in England there have been a number of cases where white women who married Negro soldiers have applied for visas and are awaiting passage.

Tribune Writer Tells How Fleet Set Okino Isle Afire

[Here is the first eyewitness account of the American fleet bombardment of Japan's Okino Island last Friday. Harold Smith, Tribune correspondent, was the only writer to accompany the warships on this mission.]

BY HAROLD SMITH.

ABOARD A 5TH FLEET CRUISER OFF OKINO ISLAND, March 2 [Delayed]—[Via navy radio].—Detaching itself from Adm. Mitscher's fast carrier task force in the gathering dusk last night, a phantom column of our warships slid up against Okino Island early today, dumped more than 200 tons of shells on military installations there, then steamed off into the darkness without a scratch.

[Okino Island, also known as Okino Daito, is 350 miles south of the Japanese mainland. It is 210 miles east of the Ryukyu Islands blasted by carrier planes of the 5th fleet on March 1, and about 700 miles west of Iwo Island.]

Our surprise bombardment left the island aglow with numerous fires which attacked a radio station, a weather station, a clump of Jap army barracks and a phosphate plant which supplied the Japs with a good portion of their dwindling supply of this vital substance.

Transfers to Cruiser at Sea.

The writer transferred from a fast Essex class carrier to a cruiser weigh in order to sit in on the show, then returned to the flattop by way of the same "suspension railway"—a coaling bag which slides on a pulley along a twanging line strung between two vessels.

A destroyer charged alongside, whisked me aboard, smashed off tackle to the distant cruiser, and before my breath returned I was presenting my compliments to the admiral.

Sail On in Black-out.

"This will be good for the crew's morale," the admiral observed as he bent over photographs and charts. He was right. The gunners in the turrets and gun mounts, which stud a modern cruiser, were bright eyed with anticipation of the night's work. One remarked this would be the first time the ship's guns were fired in anger since last October. That's true and it is symptomatic of what has happened out this way in the last year or so. We're getting so much navy out this way that there simply isn't enough shooting to go around.

We go into our run just as darkness closes in over the sleek, gray ship. It will be many minutes before visibility vanishes, but navy tradition says the black-out begins at the moment the sun dips below the horizon, and henceforward until the moment the sun's edge cleaves the glory of tomorrow's sunrise. We can pass thru the ship only by manipulating the water or light tight doors.

The whitecapped sea imparts a gentle heaving to our footing. An almost full moon struggles to break thru the dark overcast. For several hours the droning undertone of a busy man-of-war's vitals is the accompaniment to the multifarious preparations for action. Darkening billows of water stir loudly sternward as the ship drives ahead at more than a 20 knot clip.

While the admiral chisels the rough edges off his brand new plan, shells and powder cases rise interminably from the cruiser's bowels. We shipboard drones turn in for an hour's nap to be jolted from our pleasant dream world by the realistic bonging of the ship's bell and by the squawk boxes [loudspeakers]. We fumble our way to the flag bridge where the captain gauges his orders by the readings of spreading luminous dials.

A lookout phones his report of landfall, which tells us our naviga-

40,000 NAVY AIDS MUST DRINK COFFEE ON OWN TIME NOW

Washington, D. C., March 6 [Special].—The 40,000 officers, men, and civilians on duty in naval, coast guard, and marine offices here today got bad news. Beginning Monday, they will not be able to get a morning cup of coffee on Uncle Sam's time.

The coffee curfew was clamped down by Comdr. Ronald J. Chinnock, navy department administrative officer. Every lunch place in naval establishments here must close, beginning Monday, between 8 a. m. and 10:30 a. m.

A total of 15,000 cups of java daily had been served during what had come to be known as the "coffee hour."

MARINES OPEN DRIVE ON LAST THIRD OF IWO

3 Divisions Score Small Gains.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 7 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Preceded by the most intense artillery bombardment of the Iwo campaign, three marine divisions resumed the offensive on the north end of the tiny island Tuesday and engaged the Japanese in "heavy fighting." By 5:30 p. m. the leathernecks had scored small local gains.

The gains were scored on the west side by Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th marine division and near the center by Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates 4th marine division which is on the right flank of Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's 3d.

600 Yards to Shoreline.

By nightfall, the leathernecks still were approximately 600 yards from the northeast shoreline at the bulge which, if reached, would cut the thinning enemy garrison in two. The 4th has about 750 yards to go to reach volcanic cliffs from where the heavily defended beach extends for 350 yards.

The marines were supported for the first time by land based army fighter planes flying from the captured Motoyama air field No. 1 on the south end of the island, Adm. Nimitz's bulletin said. These fighter planes thus began operating from a base which put them within flying range of Tokyo, 750 miles to the north.

Breaks Two Day Stalemate.

The marine offensive was aimed at winning the less than one third rocky north end of the island still in enemy hands. It broke a stalemate which had existed for two days.

Altho the campaign is 17 days old and the Nipponese garrison, originally 20,000 strong, has been blasted constantly in a gradually constricting area, the foe's ability to fight back remains strong.

The war bulletin said the Japanese still are "offering very stiff resistance and subjecting our forces to a heavy volume of small arms and mortar fire."

Carrier planes of the United States 5th fleet and warship guns supported the drive.

A dispatch from a correspondent aboard Vice Adm. Richmond K. Turner's expeditionary force flagship, said the island was clogged with men and equipment for the showdown. Landing craft still disgorged food and materials of war while transport planes removed the wounded.

Count 14,456 Dead Japs.

The count of enemy dead totaled 14,456 up to 6 p. m. Monday. This was an increase of 1,592 over the previously announced figure for a period up to 6 p. m. last Saturday.

There has been no account from headquarters here of marine casualties since the one covering the first three days of the campaign. That figure was 5,372, including 644 killed. Monday in Washington, D. C., Navy Secretary Forrestal said marine dead since has increased to 2,050.

Today's bulletin reported air raids on the Bonin Islands, north of Iwo, and on enemy bases in the Palau Islands, the western Carolines, and the Marianas.

German Front West of Rhine Falling Apart

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 3D ARMY IN GERMANY, March 6.—German defenses west of the Rhine seem definitely to have crumbled in front of Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army.

All up and down the 3d army front, units today were gaining almost at will. Except at the extreme southern flank the Siegfried line was entirely behind the fighting Yanks with the next major obstacle being Germany's Rhine. As in nearly all recent 3d army operations, Nazi opposition was far less formidable than the German terrain.

Odd Assortment of Troops.

Examination of the many prisoners taken disclosed that the ranks of the once terrible wehrmacht [German army] now are padded with beardless youths, paunchy oldsters, and forced slave troops, whose only reason for fighting at all is the fact that their officers make them.

Some indication perhaps as to what Nazi troops are thinking may be had from information volunteered by prisoners taken in recent days by the 90th infantry division.

Altho the Rhine has not been crossed since Napoleon turned the trick in 1813, most prisoners assert that the wehrmacht will battle on, even tho the river is crossed, in the desperate hope of an allied "split." They admit their cause is doomed, but say that because their high leaders' lives are at stake Germany may fight on and on until there is no one left to fight.

Hopeless Resignation.

This undoubtedly is an extreme statement, but Capt. James McNamara, Minneapolis, Minn., member of the 90th, who talked to the prisoners, reported that their attitude is one of hopeless resignation—they know they have lost, but have no other means to end the fight but by personal—that is, not commanded—surrender.

Some of the prisoners expressed regret that last July's attempt on Hitler's life failed, saying, "It was our last chance to surrender."

SEEK REFUGE WITH YANKS

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KREFELD, Germany, March 6.—German civilians seeking to escape Nazi domination are sneaking across the Rhine in rowboats and rafts for refuge with the American army on the west bank of the river.

Most of these civilian refugees are making the crossing at night, and several have been fired on by American outposts who heard the sound of oars and thought them enemy patrols.

All civilians are being evacuated from a zone three miles wide in the river area for their own protection, as the Nazis maintain a desultory small arms and machine gun fire across the river night and day.

Seize Young Germans.

Many young Germans are being gathered up by various military units under suspicion of being Nazi soldiers who changed their uniforms for civilian clothing, as the authorities consider it incredible so many robust men could have evaded Hitler's repeated comb-outs for man power.

German women continue to aid in corralling deserters by pointing them out to military police and producing the uniforms they discarded when they entered homes and grabbed civilian clothing.

Authorities today continued searching the chateau of Heinrich Kost, wealthy Ruhr industrialist and 10th ranking Nazi.

Well Stocked Cellar.

Kost's cellar was packed with thousands of bottles of Moselle, Rhine, Burgundy, and Bordeaux wines, champagnes, and liqours, and a silver service for 24.

The drawing room, living room, and dining room are decorated with valuable oil paintings, and a voluptuous nude adorns the main hall opposite the winding staircase.

In Kost's home today I found Pvt. Robert Lackey of Golconda, Ill., with the 326th field artillery battalion.

"We tried to contact Kost's offices across the Rhine over his private telephone, but the line had been cut," said Lt. Col. Richard Jones of Ripon, Wis., who, with Capt. Charles Hiatt of Swayzee, Ind., is investigating the Nazi.

REICH'S FOURTH URBAN CENTER FALLS QUICKLY

Three Allied Armies on North Gain.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

COLOGNE, Germany, March 6.—This crescent shaped city on the Rhine, once famed for its culture, the beauty of its churches, its spacious boulevards, its sprawling industries and immense railroad yards, tonight is the property of Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army.

Dispatches from other parts of the western front disclosed that Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army armor was racing toward Coblenz and the Rhine in a break-thru that covered 32 miles in two days and was within 20 miles of the river. This opened the way for the Americans to push the enemy out of the area west of the Rhine and north of the Moselle.

To the north of the 1st army the American 9th army and its British and Canadian allies were compressing the Germans in small pockets west of the Rhine.

Captured in 12 Days.

Cologne, Germany's fourth largest city was captured 12 days after Hodges crossed the Roer river and less than two days after the 3d armored and 104th infantry divisions launched their combined attack. Both divisions have driven thru the crumbling ruins of the once great city down to the steep banks of the fast flowing Rhine. All of its 3,300 acres are in our hands except for a pocket on the southeastern corner and, of course, suburban Deutz across the river.

In the southeastern section of the city, we watched the last German rearguards fighting to hold open an escape corridor down the western bank to the great university city of Bonn, while American divisions were smashing into the flanks of this corridor. The 1st infantry division, in a three mile advance, is now only five miles from Bonn.

One Pocket on River.

North of Cologne, Hodges' troops are all along the river's western bank, except for one small pocket at Zons, in a bend of the river south of Duesseldorf. The fate of those Germans west of the Rhine is inevitable. Some will escape across the river. Some will die fighting. But most of them undoubtedly will wind up in prisoner of war cages, which at the 1st army now contain nearly 20,000 Germans since the Rhine offensive was resumed.

Cologne is the greatest of the German cities to be taken by storm by allied troops. It fell, not with the thunder of Aachen, whose defenders fought from house to house almost until the end. It collapsed like a punctured balloon.

Among piles of rubble inside the old inner city, Cologne's defenders presented only scattered and light opposition. There were a few tanks, a few self-propelled guns, some strongpoints of machine guns, some heavy mortars and some heavy artillery from across the river. But this opposition was taken in stride by Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose's tankers and Maj. Gen. Terry Allen's doughboys. Our casualties were light.

Most of City in Ruins.

Almost all of Cologne is in ruins. In this area the greatest bomb damage was to St. Ursula's church, which held the bones of that saint.

Damage to the entire city was estimated at 85 per cent by a royal air force officer. Since the R. A. F. made its first 1,000 plane raid on Cologne in May, 1942—the first example of saturation bombing—Cologne has shaken under 42,000 tons of bombs.

What I could see of the city today bears out every estimate of its destruction.

Except for a few isolated houses which escaped destruction, Cologne is another St. Lo, another Aachen, another Dueren.

How many of its peace time population of 768,000 remain will not be known until military government officers register survivors.

The few civilians we encountered, pushing hand carts laden with goods along the streets leading west or emerging from cellars and home made air raid shelters, either were seemingly indifferent to their conquerors, or, as in the case of many, were eager to offer friendship.

The entire western section of Cologne, west of the battered inner ring, was an almost deserted city. You could drive for blocks without seeing any G. I.'s. Once in a while you would see Germans, standing on corners or moving cautiously down alleyways.

Broken bricks filled the streets, making traffic difficult except on the main thorofares, which had been cleared.

The entire scene was one of desolation. Almost nothing ha' been spared, whatever it was—worker's dreary dwelling or lavish home of the well-to-do. The impersonal bombs had blasted everything.

It is an appalling sight to look at the face of a huge city, almost as big as Milwaukee, and to see the product of incendiary and high explosive bombs. In the midst of this volcanic ruin, it is even more startling to come upon this city's residents picking their way among the heaps of bricks as if this were a normal way of life.

German General Captured.

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY ON THE ROAD TO THE RHINE, March 6 (AP).—Racing 32 miles in two days, Lt. Gen. Patton's armor drove to the approaches of the Rhine today after overrunning many towns and villages. A German army corps commander was taken prisoner.

The spectacular dash, on which there had been a news blackout since its start at dawn on Monday, engulfed thousands of Germans who were taken prisoner and freed a great number of British and French prisoners whom the Germans had abandoned in their disordered retreat.

The captured German leader was Lt. Gen. Edwin von Rothkirch und Trach, 59, who commanded the 53d German army corps. He was seized with his entire staff.

The German army corps headquarters was overrun 12 miles northeast of Bitburg by 4th armored division columns which kept going toward the Rhine with only minor opposition from the Germans, but which was encountering great difficulties along roads hub-deep in mud.

Admits Nazi Shortages.

His gray green overcoat and black knee length rubber boots caked with mud, Gen. von Rothkirch was brought to the rear in a jeep, a dour and dejected man.

"How can you expect to win a war when you have no gasoline and no horses?" asked the six foot, leather faced German, whose hair has turned snow white. "It will be all over within four months—five months at the most," he added in conversation with Lt. Alfred Maul of Milwaukee, Wis. His staff officers clustered about him and nodded agreement.

The news black-out still prevented disclosure of the exact whereabouts of Patton's advance elements tonight, but it could be said they were advancing against sporadic and disorganized resistance from the scattered enemy.

For the rampant Americans it was a surge which outdid anything witnessed in France.

During today the 3d army gained up to 32 miles on a 40 miles front, overrunning 11 towns, clearing three and entering two.

The 10th armored crossed the Prewer river 2½ miles east of Trier, advancing 2½ miles to the northeast and clearing Eitelsbach and Kenn.

Moves Near Binsfeld.

The 76th infantry, advancing 4½ miles east of the Kyll river bridgehead, progressed to the vicinity of Binsfeld, eight miles east of Bitburg.

The 5th infantry captured Oberkail, eight miles northeast of Bitburg.

Gains by the 4th armored included an advance to the vicinity of Schonbach, 25 miles northeast of Bitburg and 28 miles west of the Rhine. The 4th crossed four rivers to reach this area, the Kyll, the Liesser, the Kleine Kyll, and the Salm.

The 19th infantry made two new crossings of the Kyll and advanced a mile and a half eastward, capturing Mickelbach, 11 miles east of Pruem. The 90th is now across the river on a three mile front.

The 11th armored division advanced three miles eastward on a three mile front, reaching the Kyll at two points in a region 10 miles northeast of Pruem.

German resistance remained strong along the American 7th army front opposite the Saar, the enemy making a tank supported counterattack north of captured Forbach. Sharp fighting continued southeast of Saarbruecken.

Compress Last Bridgehead.

PARIS, March 6 (AP).—The 50 square mile German Rhine bridgehead west of Wesel today was being compressed rapidly by American, Canadian, and British troops battering the survivors of the German 1st parachute army from three sides. The German stand there appeared in its last hours.

A 9th army armored division wiped out one of the last of two fixed ferry routes across the lower Rhine. The other, just south of Rees, was under close range Canadian artillery fire.

British and Canadian big guns were shelling some 10,000 Nazi troops in the constricted pocket. British troops pushed a mile and a half up the Issum-Wesel road and approached the rail town of Alpen, only six miles from Wesel. Canadians gained two miles southeast of Sonsbeck and cleared the western fringe of Bonninghardt forest.

American troops, after clearing Rheinberg, mopped up the region west of a railroad from Rheinberg to Moores.

AWARDED DSC FOR SAVING 30 LIVES IN FRANCE

Mrs. C. E. Joys of 2 Golf lane, Winnetka, learned yesterday that her grandson, Staff Sgt. Herbert J. Joys, 25, of Decatur, has received the distinguished service cross for heroism in France last September.

Sgt. H. J. Joys.

Sgt. Joys, an infantry man, swam the Meuse river under mortar and artillery fire to bring back an assault boat, and is credited with saving the lives of most of the 30 wounded men who were evacuated by him with the vessel. The battalion crossed the east bank of the Meuse, but was forced back by a German counter-attack. It was necessary to reach assault boats on the other side of the stream in order to remove the wounded.

Sgt. Joys entered the army in July, 1941. He received his training at Fort Benning, Ga., and Fort Bragg, N. C., and went overseas with a North African contingent in November, 1942. His mother, Mrs. T. E. Sheahan, lives in Decatur.

Jewish Chaplain Conducts Rites in Goebbels' Castle

WITH U. S. 29TH DIVISION IN GERMANY, March 6 (AP).—Propaganda Minister Goebbels' castle near Rheydt was used for Jewish church services today by Chaplain Manuel M. Poliskoff of Baltimore, Md. The banquet hall in which the service was held still had a picture of Hitler in the background.

MRS. ROOSEVELT GETS 'SYMBOLIC' MINK COAT WORTH $8,000—FREE

New York, March 6 [Special].—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today owns her first mink coat, an $8,000 gift she accepted from the Quebec Fur Breeders' Coöperative association. Her secretary, Miss Malvina Thompson, said the President's wife had not had any great desire for a mink.

The coat was presented to her yesterday by Dr. L. J. La Forest, president of the association, who said it was given to her as the representative of "all the women in the United States." Mrs. Roosevelt accepted it as "a symbol" of trade coöperation between the United States and Canada, it having been made from the first crop of raw mink skins sent here under a trade agreement with a New York fur house.

"Of course, Mrs. Roosevelt appreciates it," her secretary said. "She has a fur coat, a black, three quarter length caracul, but she's had that for 12 years. I believe she received it at the time of the President's first inauguration. She also has a fur jacket—an inexpensive one."

CHURCHILL SEES FORT AT JUELICH; 'PROUD OF YANKS'

Confers with Leaders of U. S. Troops.

BY HENRY WALES.

JUELICH, Germany, March 3 [Delayed].—Exactly a week after American flame throwing tanks and an assault group of the 29th infantry division captured the 15th century Juelich citadel, Prime Minister Winston Churchill at noon today inspected the ancient fortress which Hitler used as an officers' training school. It was the prime minister's first visit to Germany since the war.

All big shots in the Rhine offensive were present except Gen. Eisenhower. The party included Field Marshal Montgomery; Gen. Brooke, chief of the imperial staff; Lt. Gen. Simpson, commanding the 9th army; Maj. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr., commander of the 13th corps; and Maj. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, commander of the 19th corps.

Examines Giant Pillbox.

The British traveled in staff cars, the Yanks in jeeps. The party halted at the Netherlands-German frontier west of Aachen for Churchill to examine a giant concrete pillbox and a quintuple row of four feet high dragon's teeth that Hitler had constructed along the boundary.

Gen. McLain led Churchill across a causeway over a moat and thru a tunnel beneath the ramparts, thru which American G. I.s had charged to capture 12 remaining Nazi snipers last Saturday.

He shook hands with the crew of the American tank, a vehicle of the 747th tank battalion which landed on the Normandy beachhead on D-day and now is being repaired in the citadel.

Talks to Tank Crew.

Corp. Ray Hory, Crete, Neb., in the absence of his superior, Lt. Oliver Oldfield, Battle Creek, Mich., talked to Churchill. Tankman Carl Rumen, Denver, Colo., and Corp. Charles Moats, Nevada, Mo., said: "Please to meet you," as they grasped the hand of the duke of Marlborough's descendant.

Gen. Simpson served an al fresco luncheon of cold fried chicken, potato salad, deviled eggs, raspberry jam, and sandwiches at the citadel entrance. Mess Sgt. Everett Dunbar, Kewanee, Ill., sampled the Scotch whisky to make sure it was not too cold before serving highballs to every one except Montgomery.

"There'll be no unemployment here after the war," Churchill remarked at devastated Juelich as planes patroled overhead and distant gunfire thudded on the front 20 miles away.

Want to See Duesseldorf.

"I'd like to go up to see Duesseldorf—I'll go in a tank if there's any shooting going on," said Churchill, but Simpson diplomatically brushed off the suggestion, not wanting to take the responsibility of the prime minister's safety on the firing line.

"Yes, indeed, I'm more than proud of the American army's advance," he replied to my question if the progress were satisfactory.

Churchill wore a colonel's uniform and kepi with a scarlet staff ribbon, and the usual five inch cigar.

The 524th military police battalion convoyed the party and handled the traffic congested roads. Chicagoland cops who received a snappy salute from Churchill included Pvt. Angelo Armato, 2332 W. Ohio st., Chicago; Staff Sgt. Roy Nelson, 473 Deming pl., Chicago; Pvt. Joseph Cimino, 1115 N. 21st av., Melrose Park, Ill.; Corp. Joseph Tapella, Herring, Ill.; Pvt. Charles Babich, Taylorville, Ill.; Pvt. Marlow Mace, 1021 E. Pleasant st., Milwaukee, Wis., and Pvt. Alfred Carlino, Schiller Park, Ill.

"Will Be Driven Across Rhine."

WITH CHURCHILL IN GERMANY, March 4 [Delayed by Censor]—(AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, touring the western front in Germany, told Scottish troops in the northern Rhine sector today that "soon the enemy will be driven across the Rhine and any one can see one strong heave will win the war."

[A dispatch from London said Churchill returned there yesterday after visiting the western front and the headquarters of Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery "for the purpose of discussing with them and other allied commanders a wide field of military matters."]

The prime minister and Mrs. Churchill flew from England to Belgium on Friday and were greeted at a landing field there by their daughter, Mary, a member of the ATS, British version of the WAC.

Inspect Siegfried Line.

The tour included inspection of the Siegfried line defense installations in the Aachen area and the points from which the 9th army jumped off across the Roer river in its great offensive. At the Roer, the prime minister left the car and walked across the military bridge American engineers had thrown up.

When he reached the British-Canadian sector, south of Goch, Churchill entered a gun-pit, wrote "To Hitler—Personal" on a shell with chalk and fired it at the Rhine ferry crossing at Xanten, miles away.

He grinned as the 360 pound shell roared from the 240-mm. howitzer.

"I'm not responsible if it doesn't get Hitler," he joked. "The artillery boys set the sights. I just shot it off."

He said Montgomery's north Rhine campaign had been, in effect, a second Caen, with the British and Canadian forces diverting the enemy power while the Americans farther south slashed thru to the Rhine."

Churchill was asked whether the Rhine would be as formidable a barrier as the English channel proved for Hitler. He replied that depended on "measurements and other circumstances—and the other circumstances are on our side now."

He added, smiling, "You'll find no river ever proved an insurmountable barrier."

BOMB FLEEING NAZI TROOPS IN WESEL ON RHINE

LONDON, March 6 (AP).—R. A. F. Lancasters tonight blasted the Rhine river town of Wesel, clogged with fleeing German troops, in a follow up of Mosquito raids on the same town during the day.

Mosquito pilots, who reported that Wesel was choked with masses of German soldiers and hundreds of vehicles, also were out tonight, dropping two ton blockbuster bombs on Berlin for the 15th consecutive night.

American heavy bombers were idle during the day but the R. A. F. heavies kept the offensive against Germany rolling into its fourth straight week with a daylight smash at German oil targets.

Brenner Pass Line Closed.

ROME, March 6 (AP).—The entire 125 mile Brenner Pass rail line from southern Germany into Italy has been closed for a month, the allied tactical air force announced today.

COLOGNE'S 'DOM' BOMBED, BUT CAN BE REPAIRED

COLOGNE, Germany, March 6 (AP).—Cologne's famed cathedral, the Dom, still stands, but has been damaged by bomb hits. However, it can be repaired. The gigantic Gothic cathedral overtowers everything else and is visible for miles before reaching suburbs.

The Altstadt's [old city's] many famous churches, its Wallraff-Richartz museum, its opera house and city hall, the famed Guerzenich concert hall, are things of the past. Not one of the five bridges across the river was usable. Four were knocked out completely and the other, the colossal Hohenzollern bridge, was so badly damaged that it cannot be made serviceable at present.

Street cars, electric and telephone service, water from faucets—these have been nothing more than memories here for five months.

Lt. Col. John K. Peterson, Riverside, Cal., heads the largest allied military government unit yet sent into any conquered German city.

Flown to India, China and Burma Sectors.

CALCUTTA, India, March 6 [Special].—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is now publishing an overseas edition for the so-called forgotten fronts of this war—China, Burma, and India—thereby blazing a new trail in newspaper history.

The final step in the new undertaking, made possible by the cooperation of United States army authorities in Calcutta, was taken when Lt. J. Haley of Dayton, O., met a transport plane at an airdrome a few miles from Calcutta.

Haley claimed a package marked "A-1 priority" which contained plastic plates for a complete edition of 12 pages of THE OVERSEAS TRIBUNE.

Flown from Tribune.

The plates had been flown from Chicago by way of Miami and Karachi, India. The newsprint had arrived previously and the Indian government, working with the United States army, had arranged for printing.

Haley hurried the plates eight miles out to the Nalanda printing works in Calcutta, where Bengalis were standing by to run off the first overseas edition in this area.

The plastic plates were mounted on wood bases, and, as copies were printed, they were taken to a dispatch center at an American headquarters in Calcutta. There, the papers were made up in small parcels for distribution by jeep to the nearest centers and by air to distant places.

Transport planes in a few hours were flying them over the India-China "hump," landing on air strips where possible and dropping papers in fighting areas, where jungle growth was so dense that the landing of an aircraft was impossible.

News from Home.

Plans had been made for the paper's distribution in every possible rest center and army mess and in a few hours from the time the planes took off, thousands of officers and G. I.s were reading news from home.

Previously, copies of THE TRIBUNE had been sent to this area by home folks of the fighting men, but had taken as long as four months to reach remote fighting zones.

Now the troops are reading international, national, and local news, laughing at comic strips, and arguing over sports results only a week after their people at home have read the same news.

"Exactly What We Wanted."

The comment of Robert Lee, 3035 N. Racine av., Chicago, now with a special service unit in this war theater, was typical of the reception accorded the new publishing venture.

"At first when I saw the old favorite I could hardly believe my eyes," Lee said. "Then I began to wonder how this was done, because I saw and read the first edition within about a week of its publication in the old home town.

"It appeared to me that the overseas edition had been specially selected for the men fighting in this theater. It gave us exactly what we wanted—news we longed for in quicker time than we had ever had it, those comic strips we missed so much, and all the sporting news we so often wondered about. I am glad it is going to be kept up."

U.S. PRODUCING T-26S—ANSWER TO NAZI TIGER TANK

Detroit, Mich., March 6 (AP).—Chrysler corporation officials today confirmed reports that the concern is manufacturing a new type tank—officially known as T-26 and described by Undersecretary of War Patterson as "the answer to the German Tiger tank."

Patterson, in a radio broadcast Sunday, described the tank as "the most powerful we have ever built" and said its wide tracks give it power and flotation in mud, while its 90 mm. gun gives it more firepower than any previous American tank.

Chrysler spokesmen said the T-26 is the 10th type of medium or heavy tanks the concern is turning out at the Detroit tank arsenal. More than 20,000 tanks have ben turned out at the arsenal since August, 1941, with peak deliveries exceeding 1,000 in some months.

U.S. RAIL CREWS DO REMARKABLE JOB IN FRANCE

Long Supply Line Put in Shape Speedily.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST MILITARY RAILWAY SERVICE IN FRANCE, March 6.—A thousand mile train journey from the Alsatian front to Marseille and back makes for an appreciation of the great accomplishment of the American and French rail and port workers in bringing supplies to the 6th army group. This is the longest supply line of any of the allied armies in western Europe and it leads thru some of the storied battlefields of our campaign which began last Aug. 15 in the Riviera.

The four day trip was made on a special train with sleeping compartments and a diner—a carrier comparable to any but the most de luxe streamliners in America. The roadbed was good all the way; the Germans had pulled out of most of this territory so quickly that they had no time for large scale demolitions, and what damage had been done to the trackage and freight yards was by our bombers in advance of our invasion.

Railroad Veterans on Job.

Some of the accomplishments of the 1st military railway service were told by Col. Arthur E. Stoddard, the general manager, and Lt. Col. Benjamin H. Decker, acting headquarters executive officer, who accompanied our party. Stoddard, whose home is in Cheyenne, Wyo., is a superintendent for the Union Pacific in civilian life, and Decker, who lives in Salt Lake City, Utah, is a superintendent for the Denver and Rio Grande Western. The director general of the MRS [military railway service] is Brig. Gen. Carl R. Gray Jr. of St. Paul, Minn., executive vice president of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha.

Representatives of more than 50 American railroads are in uniform with the MRS, "highballing" supplies and material to the 6th army group, Stoddard and Decker said. These men, members of all the railroad brotherhoods and unions, had done wonders in getting the stock rolling in North Africa, Sicily, and Italy, but southern and eastern France was their biggest job.

Nazis Destroy Signals.

The Germans, altho unable to do much damage to the trackage, had destroyed the signal systems and telephone and telegraph lines and had removed many of the French locomotives and cars.

There were two pleasing aspects, however—the remaining French cars had air brakes [MRS no longer had to depend on inefficient Arabs and Italians to operate hand brakes] and the French railroad employes, members of the Societé Nationale des Chemin-de-Fers, were completely cooperative.

Gen. Eisenhower had by directive established three phases for the running of railroads in France: [1] Operation by the American military; [2] French civilians operating with United States supervision; [3] Full operation by French civilians.

But the first phase could be skipped entirely in southern France because the French union [SNCF] was prepared and eager to help. Now, in the second phase supervision is by "double crewing"—an American engineer working alongside the French engineer, and similarly for the rest of the crew.

Transfer Special Cars.

"Past experience has proven that sufficient numbers of freight cars would be available in the invaded country," Decker said. "And they were. But it was decided to transfer hundreds more from North Africa. These were special types, such as tank cars and refrigerator cars.

"Coal was a problem in that it had to be imported. The toughest job of all was that of repairing or rebuilding bridges, for the Germans and our bombers have cut so many of those. On the first line to operate after D-day—from the Riviera north to Grenoble—the supplies were unloaded when the train reached the Durance river, ferried across, reloaded on another train, shipped as far as Sisteron, unloaded there, trucked around a demolished trestle, reloaded and so on up the line. Despite those breaks in the line and despite the fact that the Grenoble route led thru the French Alps with their grades steeper than the Rockies, our Yankee railroaders handled more than 1,000 tons a day."

Tonnage Is Huge.

The amount of tonnage now moved by rail cannot be disclosed but in one particular sector, if there were no railroads operating, 27,000 army trucks would be required to transport a day's supplies.

In Marseille, one terminus of the railroad, the port commandant, Col. Hunter Clarkson of Sante Fe, N. M., conducted our party on a tour of the harbor. The Germans had sunk at least 75 vessels, each of at least 3,000 tons, in an effort to block this port and had planted mines on the piers and under water. But our naval engineers cut a path thru the sunken ships and removed the mines in quick time.

Brig. Gen. John P. Ratay, commander of the delta base section which has its headquarters at Marseille, estimated that one-third to one-half of all the supplies now being brought into France come thru this port.

TELL HOW BRITISH AIR CREW SNATCHED POLES FROM NAZIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—How a royal air force crew and a Polish navigator flying a Dakota [Douglas C-47 transport; lend-lease] snatched staff officers of the Polish underground forces from under the noses of the Germans in southern Poland last spring was told in the house of commons today by Air Minister Archibald Sinclair.

He lifted the lid on secret R. A. F. operations to foster resistance movements in Europe. Before D-day, he disclosed, British women's auxiliary air force [WAAF] officers were parachuted into German occupied France to help the underground.

Two days before the Polish exploit, Sinclair said, the Germans became suspicious, but the underground for 48 hours fought off the Germans from the improvised landing strip. Forty-two Poles were killed and many wounded. Eventually the Dakota swooped down, and five minutes later took off with its important passengers.

FRENCH RETORT TO F. D. R. JAB AT DE GAULLE

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, March 6.—A report that President Roosevelt had characterized Gen. De Gaulle as a prima donna brought a sharp retort by Albert Bayet, writing in the newspaper Resistance today.

"The whole French resistance felt offended by the President's phrase," wrote Bayet. He added that "we have not forgotten that Washington took the side of [Gen. Henri] Giraud against the French resistance but once De Gaulle was installed in Paris we hoped that the United States would treat him as the representative of France."

Bayet said that the resistance had never ceased to be Gaullist and that the words "Gaullist" and "French" are synonymous when "national honor is involved."

Allied Armies Employ 110,000 French Workers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 6.—Official figures today placed the number of French workers employed by the allied armies on Feb. 15 at 110,000. Between 50,000 and 60,000 were employed in Paris, more than 26,000 in the Marseille area, 10,000 in the region around Lille, and about 20,000 in Rouen, St. Quentin, and Chalons-sur-Marne.

AUSSIES WONDER IF BRITISH FLEET WILL FIGHT JAPS

[The following story on prospective action of the British fleet in the Pacific was written for the Associated Press by Richard Greenlees, long time staff member of the Melbourne Sun.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 6 (AP).—Will the British Pacific fleet ever sail into Japanese home waters, or into any waters where it will have an opportunity of meeting the Japanese fleet?

That question is being asked freely here today. Rightly or wrongly, observers interpret yesterday's statement by the commander in chief of the British fleet, Adm. Bruce Fraser, that "the British fleet is ready and waiting for action," as a gesture of his impatience at delay and possible frustration rather than an indication that plans for British action are being formulated.

There is an uneasy feeling that something happened either in Washington, D. C., or at Malta which may affect the future of the British fleet in the Pacific and detract from its whole usefulness in this area.

Admirals Reach Agreement.

The good faith of United States Pacific Fleet Commander Adm. Nimitz and of Gen. MacArthur is not questioned here. An admiral's agreement was reached cordially at a recent Pearl Harbor conference under which Fraser agreed to work under American command and to undertake tasks allotted him.

Similarly, it is known that Fraser was impressed by his interview with MacArthur.

Nimitz placed at Fraser's disposal every facility for transforming the short range British fleet into a long range force capable of sailing into Japanese home waters.

Fraser readily accepted American offers with expressions of gratitude which were published widely. He has inspected American bases which it was proposed he share with the American fleet and he currently is making arrangements for an increase in the strength of his carrier fleet.

Blame Political Consideration.

That arrangements have gone so far does not suggest that the Pacific command is seeking to restrain British operations in the Pacific. Accordingly, critics are pointing to Washington, believing that political considerations in the Pacific are responsible for a sudden change in joint naval plans.

The recent visit of United States Secretary of the Navy Forrestal with Nimitz at Guam may have had some bearing on the suspected new policy which would obviously be high policy, possibly discussed at Malta.

Meanwhile, it is felt that the best the British can hope for is to participate in operations connected with retrieving Malaya and maybe Hong Kong.

Today the well informed Melbourne Herald, in an editorial, after expressing gratitude and admiration for the American navy, says:

"But our satisfaction could not be complete until naval forces of the British empire could be here to help in hastening destruction of the enemy. . . . The decision to send the British fleet here was accepted and welcomed by America, whose whole strategy in the Pacific has been based on establishment and bold use of overwhelming allied sea and air supremacy."

Winter in Chicago

Miss Irene Brown, American Air Lines stewardess, fighting wind and snow on her arrival at the Chicago airport yesterday.

Chicago had its first taste of freakish March weather yesterday, with the city on the fringe of a snowstorm which swept in from Iowa, Wisconsin, and Missouri. More than three inches of snow fell in the southern part of Cook county yesterday afternoon, while the loop and the north suburbs had less than an inch of snow.

Wind velocities of 25 to 28 miles per hour caused drifts which necessitated the use of snow plows on highways in the southern part of the county.

Forecaster H. S. Kenny, predicted clear and colder weather for this morning.

RUSSIAN DRIVE REACHES MOUTH OF ODER RIVER

Smash to Delta Above Port of Stettin.

LONDON, March 6 (AP).—The 1st White Russian army in a 25 mile advance that captured more than 500 German towns in a single day reached the northeastern mouth of the Oder river today and destroyed the reeling Nazis' last chance for an effective flanking thrust against the central soviet salient aimed at Berlin.

Premier Stalin announced the tremendous northward drive thru Pomerania in an order of the day, disclosing the capture of Cammin on the Oder delta outlet stream of Drievenow, 37 miles north of Stettin; Treptow, 21 miles northeast of Kammin, and in the same region the German strong points of Greifenberg, Guelzow, and Plathe.

The soviet bulletin announced that the same army shoved westward within 15 miles of Stettin, Berlin's Oder river gateway to the Baltic, and the Germans themselves said Stettin's suburbs were under Red army artillery fire.

Seize By-Passed Fortress.

The 2d White Russian army, operating northeast of the 1st White Russian group, toppled the holdout fortress of Grudziadz, 25 miles behind the lines and 55 miles south of Danzig, capturing more than 5,000 of the garrison along with the commanding general. This feat also was honored by a Stalin order of the day.

It cleared the way for a drive on Danzig itself, and the bulletin disclosed that this already was in progress, the 2d White Russian army reaching within 30 miles of that once free city with the capture of Alt-Kischau.

The 2d White Russian army broadened its foothold on the marshy Baltic sea shore north of Koeslin, while southwest of Koeslin a surrounded German force was liquidated with capture of its commanding lieutenant general and more than 1,000 of his men.

The 1st White Russian army in its drive also took a by-passed enemy fortress, the town of Belgard, and the two great armies together were ripping to ribbons the unumbered, isolated thousands of German troops still within Pomerania.

Planes Blast Stettin.

With the Russians on the opposite banks of the Oder both north and south of Stettin, the city was in grave danger of being entirely outflanked. Besides Russian artillery fire, it was under a hail of soviet bombs, Moscow announcing that Monday night and Tuesday morning a heavy air raid was conducted there, setting many fires.

The Red air force also smashed at besieged Koenigsberg in East Prussia.

ITALIAN LEFTISTS MARCH ON KING'S PALACE; 1 SHOT

ROME, March 6 (AP).—A Communist demonstrator was slain in a riot before the royal palace today and Premier Ivanoe Bonomi's resignation was demanded by a coalition of left wing parties as the escape of Gen. Mario Roatta during his trial for war crimes threw liberated Italy into its gravest political crisis since the allied invasion.

Crown Prince Humbert [top] and Gen. Roatta.

Roatta, chief of staff of the Italian army during the Mussolini regime, escaped from a hospital Sunday.

The demand for the premier's resignation was presented by a group composed of Communists, Socialists, Actionists, Republicans, Partisans, and war veterans.

Count Carlo Sforza, who was vetoed by the British government as foreign minister in the Bonomi government, is expected to make a strong bid for the post of premier in the event Bonomi is forced to resign.

Cabinet Meets Today.

Bonomi announced in a bulletin tonight that he would present the question of his resignation to the cabinet which he has called to meet tomorrow and let it decide whether he should remain at the head of the government.

"As a member of a coalition government, I could never abandon my post," he said.

The bulletin claimed that the carabinieri who dispersed the demonstrators did not fire at the crowd but into the air.

The slain demonstrator was identified as Guiseppe Lastagna Mancini, a member of the Communist party, by the membership card in his pocket.

Three other persons, two allied soldiers standing near-by and an Italian police agent, were wounded. The crowd had attempted to burst into the royal palace, shouting "Death to the king."

Bombs, apparently thrown by those in the crowd, burst in the square.

Crown Prince in Palace.

Crown Prince Humbert, lieutenant general of the realm since his father, King Victor Emmanuel, relinquished his rights, was in the palace during the riot, but he did not appear while the carabinieri drove off the crowd, estimated at 1,000 persons.

The king has not lived in Rome since the Italian armistice, having retired to a villa at Salerno.

The demonstration followed a mass meeting staged in Colosseum square against the Bonomi government as a result of Roatta's escape. Approximately 10,000 had gathered at this meeting and were exhorted by speakers, including a one legged Partisan fighter, to storm the palace.

While the demonstrators marched on the palace a mile away, others gathered in front of the Viminale—the premier's palace—where red flags were hoisted.

The marchers remained relatively calm when they first reached the carabinieri-surrounded palace, but suddenly one of the demonstrators hurled a stone at a mounted trooper. This was followed by a barrage of stones and sticks. Even the red banners and staffs were hurled at the officers.

Just as reënforcements for the carabinieri arrived a bomb exploded in the midst of the crowd, followed by a burst of small arms fire. The crowd surged toward the palace gate, but was held back by foot carabinieri.

Allies Keep Hands Off.

A few minutes after a second bomb exploded American and British military police arrived on the scene and began to patrol the area. It was emphasized that the M. P.s were there only to see that no allied soldiers loitered around the area.

The demonstrators carried the body of the slain man to the Viminale and, breaking thru a cordon of carabinieri, placed it in the waiting room. They then lighted candles and draped flags around the body.

5TH ARMY YANKS CAPTURE TWO HILLS IN BOLOGNA SECTOR

ROME, March 6 (AP).—Driving up to a half mile northward thru the Apennines on both sides of the Pistoia-Bologna highway, United States 5th army troops have seized two important hills and occupied the hamlet of Bisopra, 13 miles southwest of Bologna, allied headquarters said today.

The two heights, hill 375 and hill 374, rise 1,250 feet and with the hamlet make up a line dominating the area between the vital Pistoia-Bologna highway and the alternate Florence-Bologna road. The same troops drove on hill 481 slightly eastward, but were forced to withdraw to the foot of the peak after suffering casualties in dense mine fields and booby traps.

American troops of the 10th division and Brazilian forces improved their positions west of highway 64.

FIRST RED CROSS SUPPLIES REACH MANILA CITIZENS

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—The Red Cross said today that the first shipment of clothing and emergency supplies since the liberation of the Philippines has arrived on Luzon.

The supplies were distributed to civilian and military casualties in and near Manila.

The Red Cross also said it was informed that a supply train of 50 cars was due to leave Switzerland this morning with food, medicine, and bandages for prisoners of war in Germany. The distribution point will be Moosburg, Germany, the city nearest Stalag VII-A, a camp for various nationalities. Approximately 10,000 Americans are believed to be there.

CHICAGO YANKS FROM REAR O.K. COMBAT ROLES

Find Training for Infantry Not Bad.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

INFANTRY CONVERSION TRAINING CENTER, Italy, March 6.—Chicago is well represented in this great training camp where American soldiers gleaned from noncombatant units of the army are being converted into infantry men. But the Chicagoans are hard to find; like thousands of other men here, they spend their days crawling around under machine gun fire, battering away with bazookas at tanks, ripping up sawdust dummies with bayonets, or marching hour after hour over this 30 square mile military reservation.

It was on the weirdly named "crack and thump" course today that I found the first one, Pvt. Harold Behnke, 20, of 2749 S. Keeler av. With 30 other soldiers in a narrow gully, he lay flattened against the ground while captured enemy machine guns of all types slammed bursts over their heads.

He Has Quit Thinking.

As we lay there Behnke told me about himself. He had been in the army two years and overseas for 18 months. Sixteen of those months he drove a truck for a chemical warfare company. Two months ago his commanding officer was directed to turn over some men for infantry training and Behnke was placed on the list. I asked him what he thought about being transferred to the combat infantry.

"What do I think about it?" he replied. "Brother, when my number came up on that list I just quit thinking. It's not good to have any imagination where we're going."

Three miles away, on the range where they were learning to lob vicious rifle grenades at markers representing advancing infantrymen, I found three more Chicagoans—Tech. Sgt. Theodore Gradisek, 2518 S. Lawndale av.; Privates Herman Beaver, 3023 S. Canal st., and James Corbally, 755 S. Keeler av. Gradisek and Corbally, both former members of an anti-aircraft battalion disbanded because of the dearth of German planes, have been overseas for 31 months.

"Might as Well Be Me."

"Of course, we had infantry training in the United States," said Gradisek, "but since then, we haven't had much chance to practice. But you know how the army is—one day I was intelligence sergeant with my battalion, and the next I landed here in the infantry, slated for front line duty as soon as I've finished a 12 weeks' course. Some one's got to do it and it might as well be me."

Beaver, 19, has been overseas for two years in the air forces, assembling fighter aircraft.

"I thought I wouldn't like it here, but really it's not bad," he said "It builds you up, but then I guess later it tears you down."

The soldier driving my car also was from Chicagoland—Pvt. August Klein, 27, of 2111 N. 77th ct., Elmwood Park. Klein, who has been overseas for four months, is chauffeur for Brig. Gen. Lawrence Jaynes, top general of the Mediterranean theater replacement and training command.

Klein drove to the battle course, where soldiers in the final training period are taught to advance across open ground while machine gun bullets crackle overhead and land mines explode around them. We arrived as 100 men slid out of a trench and edged forward across the field under deafening fire amid the roar of exploding mines.

A husky blond boy moved faster that the rest. Snuggling his rifle in the crotch of his arm, he slid toward us, stopping once to thumb his nose derisively at the gunner directing the sputtering machine gun fire over his head. A land mine cut loose six feet from him, bounced him six inches off the ground and blew his helmet off, but he kept coming. Five minutes later he had completed his advance and sunk his bayonet into the final dummy. He was Staff Sgt. John Adams, 24, Penfield, Ill.

TESTIFIES OF AIDING BREAKUP OF DRAFT REJECTION BRIBERY

John P. Curran, 410 Evergreen av., former chief petty officer in the navy, now a treasury department employe, testified before Judge John P. Barnes in federal District court yesterday on how he helped break up a "rejection" racket in the preinduction center, 166 W. Van Buren st.

John P. Curren [top] and Albert Stephenson

Frank Cerone, 32, of 5048 Marine dr., an owner of sports publications, and his brother, James, 25, of 1249 Ohio st. are on trial on charges of violating the selective service act by bribing employes at the center. Frank Cerone is said to be a former associate of Eddie Vogel, slot machine operator.

Curran testified that another chief petty officer, Albert Stephenson, now serving a six year court martial sentence for scandalous conduct, approached him with a scheme to make some money by marking the papers of certain inductees "rejected." Curran, after reporting to his superior officers and the federal bureau of investigation, pretended to enter into the scheme.

Today, motion pictures taken by an FBI agent showing the two Cerones, Curran, and Stephenson, entering and leaving the tavern at 165 W. Van Buren st., where the younger Cerone's "rejection" was alleged to have been rehearsed, will be shown to the jury.

MEDAL OF HONOR GIVEN YANK FOR FREEING TOWN

WITH THE UNITED STATES 9TH ARMY, March 6 (AP).—Staff Sgt. Junior Spurrier of Riggs, Ky., was called out of the front lines today and the congressional medal of honor was hung around his neck for personally liberating the town of Achain.

The nation's highest military honor was bestowed upon the 22 year old doughboy by Lt. Gen. Simpson, commander of the 9th, in the presence of half a dozen other generals from the 16th army corps and with the 35th division lined up for the ceremony.

"All this brass scared me," said Spurrier who while fighting with the 35th in Lorraine killed 25 Germans and captured 20 more to liberate Achain. He already held the distinguished service cross and two Purple Hearts.

Chinese Attack Site of Former U. S. Air Base

CHUNGKING, China, March 6 (AP).—The high command announced tonight that several columns of Chinese troops were attacking Suichwan, where the United States 14th air force once had one of its biggest advance bases. It also reported that Chinese troops four days ago entered the suburbs of Yuhsien, a Japanese strongpoint 45 miles northeast of Hengyang. This drive, the command said, was launched from recently captured Chaling, 60 miles east of Hengyang.

2 CHICAGOANS ON IWO DIRECT FIRE BY NAVAL GUNS

Tribune Writer Tells of a Fearless Marine.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE MARINES ON IWO ISLAND, March 6.—Approximately 105,000 tons of shells were dropped on the seven and a half square miles of Iwo Island during the first nine days of the operation by ships supporting the action.

Two Chicagoans are engaged in the work of directing naval guns from the island. They are Lieutenants John B. Sackley Jr., 5456 Lakewood av., with the 4th marine division, and E. J. Calihan, 2324 Addison st., with the 5th division.

The navy worked in close coöperation with the marines thruout the campaign. At one point a destroyer pulled within 200 yards of the shore for a preliminary shelling of Mount Suribachi.

Sackley and Calihan's careers parallel since they went to high school together. Both attended Loyola university and played on the basketball team together. Both enlisted in the armed guards in 1942. The ships both were escorting were attacked by planes and submarines, but both Sackley's and Calihan's ships came thru unscathed. Both men transferred out of the armed guards and into the navy in October, 1943, and both were assigned to naval gunfire ashore. They went into the Marianas together and had battalions side by side in the Marshalls. Each was assigned to a division in the present operation and they came ashore the same day. Their work calls for a daily conference, placing shells for the day.

When a man is known thruout a division of marines as a brave man, he indubitably is a brave man. Any one in the 4th division will tell you tales of the bravery of Lt. William (Wild Bill) Bellano, of Reading, Pa., a bomb disposal expert. His own men discuss his deeds by the hour.

"They can't kill me," is the oft-expressed philosophy of Bellano, and he is apparently proving it by strolling casually around amid falling shells, and handling explosives like tennis balls.

On D-Day plus one, while almost every one else had his head down, Bellano calmly removed the fuse from an unexploded projectile while shells were falling close around him.

He tested one mine field to be sure all were removed by driving a jeep thru it. He also removed dangerous booby traps in a cave by jerking them apart and tossing the pieces away.

Bellano was awarded the silver star for the Marshalls action. There he became irritated because the Japanese insisted on shooting at him while he was taking a mine apart. Taking his pistol, he rushed a pillbox and killed four of the enemy.

Marine Corp. Stephan Antosiewicz of Brooklyn, N. Y., estimates he has killed upward of 450,000 flies in the Pacific area. He also has killed rats, lice, mosquitoes, and other odd pests on Saipan, Tinian, the Marshalls, and Iwo during the last 14 months.

With two assistants, Antosiewicz is in charge of the sanitation department. "The rats on Saipan were the hardest to wipe out," Antosiewicz comments, reminiscently. "We took them in cages."

He said his conscience never hurts him when he thinks of the thousands of pests he has wiped out because he thinks of the soldiers he has saved. Antosiewicz remembers how the mosquitoes bred in trees on Saipan, and how they traced them down and exterminated these breeding places.

Antosiewicz is serious about his work, finds no room for humor in his chores. Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, commander of the 4th division, inquired the other day if Antosiewicz had a hot shower ready.

"My God, general," replied Antosiewicz, "don't you know there's a war on?"

YANKS REGROUP FOR FINAL BLOW AT LUZON JAPS

MANILA, March 7 [Wednesday] —(AP).—American forces in all sectors "are regrouping for the final phases of the Luzon campaign," Gen. MacArthur said today in announcing only limited activity against the estimated four Japanese divisions still on the island.

In the air war, however, American bombers were busy.

They sank a 6,000 ton freighter-transport off Formosa and left a destroyer escort in flames. They sank a small freighter and damaged another southeast of Shanghai, and sent four small vessels to the bottom east of Hong Kong.

Airdromes on Mindanao, southernmost of the Philippines, were heavily bombed. Naval patrol torpedo boats sank a coastal vessel loaded with "escaping" enemy troops off the west coast of Luzon.

Split Jap Forces.

The critical and seemingly hopeless position of the Japanese on Luzon was heavily emphasized by Gen. MacArthur in his Tuesday war bulletin.

What remains of the army Japan had on the island when American forces hit it thru Lingayen gulf last Jan. 9, has been split into eight different segments. These are being forced into ever narrowing sectors by persistent Yanks.

MacArthur disclosed that six divisions of Japanese—probably between 90,000 and 100,000 men—have been destroyed together with their supporting elements and main supply depots.

Survivors Hammered by Planes.

The Japanese who survived the surge of Americans down the central Luzon plains to Manila and the guerrilla victory in Ilocos Norte province on the northwest tip of the island, are being hammered from the air. Their only possible avenues of escape by sea to Formosa or China are under the watchful eyes of powerful American naval units and flyers.

The main Japanese forces still on northern Luzon have been backed into the Benguet mountains on the west and the Cagayan valley and Sierra Madre mountains on the east.

Other Japanese segments are in the Sierras of east central Luzon, in southern Tayabas province, on the Bicol peninsula, in the rough volcanic areas of southern Laguna and Batangas provinces, and in the Zambales mountains.

Yanks Drive Into Areas.

American forces are driving into most of these regions. They have greatly threatened the Japanese positions in the Bicol country by invading two islands just off the west coast.

MacArthur's bulletin told of gains by the 25th, 32d, and 33d divisions in the Balete pass sector, gateway to the Cagayan valley; an enveloping movement east of Manila in the Sierras by the 6th infantry and 1st motorized cavalry divisions; and a concentric operation by the 38th and 43d divisions in Zambales.

In the Benguet mountains the Japanese are hemmed in by a guerrilla army on the northwest, the Yanks on the south and the China sea on the west.

The general reported 1,068 additional Japanese killed on Leyte Island, Nippon losses there now total more than 125,000.

NURSE RELATES HUNGER RAVAGES AT SANTO TOMAS

By the time American forces arrived on Feb. 3 to liberate internees in the Santo Tomas university prison camp in Manila, P. I., Capt. Clara Mueller of the army nurse corps was so weak from malnutrition that she climbed stairs "like an old woman," she said yesterday. The nurse changed planes in Chicago on her way to her home in Philadelphia, Pa., from San Francisco, Cal.

Capt. Clara Mueller.

Internees had no word that American soldiers were on their way, Capt. Mueller said. When they arrived at 9 p. m. prisoners rushed out of buildings to embrace the fighters, who wept with them for joy but ordered them back to shelter because firing was still heavy. One of the saddest notes of liberation day, Capt. Mueller said, was the death of several internees within hours of their release.

The nurse lost 35 pounds during her internment. "The Red Cross supplies of vitamins were an immense help," she declared. "Altho they prevented widespread deficiency disease, they couldn't begin to keep the weight on us."

JAPANESE STILL STRONG, WARNS ADM. MITSCHER

ABOARD VICE ADM. MITSCHER'S FLAGSHIP, Western Pacific, March 4 [Delayed] —(AP).— In the next six months anything can happen in the Pacific, said Vice Adm. Mitscher, commander of carrier task force 58, because the Japanese admirals have changed their tactics, still have a strong naval force and air force, and the Japanese army is scarcely touched.

Mitscher expressed these opinions today while returning from the second successful Tokyo carrier plane strike of Feb. 25.

"The enemy may be planning to hoard his planes and warships for an all-out banzai attack or he may be holding them for bargaining purposes at the peace conference. Added to that we mustn't forget too that they have an army of highly trained land soldiers numbering millions that has scarcely been touched. They have boasted they can expend 10,000,000 men and that knowledge must temper any appraisal we can make of the present situation."

U. S. FREIGHTER BAGS 2 PLANES IN 53 DAY FIGHT WITH JAPANESE

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—The United States merchant ship Cape Constance survived 53 days of attack by Japanese planes during the Leyte invasion and shot down two of the raiders.

A war shipping administration report today said the attacks began as the Cape Constance approached the Philippines with its military supply cargo and continued daily and at night when moonlight permitted. "Altho damage was inflicted on the war freighter, none of the crew was seriously injured," WSA said.

The vessel is a maritime commission C-1 type ship built at Wilmington, Cal., and operated for WSA by the Grace Line.

11 NAVY NURSES FREED BY YANKS ON WAY HOME

GUAM, March 6 (AP). — Primly erect in the gaunt cargo room of a naval air field on Guam, Lt. Laura Cobb spoke for the 14 nurses homeward bound after more than three years in Japanese internment camps on Luzon.

"I want to see the finish of this war," said Lt. Cobb. "Indeed I do. We've been on the receiving line too long."

The group included 11 navy nurses, two civilians and one British civilian nurse, all of whom became prisoners of the Japanese at Santa Cholastica on Luzon Island in the Philippines in January of 1942. They were moved to Santo Tomas in Manila and then to Los Banos, from which they were freed dramatically last month.

Nurses in the group included Lt. Mary F. Chapman, 4108 N. Central Park av., Chicago, and Lt. Susie J. Pitcher, Des Moines, Ia.

FLOW OF MONEY IN PHILIPPINES ONLY A TRICKLE

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., March 6.—When President Sergio Osmena observed in a speech the other day that the Philippines were bankrupt he voiced the thought that has occurred to everybody who has seen the ruins of Manila.

Even at this late date it is impossible to obtain a reliable estimate of property damage to the city. The figure most often mentioned is one billion pesos [the Philippine peso is pegged at 50 cents]. This is more than five times the entire national income from all sources before the war.

The pre-war currency was supported by a silver reservoir of about 30 million pesos. Most of the silver was dumped in Manila bay before the 1941 evacuation and was recovered by the Japs, who shipped it to Japan.

Systematically Collected.

The Japanese systematically collected metal coins by making it a criminal offense for a Filipino to be found with any in his possession. A month after the American arrival in the city there is a great shortage of currency of all kinds. Money now passes into circulation in only one way—disbursement by the army in payment for services or supplies.

As yet, reopening of the banks has not even reached the talk stage. Meanwhile, there is considerable suffering among farmers in need of rice loans and depositors whose funds are tied up. Many recently released internees have no assets except money in banks which have been looted and destroyed. No one can be found in Manila willing to hazard even a wild guess on the magnitude of this loss.

Damage to Public Property.

No inventory of the damage to public property has yet been undertaken, but a figure of 150 million pesos is currently being mentioned. The major items are bridges —the Quezon bridge alone cost 3,000,000 pesos—public buildings, and such enterprises as the bureau of printing, which was equipped with presses capable of turning out millions of textbooks annually.

Public offices, with their costly air conditioning and other equipment, were left in ruins by the Japs. The piers in Manila's south harbor alone represent a loss of 12 million pesos.

FREE 6 MONTHS, LYON APPEARS IN UGLY MOOD

Reds' Activities Broaden Amid Discontent.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LYON, France, March 6.—The population of Lyon, France's third city, is at last, after six months of liberation, able to use the 28 bridges that cross the Rhone and Saone rivers, between which the city lies. Otherwise, it is a municipality of 800,000 persons with few facilities.

The Germans blew up 26 of the bridges when they left and the city was paralyzed. Within four months, 16 were patched up. Now all are in operation except two.

Aside from its bridges, Lyon appeared little changed when I saw it recently from what it was two and a half years ago. I made the trip to the city in a jeep from Dijon over the road up which the United States 7th army advanced last summer and fall.

Rail Traffic Picks Up.

Rail traffic in the Saone valley appears to have improved. Along the side of the road were skeletons of German tanks and trucks, and the famous pipe line our troops laid. This pipe line was a monumental labor accomplishment. We figured—a lieutenant from Cleveland, O., and myself—that there were 300,000 sections of pipe in the line, which was laid to carry gasoline to supply dumps immediately behind the front lines in that section of France.

There was no difficulty getting across the bridge into Lyon. The city seems in an ugly mood. It is on extremely short rations and has had a hard, cold winter.

An American district base is here and we seemed to be supplying food to every possible nationality at a casual officers' mess. It was a skimpy mess, too. I noticed that some soldiers preferred to eat at a restaurant across the street. French restaurants here are not off limits. Meals in the ordinary ones, where a meal costs from $1 to $1.20, were scant—soup, vegetables, and dessert.

Black Market Indicated.

There seems an abundance of printed matter on the news stands, and Swiss papers again are sold. Cafes along the former rich Rue de la Republique have loungers, but they no longer get their shots of Beaujolais wine. Some well dressed women are seen on the streets, indicating existence of a black market, but most of the people wear wooden shoes.

The Lyon citizen seems a grim person. He is furious over conditions that he blames on grafting officials and on "the trusts."

The liberation committee, the municipal authority at present, is warning against banditry, which is persistent. It is claimed that these acts are not committed by resistance members but by provocative agents of a fifth column. "Regular, organized justice must carry out the purge," declare notices in all newspapers.

The Lyon purge court has been active and has handed down several sentences.

Communists More Active.

Published notices on bulletin boards indicate that arms have been retained and hidden by local resistance groups, which are supposed to have been disbanded.

The Communists have large headquarters in Rue de la Republique and the daily paper Voix du Peuple, which they didn't have before. I saw little De Gaulle publicity in Lyon.

Many shops and stores, formerly flourishing, now are closed for want of goods to sell.

The American consulate in the Place de la Bourse still is being run by the Swiss. It will be taken over by the Americans next month.

Justin Godart is Lyon's provisional mayor. He seems to preside over a very discontented town that once flourished on the rich profits from its silk trade.

TRIBUNE WRITER TELLS HOW NAVY SET OKINO AFIRE

Sees Shells Hammer Jap Island.

tor's calculations have come true. The low silhouette of our objective sprawls off our port bow. This is our big moment.

There is a blink from a destroyer in the ghostly column ahead. A long moment elapses before a layer of white star shells illuminates the mile long island in startling relief.

"Fire," bawls the gunnery officer at our left. The deck shudders and leaps with a yellow clap of doom that drives the eardrums together. The forward turrets belch dark smoke sewn together by coiling orange sparks. Three huge white globules zoom upward from the muzzles and soar gracefully away, losing size swiftly like golf balls as they find the top of their trajectory and settle lazily downward, winking instantaneously as they light. The first salvo is full on the target.

Other Ships Fire, Too.

We try to imagine the consternation in the Jap garrison which apparently was caught fast asleep. Then we abandon the effort to personalize this action. We're merely shooting at an island we've never seen before, two miles beyond a foreign gloom. Acrid smoke almost blots out the muzzle blasts of the ships ahead which have found voice simultaneously with ours. White tracers are off to the left in the beginning of parabolic curves which are caught half finished and completed by the red hot projectiles.

Star shell salvos pulse regularly over the tiny island whose outlines are lost in clouds of dirt and smoke. As our gunners warm to their task the deck throbs and shivers. The concussion slaps at our stomachs, our ears ache with an excess of hearing, our eyes smart as we wheel to bring the cool, waiting starboard guns to bear. In the interval the brisk wind rolls away the smoke cloud to reveal the flickerings of incipient fires that grow, as we watch, into full fledged conflagrations.

Gasoline Dump Goes Up.

With the reopening of firing comes a livid ball of flame followed by the black smoke plume of a blown gasoline dump. Again our beam end broadsides build to a smashing climax and the red fluorescence of the dust clouds widens with the fires' spread.

As we wheel inward for the final portside run, the smoke pall lifts to disclose the disintegrating ribs of the barracks building now fully aflame. In the anti-aircraft gun bay below sparks from the 6 inchers' muzzle blasts eddy in lively pinwheel patterns.

Four large fires merge into one as we head homeward and the last star shells flicker out. Lookouts have reported only the feeblest of counter-fire and has kicked occasional shell splashes off our bow.

Inside we find the firing has extinguished all but one electric light bulb in our room and has opened the door seams to flying spray. But in the morning the repair crew will perform cheerfully. Their proud ship has once more seen action and has helped to shorten a wearying war.

CANADIAN SHIP AFIRE; BLASTS ROCK VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 6.—The 10,000 ton Victory ship S. S. Greenhill Park was still blazing tonight more than seven hours after a series of explosions blew out the forward sides of the heavily laden vessel as it lay at pier B in downtown Vancouver and at the same time blasted out thousands of windows in a wide area of the business section.

The number of dead or missing still remained in doubt. Company officials said they had no knowledge of any one being killed but that four were missing. Meanwhile the Empire Stevedoring company, which was in charge of loading operations, reported two men missing and one seriously injured.

A royal Canadian navy tugman, on the other hand, said it was believed six men still were in No. 3 hold and water still was being poured over the ship in an effort to douse the flames.

REVEALS LABOR CUT PUTS FEW INTO WAR JOBS

Thousands of Chicago business firms, stores, offices and less essential manufacturers, reducing their labor ceilings under the war man power commission 10 per cent cut order, have been releasing workers not qualified for war plant jobs, Lester Brown, area director, said yesterday.

Elderly and physically handicapped workers, he said, have been sent to the United States employment service for reassignment to war work, but most of them have been returned to their employers, who are then ordered to send others to replace them.

Brown said the record breaking rush of applicants at USES offices in February has made it impossible to audit the number of workers released under the cut order, but it was apparent that many plants had been operating with fewer employes than their labor ceilings, and thus contributed few to the anticipated 20,000 or more to be released.

Some handicapped persons have been placed in war jobs, he said, including a one armed porter now operating an automatic machine, a 65 year old elevator operator engaged to run a drill press, and several shipping clerks used in similar work.

A TINY CARRIER DEFIES JAPS IN BATTLEWAGONS!

American seamen aboard small American carriers that defied Japanese battleships near San Bernardino strait in the Philippines Oct. 25, 1944, "are convinced some far greater power was with them," yesterday asserted Lt. Arthur R. Anderson, navy chaplain aboard the Ommaney Bay, one of the small carriers that escaped in that battle almost by a miracle.

Lt. Anderson, who was aboard the Ommaney Bay when it was sunk in the Sulu sea on Jan. 4 with the loss of fewer than 100 of its crew of more than 500, is visiting Mrs. Anderson's mother, Mrs. Howard A. Strohm, 386 E. Chicago st., Elgin, while on leave.

Never a Ship Fought Better.

The chaplain said "there are bigger and better ships, but never was a ship fought better" than at the time its bombers took off to fight against heavy odds. Lt. Anderson described the sudden appearance of the Jap battleships from San Bernardino strait as "a terrifying sight," but the crew, despite the youth of many, responded like veterans.

Many individual acts of heroism when the Ommaney Bay was bombed in the Sulu sea were cited.

Awesome Sight in Battle.

"It was an awesome sight—a carrier wrapped in flame and smoke broken by explosions," Lt. Anderson said describing his last glimpse of the Ommaney Bay before it was sunk by American naval gunfire.

Lt. Anderson was an instructor at Northern Baptist Theological seminary, 3040 Washington blvd., and North Park college, 3225 Foster av., before entering naval service in May, 1943. He was chaplain of the Ommaney Bay from the day of its commissioning in February, 1944, at Astoria, Ore., until it was sunk.

REPORT JAPS PROPOSE NEW PEOPLE'S ARMY

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Domei, Japanese news agency, said yesterday that one of the factions attempting to form a new totalitarian party in Japan "is advocating an armed political party, anticipating the transformation of the homeland into a battleground."

The broadcast referred to the proposal as a counterpart of the German volkssturm [people's army].

"What is implied is that should the emergency arise the new political party, as is, should at once be put on a combat system," Domei explained.

Japanese broadcasts have dealt with the possibility of an invasion of Japan since the invasion of Iwo.

G. O. P. PROGRAM ON PEACE RESTS IN VANDENBERG

Takes Party's Plea for Justice to Session.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], it was learned today, will wage a fight at the San Francisco conference on behalf of the Republicans for a post-war peace league dedicated to justice as well as to peace and security.

Specifically, he will seek the inclusion in the Dumbarton Oaks plan of a provision making the Polish settlement at Yalta and all other war time international arrangements subject to revision by the proposed new league of nations to enforce peace. Such agreements would be made reviewable in the interest of correcting injustices likely to engender war.

Republican senators whose votes will be needed for ratification of the Dumbarton Oaks treaty to be drafted at the San Francisco conference next month take the position the project will be a failure if it proposes to underwrite an unjust peace.

Program Leaks Out.

Sen. Vandenberg, leading Republican member of the American delegation to the conference, declined today to reveal his plans, which leaked out following his conference with Republican senators. They believe the country will support their demand for justice as the cornerstone of the peace league structure.

The Michigan senator said in accepting appointment to the delegation that his "chief anxiety about the tentative Dumbarton Oaks formula is that—except in a brief world court chapter—it does not once mention 'justice' as a guiding objective or a rule of conduct. In my opinion no permanent peace is possible without a constant, conscious mandate to seek and to maintain 'justice' as a basis of peace."

In conferences with Republican colleagues Vandenberg took the position that war might necessitate agreements dictated by expediency, like the disposition of Poland, but insisted permanent peace cannot be founded on sacrifice of principle to expediency.

Belittles Stalin Veto.

The surrender to Stalin's demand for a veto on use of force against an aggressor he viewed as morally wrong but pragmatically of no moment, for if it ever should be necessary to curb aggression by one of the big powers the peace league would collapse anyway and the world again would be plunged in war.

Presumably the Russian delegation will stubbornly oppose the proposal to make Polish and other war time settlements reviewable by the peace league. The British are an unknown quantity.

The question has been raised why Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania were not among the nations invited to San Francisco. The answer is that Stalin caused them to be excluded from the roster of allied nations because he had annexed them to Russia in 1940. President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill accepted the Stalin ruling.

Sen. Bushfield [R., S. D.] excoriated the Yalta agreements in a senate speech this afternoon.

"Today, after Yalta, we are presented with spheres of influence covering central Europe. Germany is to be divided in three parts. Poland is betrayed and the Balkans are under the sphere of Russian influence," he said.

"America has once more been outtraded by men smarter and more able than those we sent to the mill to bring home our grist."

REPORT JEWS TO ASK SEAT AT PEACE PARLEY

CAIRO, Egypt, March 6.—Demands that Jews be represented as a nation in the peace conference are growing in mideast Zionist circles and it is reported here today that Ben Gurion of the Jewish agency soon will visit Britain and America to push their claims.

Reacting to the constantly increasing unity of the Arab nations, Jews of Palestine, particularly militant Zionists, take the view that their interests cannot be protected if Arab nations are represented while Jews are only indirectly represented. The Palestine question, of course, is the center of the agitation, since it is the only major point of difference between Jews and Arabs.

The Arabs of Palestine have the backing of all Arab states and their representative signed draft statutes of the league of Arab states at the recent meeting here.

LOBBYIST TELLS OF A $2,000 BRIBE TO SEN. DELANO

Lists Others Paid by Naturopaths.

Mason, Mich., March 6 [Special].—Testimony that Sen. Carl F. Delano [R., Kalamazoo] was paid $2,000 cash for his influence in behalf of a 1939 bill to license naturopathists was offered today at the trial of Delano and six other defendants charged with graft conspiracy.

Harry R. Williams, Wheaton, Ill., former lobbyist for the American Naturopathic Association of Michigan and the prosecution's star witness, said he turned over the money to Delano in the latter's hotel room here.

He asserted the senator, after carefully counting and piling the bills in neat stacks on the bed and making an entry in his notebook, returned $100 to Williams because the latter had said he was "broke." Williams said he later visited Delano at his farm home near Kalamazoo after the bill had died in a house committee.

$2,500 to Revive Bill.

On that occasion Williams said the senator told him that he still owed $500 on the account. Williams said he stated he would "see what can be done about it," but made no further efforts to collect funds from association members for that purpose. The witness said Delano had set $2,500 as the cost of prying the bill out of committee.

Williams testifying under an immunity grant, asserted he had informed all members of the naturopathic association board of directors that he was paying bribes to legislators, listing as among those paid off: Henry F. Shea, Lansing and Laurium, former Democratic senator who introduced the measure for an admitted $500, according to his own testimony as a state witness in the preliminary examination, and defendants Francis J. Nowak, Edward J. Walsh, and William G. Buckley, former Detroit Democratic representatives, who, he said, were paid respectively, $75, $200, and $150.

Other Senators Approached.

The ex-lobbyist said that, before negotiating with Shea, he had approached former Senators Joseph Baldwin [R., Albion], now an army captain, and Earl Burhans [R., Paw-Paw], seeking to persuade them to sponsor the bill but that Baldwin had refused because of family ties with the medical profession and Burhans was taken ill before the measure was ready to be offered.

Several bank employes from Detroit, Benton Harbor, and Centerville testified regarding accounts maintained in those cities by Williams and association officers. One check for $1,950 was identified, made out to Williams and signed by Gunnar Wikander, Detroit naturopathist, who was named in the original grand jury warrant and now is ill in a New York hospital. Naturopathist defendants standing trial are: Mihkel Sherman, Detroit; Ernest Alden, Syracuse, N. Y., formerly of Detroit, and Martin W. Hildebrand, Battle Creek.

CITIZENS' TICKET TO BE UNOPPOSED IN LAKE FOREST

Candidates of the Citizens' party in the Lake Forest city election April 10 will be unopposed, Mrs. Calvin Beauchamp, city clerk, said yesterday. The deadline for filing nominations was 5 p. m.

J. R. Heitman, owner of a printing business, is the only nominee seeking his first term. He is a candidate for city treasurer, an office from which Edwin G. Lindenmeyer is retiring.

Mayor Charles F. Clarke is a candidate for his third one-year term. Others nominated for reelection are: William H. Harding, marshal and collector; Supervisor Roy S. Wells, who has been in office since 1918; and Aldermen Keith Carpenter [1st ward], Edwin L. Rosemann, [2d], Thomas Pester [3d] and Eugene H. Seyl [4th].

Albert's Smoke House Too Smoky for City Firemen

Albert Wronski's dream of saving hundreds of red points vanished in smoke yesterday when firemen of the 22d battalion led by Chief Charles Duplex put out the blaze in the improvised smokehouse Wronski had fashioned on the rear porch of his home at 6029 Gunnison st. to cure meat. Firemen estimated $300 damage to the porch and roof of the two story brick bungalow.

13,000 KEPT IDLE BY STRIKES IN 11 DETROIT PLANTS

Detroit, Mich., March 6 (AP).—Approximately 13,000 Detroit area war plant workers remained idle today as workers in six Briggs Manufacturing company plants refused to end their strike and employes in five factories of Gar Wood Industries, Inc., left their jobs.

The Briggs strike, which followed discharge of a group accused of leading earlier strikes, entered its fifth day. The Gar Wood stoppage, involving 2,000 employes, followed a change from six eight hour days weekly to five 10 hour days. The CIO United Auto Workers protested this would make transportation difficult.

Officers of local 212, UAW-CIO, representing the 11,000 Briggs strikers, reiterated a demand for "unconditional reinstatement of 12 discharged employes" as a condition to ending their strike.

Freed After Gaming Arrest; $1,240 Returned

Judge Francis Borrelli in S. State st. court yesterday dismissed a disorderly conduct charge against Harold Wiseman, 36, of 20 E. Delaware pl. and ordered $1,240, confiscated in a gambling raid on Wiseman's cigar store, 1752 Chicago av., returned to him. At a hearing Monday the court dismissed charges against 16 patrons and two employes of the store.

SENATORS BAR JAIL PENALTY IN JOB DRAFT BILL

Rebuff New Deal on Man Power Edicts.

BY PHILIP DODD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—In its first test vote on man power legislation, the senate today eliminated by a 44 to 35 vote provision for a $10,000 fine and one year's imprisonment for violation of job control regulations authorized in a bill drafted by the senate military affairs committee.

The vote was on an amendment offered by Sen. Bushfield [R., S. D.] The committee bill would authorize War Man Power Chairman McNutt to dictate the number of employes any establishment may have and to regulate or prohibit the hiring of new workers.

Removal of the penalty provision to which Bushfield objected restored the committee bill to its original form. The senate last week had eliminated by voice vote a section imposing a $10,000 fine and five years in jail for farm workers who quit their jobs without permission of their draft boards.

Democrats Are Split.

Democrats were sharply divided in sentiment. Nineteen voted for the amendment and 25 against. The Republican vote was 24 for and 10 against, with Progressive Sen. La Follette of Wisconsin voting for the amendment.

Left in the bill was a penalty section providing that wages paid in violation of WMC orders cannot be deducted in computing income taxes or cost on government contracts.

An attempt to restore the philosophy of the New Deal's "work or jail" bill, passed by the house but defeated by the senate military committee, was started by Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.], one of the sponsors of the bill.

Bailey's move came during debate of a substitute bill proposed by Sen. Revercomb [R., W. Va.]. One section of the substitute bill calls for the drafting of men between 18 and 45 who are "not performing substantial work in a lawful occupation." Revercomb said it was directed against "loafers."

Tydings Urges Full Draft.

Bailey proposed the words "activity, profession, occupation or industry essential to the war effort" instead of "lawful occupation." Revercomb retorted that such a change would enact the compulsory labor draft called for in the "work or jail" bill.

Sen. Tydings [D., Md.] making an eloquent plea for drafting all workers in the same manner that men are drafted for military service.

"A certain amount of totalitarian philosophy is inescapable in time of war," Tydings asserted. "The only yardstick should be: Is it necessary for victory?"

Upholds Free Labor.

Revercomb countered with the statement that leaders in the war and navy department were the only ones who had called for a draft of labor. Other witnesses before the senate military committee had recommended strengthening of war man power commission controls, he said. Revercomb said free labor would continue to outproduce forced labor.

Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.], majority leader, reiterated his plea of last week for the senate to act quickly on man power legislation, which was before the military committee for a month and has been debated in the senate for a week.

Barkley entered the senate chamber in midafternoon, having attended a lengthy luncheon for Lana Turner, Hollywood actress, who is in town for personal appearances at a local theater.

SCHOOL TAPS OPEN WIDER TO FILL JOB DRAIN

Many More 14 and 15 in Part Time Work.

More than 18 times as many public school pupils 14 and 15 years old are holding down part time jobs as in 1939 and more than 13 times as many in the 16-18 age bracket are holding full or part time jobs, Lester J. Schloerb, director of the school board's bureau of occupational research, disclosed yesterday.

The tremendous increase in employment of pupils reflects the man power crisis brought on by the war, Schloerb said. The bureau's figures disclosed a falling off in the number of 16 year olds employed but a continued increase in the number of younger people holding part time jobs.

Figures for Other Years.

Last year the bureau issued work certificates to 20,632 pupils in the 14-15 year bracket. Figures for other years are as follows: 1,137 in 1939; 1,161 in 1940; 2,093 in 1941; 2,545 in 1942, and 13,222 in 1943.

Federal age certificates issued to pupils 16 years old and older numbered 52,894 in 1944, a decrease from 1943, when 55,279 certificates were granted. These certificates were granted 3,826 pupils in 1939, 6,218 in 1940, 15,294 in 1941, and 21,490 in 1942.

No pupil in the lower age bracket may hold a part time job at which he has to work before 7 a. m. or after 7 p. m., and he must pass a physical examination to get a work certificate for any kind of part time job, Schloerb said.

Health Considered First.

"We consider the health of a child first, the education program next, and finally his work experience," said Schloerb. "The more these three are correlated the better it is for the child. With all the jobs available right now, many pupils going to work and studying at the same time are just beginning to find themselves."

Parents must agree that if a boy is failing in school work after he takes a part time job he will shorten his working hours, adjust his school program by dropping a subject, or possibly quit working if he continues to get failing grades.

It is left to the individual schools to arrange programs to fit the pupils' working hours and to see that corrective action is taken if a pupil working part time fails in school work.

Pupils who are 16 or older do not take the physical exam and need not attend school except for continuation school one night a week. Many of them hold full time jobs in war plants or offices. Most of the younger pupils are employed in offices, stores, and by small businesses, Schloerb said.

PAUL DOUGLAS, NOW A MAJOR, IS DECORATED

Maj. Paul Douglas, former Chicago alderman who was promoted from a captaincy Jan. 2, was awarded the bronze star for heroic action with the marines Sept. 26, 1944, on Peleliu Island, where he also was wounded, friends in Chicago learned yesterday.

The citation said that Maj. Douglas made many trips to the front to oversee the evacuation of the dead and wounded.

He found flame throwers and bazooka ammunition were urgently needed in the front lines. "Capt. Douglas, on his own initiative and despite heavy enemy mortar and rifle fire, carried these to the front lines," stated the citation. "His utter disregard for his own safety was an inspiration to the troops and in keeping with United States navy traditions."

VOTE OFFICER RANK FOR ALL DRAFTED NURSES

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—A provision having the effect of allowing individual nurses to decide for themselves whether they shall be "drafted" for military service won approval of the house today.

It was one of several major changes made before the house put off until tomorrow a final decision on nurse draft legislation to meet what the military services have said is an urgent need for 18,000 more nurses.

Must Be Given Commissions.

Approved by a teller vote of 135 to 98 and subject to a roll call vote tomorrow, the provision requires that drafted nurses must be inducted as commissioned officers.

The Constitution, however, prohibits compelling any one to accept a federal office and the courts have held a service commission is a federal office. Therefore military committee members, in fighting the amendment, told the house its effect would be to permit any nurse to reject a proffered commission and thereby not be drafted. War department lawyers agreed with this interpretation.

Chairman May [D., Ky.] contended the amendment, offered by Rep. Harness [R., Ind.], would nullify the compulsory features of the legislation and render it ineffective.

The house struck from the bill a section requiring the induction of cadet nurse corps graduates before noncadets are drafted, and wrote in a prohibition against discrimination because of race, color, or creed.

Both actions were taken by voice vote and both are subject to roll call votes.

No Cadet Nurse Priority.

The major fight was on the cadet nurse corps proposal, offered by Rep. Bulwinkle [D., N. C.]. As written by the military committee, the legislation put a priority on the service of girls graduating from the government financed corps by banning the induction of others by any draft board as long as the board has cadets available.

Backers of this provision insisted the cadets, having accepted training at government expense, had obligated themselves.

Opponents, among them Rep. Bolton [R., O.], author of the cadet nurse corps act, contended the provision was discriminatory and said it would yield not more than 6,500 of the 18,000 nurses the army and the navy need. They charged it amounted to a breach of contract.

An amendment exempting from the draft nurses who have taken religious vows, such as nuns, was adopted overwhelmingly. So was one requiring that local conditions as to the need for nurses be taken into consideration in levying draft quotas.

Dancer Reprieved

ELIZABETH M. JONES.

LONDON, March 6 [Reuters].—Elizabeth Maud [Marina] Jones, 18, London strip tease dancer, is not to die. Thirty-six hours before she was due to go to the gallows, Britain's home secretary, Herbert Morrison, issued notice of her reprieve. The girl will have to serve a prison sentence of about 20 years.

But Karl Gustav Hulten, 22 year old United States paratrooper, of Boston, Mass., who five weeks ago stood beside Elizabeth Jones to hear sentence of death passed on both of them for the murder of a London cab driver, George Heath, will be hanged Thursday.

SENATE VOTES TO SEAT VINSON AS LOANS CHIEF

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—The senate today confirmed President Roosevelt's nomination of Fred M. Vinson to be federal loan administrator.

The action approving Vinson to head the 40 billion dollar Reconstruction Finance corporation and allied agencies was taken on a voice vote without debate. The appointment had been approved earlier in the day by the senate banking committee.

Speculation on President Roosevelt's choice of a new director of economic stabilization to succeed Vinson centered on a top layer of government officials, with Price Administrator Bowles mentioned most persistently.

ONLY A FEW CENTS FOR A GLASS OF THE BEST FOOD THERE IS!

IT'S MILK, O' COURSE!

Bud Bowman

D'JA EVER STOP to think that milk costs just a few cents a glassful whether you have it delivered to your doorstep or buy it at your fav'rite store? But it isn't price that's really important. It's what you get in enjoyment and food value.

WOMEN SAID IT THEMSELVES when they were quizzed recently on what was the most nutritious food they knew of. And pretty close to all of them said MILK IS THE MOST NUTRITIOUS FOOD.

THE FOOD THAT DOES MORE than any other to put roses in children's cheeks, to help them grow strong and keep healthy, that helps grown-ups hang on to the years of their youth—the food that does those things, as milk does, is the one to have plenty of.

P.S. PERMIT ME A POSTSCRIPT to that essay and I'll add this interesting fact: Bowman Milk is mighty enjoyable. It's ten times tested for purity, richness, flavor. It is your best food at its best.

MISSOURI HOUSE FIGHT EXPECTED ON SUPER-STATE

Global Scheme Would End Sovereignty.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jefferson City, Mo., March 6.—A joint resolution proposing a world super-state in which American sovereignty would be surrendered to an international sovereignty is expected to come up for action in the Missouri house tomorrow or later in the week. Prospects are for a floor battle.

The resolution calls upon congress to work for a measure embodying the principle of what it calls "the Federation of the World" and asks the President to start procedure to formulate a world constitution to be submitted to each nation for ratification.

The proposal is that the international super-state would have behind it an international police force. Opponents of the resolution say it would mean American soldiers would become part of a police force under control and direction of foreign nations.

"Constabulary" Force Urged.

The proposal would reduce national defense to constabulary size. The resolution says each member of the federation is to "suppress its military, naval and air forces, retaining only a constabulary sufficient to police its territory and to maintain order within its jurisdiction."

"The Federation of the World" proposed is the brain child of Robert Lee Humber, 47, who for 16 years practiced international law and was an executive of several firms in Paris. He left Paris with his French wife and their two sons in 1940, a jump ahead of the Nazis.

He was born in North Carolina, studied law at Harvard, and was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, England. He is on the scene lobbying for his project.

Tennessee and Utah recently indorsed the Humber proposal, following the lead of eight other states—North Carolina, New Jersey, Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Alabama, Virginia, and Louisiana. Four other states—New York, Florida, New Hampshire, and Montana—have adopted somewhat similar resolutions urging an international force to keep peace.

Pleas for Backing Told.

Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, Democratic minority leader of the Missouri house, who is against the resolution, reported today he has received messages from some proponents of the super-state proposal asking him not to fight it on the floor.

"I maintain the legislature has no business to try to tell congress what it should do," Hamlin said. "I am all the more determined to fight this proposal, and many persons are wondering just what forces are back of this world federation. It will meet strong opposition in the house."

Because of its controversial nature, the joint resolution was reported out of house committee last month without recommendation. The attitude of most of the house members is doubtful. Apart from the lobbying, the resolution appears to have drawn little talk from the rank and file of the lawmakers.

80 Newcomers in House.

Because of war conditions, the legislature is accounted by veterans to be the most inexperienced in 20 years. Of 150 house members, approximately 80 are new members, mostly older men. In the senate 11 of 34 members are newcomers. Republicans control both houses.

A letter excoriating the world federation plan was sent to legislators by Lee Meriweather of St. Louis, president of the Jeffersonians. He is a lawyer and author who was sent to Europe during World War I. as special assistant to the ambassador to France.

"In a nutshell," wrote Meriwether, "the plan you are asked to approve is this: Set up a world federation with a supreme court vested with the same sort of power over the United States that the Supreme court in Washington has over Missouri, Illinois, etc."

Hunt Convicted Deserter in Fort Sheridan Escape

Pvt. David D. Casey, 36, Negro, of 219 E. 31st st., was being sought yesterday by Chicago and north shore police and military authorities after he escaped from Fort Sheridan, where he was on a detail cleaning the grounds. He wore blue denim clothes marked with the initial P. Casey was being held for Jefferson Barracks, Mo., authorities, who had sentenced him to serve seven years in federal penitentiary for desertion.

Bound for Reno

Gloria Vanderbilt DiCicco on the Overland Limited in North Western station last night, awaiting departure for Reno, Nev.

Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt Di Cicco, who inherited a four million dollar fortune on her 21st birthday last month, paused in Chicago yesterday with a companion, Mrs. Emily Prescott, en route to Reno, Nev.

On Jan. 27, Mrs. Di Cicco's New York lawyer formally announced that she and her husband, Pasquale [Pat] Di Cicco, ex-soldier and wealthy Hollywood actor's agent, had separated by mutual consent, and intended to have a formal separation.

Presumably Mrs. Di Cicco's journey to Reno is for the purpose of obtaining a divorce. She declined to comment. Mrs. Prescott said, however, that a divorce will be sought, and that Mrs. Di Cicco later will live on the west coast. The Di Ciccos were married in December, 1941.

CANADA EXPECTS GOLDEN HARVEST OF U.S. TOURISTS

Hopes to Benefit from Byrnes Edicts.

future will practically end the war so far as Canada is concerned. It has never been much interested in the war against Japan.

C. D. Howe, federal minister of reconstruction, said here last Saturday in a public address that the only possible delay in bringing Canadian troops home from Europe would be due to a lack of ocean transport. Most of his talk was about putting these veterans back into civilian life and finding employment for the 260,000 war industries workers who, he estimated, would be discharged when Germany surrenders.

Tourists Could Be Answer.

Something must be done for Canada when this slack-off occurs, the business men feel, and a revival in American tourist trade would just about be the answer.

It's only a whisper as yet and sternly denied in official quarters, but a relaxation in gasoline rationing to stimulate an influx of American visitors is under contemplation, once the fighting in Europe is over.

That Canada's program after V-day is worrying American officials was emphasized in a Washington dispatch today which noted that Canada and Britain would cut back war production proportionately more than the United States, but that American-British-Canadian reconversion to civilian production would be guided by an agreement reached by the three countries. No one would "jump the gun," a high government official said. The story also mentioned that Canada contemplated a 35 per cent cutback in war production, a figure officially confirmed here.

But Canada's plans for encouragement of American tourist trade would not be affected by any agreement.

The prospect could be spoiled, of course, if Washington relaxed some of its war time restrictions after Germany is defeated. Canadians aren't too fearful. They remember the long years it took their big neighbor to get rid of prohibition.

Homes Wrecked by Flood to Get Building Priorities

SCORES OF WAR PLANTS CLOSED BY FLOODED OHIO

Cincinnati, O., March 7 [Wednesday]—(AP).—The Ohio river, swollen by the heaviest rains in years, passed a 68 foot stage here early today, with the death toll in the worst flood since 1937 reaching eight in four states. Flood stage is 52 feet.

A soldier attached to the ferrying division of the air transport command, who fell out a yawl working over flooded Lunken airport, was the latest victim. His identity was withheld pending notification of kin.

War plants closed by the score; transportation was cut off; eastern headquarters of the American Red Cross reported probably 5,000 to 6,000 families evacuated and 10,000 homeless in Cincinnati alone.

Relief shelters were set up; the army released blankets and other supplies thru the 5th service command at Columbus, O., while the list of isolated communities grew by the hour.

20 Guard Companies Ready.

The coast guard sent planes, helicopters, and communication trucks from as far away as Boston. More than 20 companies of the Ohio state guard were mobilized.

The river rose three-tenths of a foot hourly here, while at Louisville, Ky., the stream registered more than 14 feet above its 28 foot flood level.

Portsmouth, O., protected to a 64 foot stage by a sandbagged flood wall, watched the river edge above 61 feet. Cincinnati's sunken airport stood 15 feet or more under water.

Try to Discourage Travel.

Cincinnati's City Manager W. R. Kellogg, and officials of other flood stricken communities issued appeals against unnecessary travel.

The Cincinnati Suburban Bell Telephone company, serving a large area of southwestern Ohio and northern Kentucky, appealed to subscribers to cut the wires and save the irreplaceable instruments if water entered their homes.

A six inch oil pipe line, which had been bringing 336,000 gallons of crude oil daily to the Latonia, Ky., refinery of the Standard Oil company of Ohio, was broken at its river crossing near Lawrenceburg, Ind.

The record level for the Ohio at Cincinnati was 79.99 feet, reached in 1937, when an estimated $400,000,000 in property was lost.

Thousands Flee Lowlands.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 6 (AP).—Rain laden waters of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers routed thousands of lowland residents from their homes tonight, forced some war plants to shutdown and threatened railroad transportation in this industrial metropolis.

The high water reached a stage of 27.3 tonight at "the Point" in Pittsburgh, where the two rivers join to form the Ohio, and kept rising steadily.

ARRAIGN JANITOR WHO CONFESSED SLAYING WOMAN

Joseph Nischt, 30 year old janitor who confessed the slaying and cremation of Mrs. Rose Michaelis, 58, of 6855 Clyde av., last Wednesday, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of murder before Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Felony court.

Judge Gorman continued the hearing until April 30 at the request of Assistant State's Atty. Blair Varnes to allow police time to search for legal proof that Mrs. Michaelis is dead. An extensive sifting of ashes from a city dump yesterday failed to yield a trace of the woman's body.

Capt. Edward Barry of the Woodlawn station said Nischt, employed as janitor in the Clyde av. building for several years, had signed a statement saying he slugged Mrs. Michaelis, then burned her body in the building's furnace.

Nischt's attorney, James M. Burke, who cautioned his client to remain silent during arraignment proceedings, said that he would not ask for bail at this time.

De Lacy Lectures on 'Treason'!

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—Rep. De Lacy [D., Wash.] said today THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in publishing army regulations bearing on loyalty, had made "indefensible disclosures of secret security procedure."

In a house speech De Lacy said: "THE TRIBUNE cloaked its own treason in a righteous indignation that the army's procedure might result in the commissioning of Communists."

[De Lacy said he referred to a Tribune article of Feb. 19. On that day THE TRIBUNE said the war department had issued a directive countermanding "previous confidential instructions barring Communists from officer training and some 19 various assignments involving military secrecy."]

Washington, D. C., March 6 [Special].—Rep. De Lacy, according to the records of the Dies committee on un-American activities, was national chairman of the American Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born which violently denounced the "imperialist war" during the period of the Stalin-Hitler pact but immediately demanded American entrance into the war when Germany invaded Russia.

De Lacy served on the National Council of the American Peace Mobilization which picketed the White House, assailing Roosevelt as a war monger, but which quickly swung over to a pro-war stand when the pact was dissolved.

This peace mobilization group was one of those branded subversive by Atty. Gen. Biddle. De Lacy's name appears 22 times in the Dies committee's hearings on communism in the United States.

BAND OF MEN SET JAP HOUSE AFIRE; SHOOT AT FATHER

San Jose, Cal., March 6 [Special].—A Japanese-American family of eight, recently returned from a segregation center, was attacked by fire and bullets early today by a group of unidentified men.

Victims of the attack were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Takeda, owners of a farm near San Jose, their five children, and a son-in-law, Phil Matsumura, 23.

Gasoline was applied to their eight room house and set afire. Rain helped the family extinguish the flames and all escaped injury.

Takeda said that when he went to telephone for help, he was fired upon three times by persons in a sedan.

VOTE IN HOUSE GROUP TO EXTEND LEND-LEASE AID

Bill Permits Shipping 3 Years After War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—An extension of lend-lease, including authority to make shipments abroad until June 30, 1949, was approved today by the house foreign affairs committee over Republican demands that the program be halted when the war ends.

Republican committee members, led by Rep. Vorys [O.] and Chiperfield [Ill.] said today's action would pave the way for the New Deal to embark on multibillion dollar postwar global relief schemes with lend-lease funds, assuming the war ends in less than four years. Chairman Bloom [D., N. Y.] denied there is any such intention, but he joined with other Democrats in defeating two proposed amendments by Vorys to spell out lend-lease as a strictly war, rather than post-war, measure.

Leaves Three Years to Deliver.

The committee's majority report, indorsing the bill, said: "When the war has been won, lend-lease should end and be liquidated as promptly and efficiently as possible in accordance with the intention of congress and the provisions of the lend-lease act." Republicans who sought to amend the bill are planning to file a minority report later this week.

The bill, as approved today, extends the time for making lend-lease commitments for one year, but grants three additional years for making shipments contracted for by the United States before June 30 of next year.

Administration officials have argued the three extra years will be a "cleanup" period during which we can ship some war surpluses abroad and perhaps realize some cash payments for them.

One of Vorys' amendments would have frozen the cleanup deadline at the present date of June 30, 1948.

The other specifically would have banned any lend-lease "agreement for post-war relief, rehabilitation, or reconstruction," but would have provided that foreign nations might continue under lend-lease agreements to purchase "defense articles, information and services" until June 30, 1948, even if the war ends before that time. Inclusion of the term "purchase" was designed to assure that such post-war shipments would be sold rather than donated to other countries.

Vorys told reporters he will revive his proposals when the bill reaches the house floor, probably within a week or 10 days.

Chiperfield said the present bill leaves a wide-open loophole for the administration to pour billions of dollars of nonwar goods into other countries during the next four years. For example, he said, our lend-lease officials could contract now to send power plants, factories, and other items to Russia and England, even tho the war may end before they can be built and shipped.

They could be sent, he continued, any time before the middle of 1949, and thus donated to rebuilding the peace economies of those nations out of the pockets of American taxpayers.

The United States has so far lend-leased more than 36 billion dollars in goods and services.

Rep. Miller [R., Neb.], not a member of the committee, appeared before the group today in a closed session to urge lend-lease restrictions. He reportedly suggested the program be extended only six months.

"Can't you tell me about how much our tax is going to be—in case the other club women start bragging?"

Gets 6 Month Sentence for Defrauding Hotels

Warren M. Grey, 22, of 106 W. Randolph st., received a six month sentence from Judge Francis Borrelli in S. State st. court when he was arraigned yesterday on six charges of defrauding innkeepers. The charges were the outgrowth of Grey's visits to five downtown hotels, where he is alleged to have run up a total of $406 in bills, which he did not pay. Judge Borrelli gave him 30 days on each count, to run consecutively.

NAVY EXPANDS COMBAT SHIP CONSTRUCTION

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—The navy announced today expansion of its combat ship construction program by 84 additional aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, and submarines.

The new program, ordered by Fleet Adm. King, commander in chief of the navy and chief of naval operations, would be in addition to the 288 combatant vessels remaining on the construction program on Feb. 1, 1945. It will total 636,860 tons.

MASON ASSAILS NEW DEAL PLANS TO HELP WORLD

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—New Deal plans to bail the post-war world out of financial distress with American dollars were denounced today by Rep. Mason [R., Ill.], who charged they would "pauperize" this country and make it the "financial scapegoat of the world."

Rep. Mason.

In a house speech, Mason declared the Bretton Woods program for a world bank and world monetary fund, to which this country would contribute 6 billion dollars initially, are part and parcel of the false theory that we can lend our way to prosperity. He said we tried global lending after the last war and ended the experiment with more than 20 billion dollars in defaulted loans and the label of "Uncle Shylock."

President Roosevelt's schemes for world lending, including the Bretton Woods program, reflect the influence, Mason continued, of John Maynard Keynes, sometimes called the "Englishman who rules America," and his leftist sympathizers in this country. Keynes, he suggested, may be mostly interested in having "Uncle Sam pull England's financial chestnuts out of the fire."

Dreams of Keynes.

"Shall we accept and approve the dreams," Mason said, "of the Keyneses, the Beveridges [William Beveridge, British economist], the Wallaces, the Hillmans, the Browders, and the Frankfurters?

"Again we hear that governments will be in jeopardy all over the world unless the United States pours more billions into these countries in goods and services, to be produced by the sweat, energy, and intelligence of America.

"The argument that prosperity is a product of credit is as fallacious as the idea that we can borrow ourselves rich.

Bretton Woods Fallacy.

"The same fallacy lies behind the Bretton Woods scheme — namely, that all the countless billions in goods and services these foreign countries are going to get from us will be paid back in goods, which is the only way they can be paid back. Under such a condition, what would become of the American farmer and American labor? Their market would be flooded with such an avalanche of low wage, low living level labor products from the countries of Europe and the orient that our whole economy would be swamped.

"In a nutshell, the Bretton Woods program is a lending program. What do we get out of it? We agree to put in at the start 6 billion dollars. If the fund and bank use up that money we get 6 billion dollars of export business. Then we shall have equivalent I. O. U.'s of foreign countries."

If America wants to be rationed for generations to come, the congressman continued, it should follow Keynes and his supporters. But, he added, if we do not want "holes in the ground" and "impoverished soil" as the price of donating our riches abroad, "we must safeguard ourselves against the theory that the United States has the whole responsibility for rehabilitating all the blasted industries and farms of the world."

Brophy Is Confirmed as Indian Affairs Head

PROPOSES PAY FOR VETS YEAR AFTER RELEASE

Guffey Figures Cost at 4 Billion Dollars.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—A bill to continue the base pay of service men and women for a year after their discharge was introduced in the senate today by Sen. Guffey [D., Pa.]. Guffey estimated the cost at 4 billion dollars.

He told the senate that his pay plan would tide the veterans over the period when industry will be changing from war to peace time production and guarantee them against lack of income.

Guffey said some of the returning veterans will find it impossible to return to their old jobs, and that others may not want their old jobs back. Two million of the younger men and women of the services, he said, have never had jobs before going into service.

Pay by the Month.

Guffey made these explanations of his bill:

The pay would be made in monthly instalments.

Veterans who obtain unemployment compensation under the service men's readjustment act would have such compensation deducted from payments proposed in his bill.

The bill would not affect the present mustering out allowance law, or the veterans' benefits provided by the so-called G. I. bill of rights.

Guffey's bill would be known as the veterans' readjustment pay act. Veterans in the service less than a year would be eligible for post-service pay for a period equivalent only to their service period.

Cites Public Work.

Guffey said that under his bill the veterans would not need "an army of welfare workers and rehabilitators to rehabilitate and 'orient' them into civilian life and pursuits."

Guffey, a Roosevelt administration follower, did not mention the 60 million peace time jobs promised by President Roosevelt. Guffey spoke, however, of public works programs, which he said would not be "another WPA," and said:

"That such programs will be necessary as a supplement to all that private enterprise can do would seem to be a foregone conclusion."

Salty McDudd sure is a fresh air fiend.

MOVE TO SPLIT DEFENDANTS IN SEDITION TRIAL

End of Squabbling in Court Sought.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Sources at the department of justice said today that if an early retrial of the mass sedition case is ordered in District court the government probably will sever some of the 26 defendants from the case in the hope of expediting the trial.

The first trial last year dragged thru eight months and was ended by the death of the trial jurist, Justice Edward C. Eicher. O. John Rogge, special assistant attorney general in charge of the prosecution, is known to believe that a large part of the delay was caused by defense counsel in offering innumerable motions.

Bickering Is Assailed.

He cited in court that of the 18,000 pages of testimony 17,000 concerned argument on motions.

Thus, it is said, he feels that if he can sever some of the defendants and eliminate their attorneys and still keep what he regards as "a good case" he will be able to get it to a jury.

Last week when Justice T. Alan Goldsborough heard defense motions for an early trial he stated no judge or jury could ever try the case if there was to be so much bickering among attorneys.

Justice department attorneys are going over the histories of the 26 defendants to determine which cases can be severed.

It is understood that if Rogge adopts this procedure he will not dismiss indictments against those not called to trial but will let them stand until the outcome of the trial is learned.

Rogge told Justice Goldsborough last week he was anxious to "reduce the burden on the courts" the case has caused and it is believed that at the time he had in mind the plan to eliminate some defendants and lawyers. Justice Goldsborough is to rule March 15 on the motions for speedy trial.

Mrs. A. V. Smeeth, manager of the building at 200 N. Kenilworth av., Oak Park, that supplies heat to the cottage at 218 N. Kenilworth av., was fined $25 and costs by Justice of the Peace Alfred T. Brennan yesterday on a charge of violating the Oak Park village heating ordinance. She was arrested on the complaint of Earl M. RED CROSS FOOD 'SAVED LIFE,' SO SAILOR DONATES

Olaf O. Fosse, 57, merchant seaman, whose ship was torpedoed and sunk July 5, 1942, off Norway on the Murmansk run, found the soup in a German prisoner of war camp so thin "you could see the bottom in 15 fathoms of it," he said yesterday.

Olaf O. Fosse.

Fosse, who was a prisoner of war until he was returned to the United States on the last trip of the exchange ship Gripsholm, suffered a frozen left foot and a head injury when his ship went down. He now is a patient in Marine hospital, 4140 Clarendon av.

"I wouldn't be here if it hadn't been for Red Cross food parcels," Fosse said.

After instructing Mrs. Glenn C. Kuffer, senior gray lady at the hospital, to get his money from the hospital bank, he made a donation to the Red Cross.

Fosse, a native of Norway, has been a salt water seaman all his life. He calls Chicago his home and resides with a sister, Olava Brynhesen, 4210 Crystal st. Another sister, Tallate Stratren, lives at 1321 N. Harding av.

OLD AGE CREEPS UPON AMERICA, DOCTOR WARNS

America rapidly is becoming a nation of elders, Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, president of the American Medical association, yesterday said in an address at a luncheon of the Central Service for the Chronically Ill in the Standard club, 320 Plymouth ct.

"Aging of the population has far reaching significance, and is not only medical but interlaces with all the spheres of man's life and the social structure," he told his listeners.

Citing a survey on the subject, Dr. Kretschmer said that by 1970 it is believed that the age of more than half the population will be over 45 and that each 100 of the working population will have to carry about 45 persons over 65, assuming members of the latter group have not saved enough to support themselves.

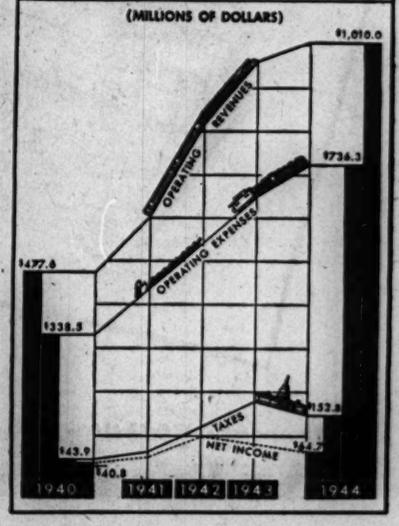
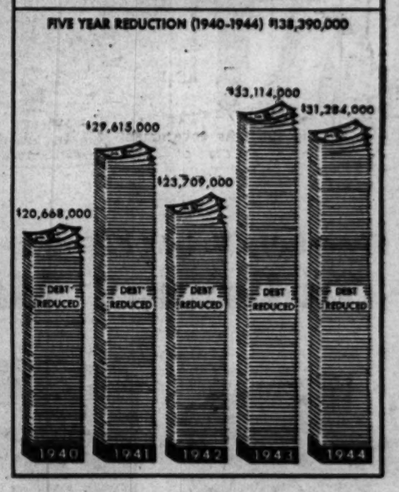
INCREASING BUSINESS DECREASING PROFITS
(MILLIONS OF DOLLARS)



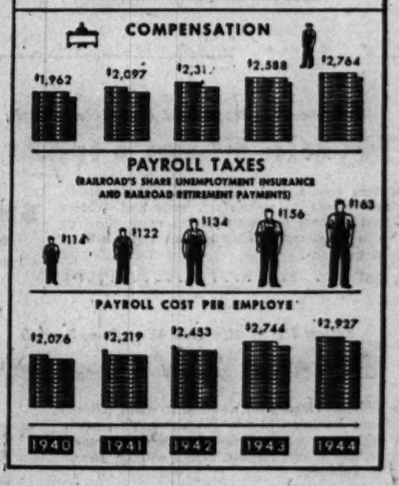
Even though the volume of business was greater than in any year in the Company's history, Net Income of $64,720,431 was $20,698,053 less than in 1943, and $36,748,362 less than in 1942.

REDUCTION OF SYSTEM DEBT IN HANDS OF PUBLIC



The 1944 net reduction of the debt of the Pennsylvania Railroad System in the hands of the public amounted to $31,283,927. Over the last five years the net reduction has been $138,000,000.

AVERAGE COMPENSATION AND PAYROLL TAXES PER EMPLOYE



The chart shows the steady increase in the average compensation per employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and in the railroad's share of unemployment insurance and railroad retirement payments over the past five years.

RESULTS FOR THE YEAR

Business continued at a very high level during 1944, the volume being the largest in the Company's history. Operating revenues for the first time in almost one hundred years of operation amounted to over one billion dollars. Notwithstanding the unprecedented demands for transportation service, the Company's operations were performed as well as, if not better than, in any of the previous war years.

While operating revenues increased $30,242,757, due to the greater volume of traffic, this was more than offset by an increase of $72,808,034 in operating expenses, caused principally by the full effect of the wage increases referred to in the 1943 report, increased costs of material and fuel, and the cost of handling the larger volume of business. Taxes remained abnormally high. As a result, even though the volume of business was greater than in any year in the Company's history, Net Income of $64,720,431 was $20,698,053 less than in 1943, and $36,748,362 less than in 1942. Notwithstanding this fact, the dividend paid in 1944 was maintained at the same rate paid in 1943 and 1942, or 5% ($2.50 per share).

The management looks forward with confidence that the Company will continue to serve the country successfully in 1945 while planning for the time when the economic changes brought about by the end of the war will have to be met and new standards of peace-time transportation established.

WAR TRANSPORTATION

The performance of the American railroads in meeting the unprecedented demands upon them for transportation service in these war years has been widely commended. They have not only carried the enormous war-time load that would normally move in railroad service, but they have also moved the immense volume of traffic which has been forced off the highways by fuel, vehicle and tire shortages, together with practically all of the traffic formerly moving in coastwise and intercoastal shipping.

Their ability to render satisfactory service during this period of record-breaking traffic was due primarily to the fact that all through the depression from 1932 to 1939 the railroads, both individually and collectively, had been developing improved transportation methods and facilities and building up a central organization to meet war-time emergencies.

The enormous volume of traffic incident to the war effort concentrated on the railroad, which serves the largest centers of population and industry east of the Mississippi River, and reaches the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Seaboard, has been handled only because the Company, through the war years, has at great expense, added to its plant and equipment.

TAXES

Railway taxes of the Company for 1944 (federal income taxes, excess profits taxes and other federal, state and local corporate and property taxes), amounted to $126,034,483. They were, with the exception of 1943, the highest in the history of the Company. These taxes, together with Unemployment Insurance taxes of $12,862,679, and Railroad Retirement taxes of $13,941,247, aggregated $152,838,409.

All taxes required 15.2 cents out of each dollar of operating revenue, the equivalent of 23.3% upon the capital stock, or $11.63 per share. The extent of the tax bill in 1944 is well indicated by the fact that taxes took about 70 cents out of every dollar left after paying operating expenses and other charges.

The railroads are taxed not only by the Federal Government and the various States, but by many of the counties, cities and other municipalities they serve. These taxes, which the railroads have borne for many years at ever increasing rates, together with all other kinds of taxes, principally the heavy Income and Excess Profits Taxes, have reached the point where practically all of the so-called large profits of the railroads during the war period have been and are now being drained off in taxes.

The result is that the railroads have been unable to create the reserves that should be provided, in fact should be required, for rehabilitation after the war.

REDUCTION OF FUNDED DEBT

Substantial reductions in the outstanding debt in the hands of the public continued during the year, the debt of System Companies being reduced $31,283,927. The debt of the System in the hands of the public shows a net reduction of $138,000,000 during the last five years.

REFINANCING OF BONDS

Refunding operations, detailed in the report, have resulted in calling for redemption, during 1944 and so far this year, four issues of bonds totalling $140,735,000, while new issues, totalling $129,735,000, and bearing lower rates of interest, have been sold to provide funds for the redemptions. These transactions insure ultimate savings of approximately $61,000,000. In addition, refunding operations of three terminal companies, jointly owned with other railroads, will produce ultimate savings to the Pennsylvania of approximately $9,200,000.

ADDITIONS AND BETTERMENTS

The continuance of traffic at an unusually high level necessitated every effort to further increase the railroad's capacity, which involved large expenditures for improvements and additions to road and equipment that would not have been necessary except for the war.

Despite the urgent need for increased passenger carrying capacity, it was impossible to acquire any new passenger cars due to the continuance of restrictions resulting from the extraordinary war-time demands for critical materials. It is hoped that this situation may improve during 1945.

RESEARCH

Through research, the railroads of the country have kept in the forefront of technological progress. They have not only been continuously engaged in original work of their own, but have also intensively followed the development of every branch of science and engineering for discoveries and advances adaptable to railroad use. To the railroads, research means the organized, scientific endeavor constantly to provide better equipment, facilities and methods of operation, and to improve those already in use. They conduct research individually, as separate companies, collectively through the Association of American Railroads, and cooperatively with equipment manufacturers and others in all fields.

RAILROAD SOCIAL SECURITY

The pension, the security in old age for life's work well done, has been one of the principal rewards for service with the Company since the turn of the century. To the employe, the pension stands next in importance to the job itself. There now has been introduced in the Congress legislation which would intermingle with the pension plan, as it now exists, other forms of social security of unknown soundness which would result, in the judgment of the management, in undermining the existing plan to the detriment of the employes—a situation which the management thinks, from the standpoint of both the employes and the stockholders, would be most unfortunate.

THE EMPLOYES

The Board takes pleasure in acknowledging the continued loyalty and efficiency of the employes, who have supported the war effort in full, and cooperated wholeheartedly and effectively with the management.

The employes have served their Country and their Company well. Since the beginning of the war, 51,559 have gone into the Armed Forces, 614 have given their lives.

The management gratefully acknowledges the efficiency of the more than 21,000 women who have come into the service of the Company so that men could go to war.

A remarkable job has been done by these employes—continuously now for five years—and it is to the lasting credit of these men and women who staff and operate the railroad that they have never failed to meet their responsibilities in all the problems that have confronted the railroad.

STOCKHOLDERS

The Capital Stock of the Company at the close of the year was owned by 213,121 stockholders, an increase of 3,503 compared with December 31, 1943, with an average holding of 61.8 shares.

The management is always appreciative of the cooperation extended by security holders, the public and employes, and recognizes its responsibility to keep them informed as to the Company's business, service, finances and other important matters.

END BUROCRATS' DEVIOUS DEALS, SENATOR URGES

Moore Seeks to Dissolve Big Lending Agency.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] urged the senate today to halt the "power hungry, ambitious burocrats who live in the starlit world of theories," before they further engage the government in the field of competitive enterprise.

Sen. Moore.

The Oklahoma oil man attacked the government's giant finance corporations when he introduced a resolution to dissolve the Petroleum Reserves corporation, which he said was created for the announced purpose of building an Arabian oil pipe line.

Moore explained that the PRC now exists in name only, as a result of its widespread condemnation, and said:

"Other than the secretary of the interior [Harold L. Ickes], who still holds to the ambition of becoming petroleum czar in the new order of American burocracy, I know of no one who now defends the existence of PRC."

Deals Out of Control.

Warning that the operations of the great government corporations are forcing American democracy toward economic totalitarianism, Moore said:

"It has long been recognized by congress and the people at large that the operation of this great corporate division of government was completely out of hand. . . . Congress has been helpless even to find out what these corporations are doing."

Using the Reconstruction Finance corporation as an example, Moore said:

"RFC was originally organized for a two year period, but has now grown into a permanent organization much larger than the largest of our private industrial corporations. It operates thru subsidiaries and subsidiaries of subsidiaries. It controls, thru the medium of finance, hundreds of businesses and government agencies. And altho congress may suspend some of these operations at one point, they immediately pop out in a different form thru the activities of another agency."

Moore said the various government agencies have combined assets of 55 billion dollars and outstanding loans of 25½ billion dollars.

Runs 22 Per Cent of Banking.

Using money taken from American industry and individual taxpayers, Moore said, the government is conducting 22 per cent of the banking and credit business of the nation. He continued:

"The fact that the over-all operations of this government venture into the field of competitive enterprise resulted in a deficit which could well be the last straw that breaks the back of the already burdened, war weary taxpayer, altho bad enough, is not the vice.

"The vice lies in the fact that congress has permitted power hungry and ambitious burocrats who live in the starlit world of theories to engage this government in the field of competitive enterprise, in violation of the supreme law of the land."

REPORT CHIANG EAGER TO MEET F. D. R. AT PARLEY

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek may come to the allied nations conference in San Francisco, but if he does it can be for little more than a brief appearance. An invitation has gone to the Chinese leader.

However, he is preoccupied in arranging for a May 5 meeting in China. While this meeting follows the opening of the one in San Francisco by 10 days, Chiang was reported to be heavily concerned with getting ready for it, as it concerns granting more government power to the Chinese people.

President Roosevelt is to travel to the San Francisco meeting and Chiang is reported eager to see him again. The two leaders have not met since December, 1943, at Teheran.

TOWN HEROINE, 'BATAAN ANGEL' CHOOSES HAIR-DO

Tupelo, Miss., March 6 (AP).—This excited little city of 9,000 offered the town today to its "angel of Bataan"—and slim, blonde Lt. Inez McDonald chose a hair wave.

The keys to the city—23 of them—were turned over to the army nurse, who has returned home after nearly three years in a Japanese prison camp.

"I think everything from curling irons to railroads is included," said Mayor J. P. Nanney.

"I can use the curling irons," smiled Lt. McDonald. "I'd like a hair-do."

AMERICAS REACH AGREEMENT ON ARGENTINE ISSUE

News Freedom Bill Wins Approval.

MEXICO CITY, March 6 (AP).—Delegates to the inter-American conference today reached informal agreement on what to say to Argentina, it was learned on high authority.

The statement, which is expected Thursday, the last day of the conference, remains to be phrased, however.

The main points will be:

1. Expression of regret at Argentina's absence from the inter-American conference.

Want Argentina in Union.

2. Hope that Argentina will be able to put herself in a position to sign the Mexico City resolutions and rejoin the American system.

3. Hope that Argentina will be able to put herself in a position to join the allied nations, which means a declaration of war.

4. Provision for consultation among the 20 other republics to decide whether Argentine acts actually constitute a sincere change in position.

The agreement on general points of the Argentine statement indicates the solid front that has prevailed thru most of the conference. Some delegations, Cuba for example, are split among themselves, however. Each country has only one vote, so if some delegates decide to pop off, it is extremely unlikely to produce anything more than noise.

In view of the formula established, well informed officials said the only chance they saw for Argentina to get to the allied nations' San Francisco conference would be a sudden, complete change in Buenos Aires—almost impossible without an overthrow of the government.

The final act of the conference is already taking concrete shape, as various resolutions are consolidated and passed.

Combination of Proposals.

A freedom of access to information resolution received unanimous approval in committee this morning, tantamount to passage by the conference.

It is a combination of proposals by Uruguay and the United States, urging the abandonment of news controls after the war and the treatment of press dispatches with the same privacy and freedom given letters and personal telegrams.

The military and political defense arcs in the new inter-American circle, closed against aggression, have been completed here. Provision is made for a permanent board representing all American general staffs to protect the hemisphere and lay plans to put down aggression from within or without the continent.

COUNCIL GROUP ACTS TO BOOST CITY AVIATION

The city council aviation committee yesterday recommended that the council adopt a resolution authorizing the corporation counsel to promote Chicago's aviation interests in civil aeronautics board hearings concerned with both domestic and international air routes.

As proposed by Mayor Kelly, the resolution applied only to routes to Latin America. The committee, besides broadening its terms, voted for a subcommittee to consider appointment of some agency to coöperate with the city legal department by promoting those phases of the city's aviation interests not directly involved with law.

The mayor, speaking at the meeting, said development of city airport facilities, principally by construction of a new super-airport, is the most important post-war project, surpassing questions of housing, slum clearance, and highways. Kelly said he was opposed to adoption by the federal government of any policy governing international air routes that would place air lines of the United States in an unfavorable competitive position with foreign air carriers.

SECOND STRIKE IN B-29 PLANT; FIRST STILL ON

While Henry Tough, president of local 274, United Automobile Workers' union [CIO], was urging 176 men on strike at the Dodge Chicago plant since Friday to return to work immediately "because their grievances have been settled," another strike was started at the plant yesterday by the same union. The plant produces engines for B-29 Super Fortresses.

"Sixty first shift aluminum cylinder head fin cleaners employed in the aluminum foundry struck and left important war jobs this morning," said a company statement, "because 10 of them refused to take a temporary emergency assignment to another job in the same department of the foundry at the same rate of pay."

The strikers to whom Tough appealed had walked out when a dispute arose over the up-grading of janitors to the work of supplying a lubricant tc high speed tooling machinery.

DOMINION DEFENSE.

The British commonwealth relations conference, meeting in London, has announced that the dominions will not object if the United States should underwrite their future defense. Australia and New Zealand, especially, have learned, since the Japanese went on the warpath, that they would not last very long if dependent upon their own efforts and those of the mother country. Consequently, they are willing to have us cast a glance in their direction ever and again as we patrol our beat, in order to see that all goes well.

These "regional" defense arrangements with the United States are advocated as a precaution additional to whatever schemes for world security are propounded on the basis of Dumbarton Oaks. Geography, it was said, "decreed that the security of Canada, Australia, and New Zealand depended upon collaboration with the United States." It is difficult to see what is "regional" about our relationship to Australia, which is 6,500 miles off our west coast, but the Australians are willing to stretch the point in recognition that we have proved reliable in a pinch.

The commonwealth conference is less complimentary in the statement that neither the United States nor the British commonwealth alone can safeguard world sea communications. This thesis is put forward by way of suggestion that if we assume the responsibility of defending the empire the benefits will not be unilateral. In return, we should have the assistance of the British fleet.

The argument will not be wholly persuasive to Americans, who may think it approaches bad taste. Until the other day, when Adm. Bruce Fraser announced that British fleet units were ready for their first action in the Pacific, British warships had made only a few appearances in those waters since Pearl Harbor, and those were not always fortunate. The Prince of Wales and the Repulse ventured out into the South China sea during the early days of the British rout in Malaya and were promptly sent to the bottom by Jap planes. The British cruiser Exeter and the British destroyer Electra participated in the actions in the Java sea early in 1942, but they, too, were sunk.

Rear Adm. Crutchley of the British navy, who, for reasons unknown, was lend-leased to us when the marines invaded Guadalcanal in August, 1942, was in charge of a screening force consisting of the American cruisers Astoria, Quincy, and Vincennes and the Australian cruiser Canberra which was caught off guard by Japanese warships the night of Aug. 9, with the loss of all four cruisers. The contribution of the admiral could well have been spared. Since then, British submarines and carriers have done some damage to Japanese shipping and installations.

Our navy has independently fought a series of brilliant actions which have practically wiped out the Japanese fleet as an effective fighting force. Whatever units the Jap admirals have left are well hidden and are not disposed to show themselves when we move right up to Iwo Jima and Tokyo itself.

Our fleet is now not only the greatest in history, but exceeds the combined fleets of all other nations of the world. We have something more than 1,155 combatant ships, 50,000 landing craft, some 5,000 smaller vessels, and upward of 35,000 naval aircraft. We have more than 100 carriers, almost 25 per cent of which are full sized flattops. The merchant fleet to transport and supply our forces is in excess of 4,500 vessels, aggregating 46 million tons.

Not only have we fought the naval war in the Pacific by ourselves, but portions of our fleet mastered the U-boats in the Atlantic, convoyed countless millions of tons of supplies to our own forces and those of our allies, and transported American troops who fought the successful campaigns of North Africa, Sicily, Italy, and France, and who now are doing almost all the fighting in the drive to the Rhine and beyond it.

There are Americans who are willing to discount America's share in the war, but we are proud to say that we are not among them. This country and its fighting sons have achieved an astonishing record of victorious accomplishment, and only those Americans who have broken faith with this, the country of their birth or allegiance, will choose to gainsay the glory of the achievement. We insist that the truth be spread before the world and that all Americans hold their heads high when they contemplate the sacrifices and the triumphs of this nation.

ANOTHER MINNESOTA GAG LAW.

John Alexander Mahan was sentenced the other day to six months in the workhouse on the charge of having published an unregistered newspaper in Minneapolis. His paper, described as a monthly political periodical, was known as the Republican Register. His sentence was suspended when he assured the court that he had sold his paper.

Mahan pleaded guilty to a violation of a Minnesota statute which requires publishers of all newspapers and periodicals, except those qualified to receive legal advertising, to file a certificate with the register of deeds, disclosing ownership.

This law was enacted in April, 1931, a little more than a month before the United States Supreme court decided in Near vs. Minnesota that another Minnesota statute relating to the press was in violation of the federal Constitution. The law attacked in the Near case authorized the courts to enjoin the publication of newspapers that were scandalous, malicious, etc. Evidently the Minnesota legislature feared that the Supreme court would do just what it did do in the Near case and hastened to pass another law for the same general purpose even before the decision was rendered.

The record suggests that there's something wrong with Minnesota, something that makes Minnesota politicians and citizens peculiarly sensitive to attacks from what might be called the guerrilla press. These little newspapers are to be found in almost every metropolitan community in the country and nobody pays much attention to them, except in Minnesota. Is that because the regular newspapers of Minneapolis, St. Paul, and the other cities of the state are somehow failing to tell their readers all they want to know, particularly about the state's political personages and events? Is it because the politicians of Minnesota are peculiarly sensitive to criticism, and if so, is that because they are peculiarly open to it? Does their hypersensitivity derive from the fact that Minnesota was long ruled by an oligarchy of mining, lumber, milling, and railroad barons who largely controled the political agencies of the state? Or is it related to the corrupt alliance of politics and crime that has led to a dozen assassinations in recent years?

Certainly the persistence of the effort in one way or another to gag the irregulars of the press in Minnesota is remarkable. In this connection, it is not likely to be forgotten that several of the editors of the little papers were silenced by assassination.

We have always thought it remarkable that the victory for freedom of the press in the Near case owed nothing to the newspapers of the state. They made no effective protest against the enactment of the law or its enforcement. It was THE TRIBUNE, not the papers of Minneapolis, St. Paul, or Duluth, which saw the danger, carried the case on appeal to the Supreme court, and won it.

CIVILIAN SUPPLIES.

Mr. C. D. Howe, the Canadian minister of reconstruction, says there is an agreement between the United States, Canada, and Britain to reduce the production of war goods by 35 per cent as soon as the war in Europe is over. Mr. Hiland G. Batcheller, chief of operations for our war production board, says he hasn't heard of such an understanding.

It is not at all unlikely that both men are telling the truth or at least such part of it as suits their convenience. Canada is going to have a national election in a few weeks. Mr. Howe can hope to pick up some votes by assuring the Canadian people that the end of the war in Europe will mean an increase in production of civilian goods. He may or may not have stretched a point in saying that an agreement has been reached on a 35 per cent cut, but surely the end of the shooting in Europe can and should result in the releasing of some facilities and some men from war work, and surely the top men in WPB must be aware of this fact.

To pick a few items at random: After the firing in Europe stops, there will be less need for shells and powder. There will be less wear and tear on uniforms. There will be less need for gasoline to move trucks when the armies take up their permanent positions and less need for 100 octane gas when the 1,000 plane raids are no longer a daily occurrence. Replacements for worn out or captured cannon, tanks, and machine guns will no longer be required. When our forces in Europe are no longer fighting, they can live to some extent at least by drawing down the stock piles already accumulated in Europe.

True, we shall have need for much larger supplies for the war against Japan when all our energies are concentrated across the Pacific, but a good many months must elapse before large bodies of men can be moved half way around the world and meanwhile the total demands of the two wars will decline. It could hardly be otherwise. We are at present providing most of the supplies for all the armies on the western front and a very substantial part of the supplies being used by the Russians. Surely the knocking out of an enemy as strong in the field as Germany has been can result in at least a temporary release of some of our manufacturing facilities and man power. It is scarcely conceivable that we shall be called upon to make a contribution to reconstruction in Europe which will absorb immediately all the energies that have gone in recent years into equipping and supplying our armies there.

Our officials in Washington are reluctant to concede that the pressure on our resources will ease. They don't want war workers to start looking around for peace time jobs. They don't want the people generally to expect relief from shortages and rationing. Too many of the burocrats exult in the power they wield. Too many of them believe in government-run-everything.

When, last summer and autumn, before our election, our officials were relaxing rationing and encouraging talk of larger supplies of civilian goods, the New Dealers were angling for votes much as Mr. Howe may now be suspected of doing, but with this difference: Then the heaviest fighting in Europe lay ahead; now the end is appreciably nearer. Americans are entitled to expect at least a temporary increase in the flow of civilian goods when the Germans surrender. Our people have more right to expect relief today than the New Dealers had to promise it six months ago.

What our government ought to be doing is not to discourage American hopes for more abundant civilian supplies but to make sure that our allies don't reap all the benefits from the ending of the war in Europe. They have let us carry the war against Japan almost single handed. If the WPB really isn't expecting a lightening of the war production load in this country, the reason must be that our allies aren't expecting to make any substantial contribution to the Pacific war.

This column has been taking frequent glances at Cologne for more than a year, thus keeping well ahead of the war news. We have spoken of its fame in the middle ages, its magnificent cathedral, its shrine of the Three Magi, its eau de Cologne, its Roman beginning, etc., and therefore feel that our duty as a spearhead for the front line correspondents has been done. They must be inside Cologne now, following the troops, and the rest of the story is up to them.

If the correspondents go shopping for eau de Cologne de Farina, alleged to be the real McCoy, they will find various types of this article of commerce, all Farinas, and all good. But the most authoritative specimens are marked "Opposite Jülichplatz." We mention this because there is a traditional affinity between eau de Cologne and the military career; Napoleon wallowed in it when on campaign.

If there are any hotels standing, the new arrivals can have their choice between the Continental, Dom, Eden, Ewige Lampe, Excelsior, Fürstenhof, Grosser Kurfürst and Savoy; Kölnerhof, Minerva, Mitteihäuser, Monopol-Metropol, and Baselerhof. The Excelsior is the most luxurious, and after World War I. it was headquarters of the British army of occupation, which remained until Jan. 30, 1926. The Ewige Lampe specializes in quiet comfort and noble wines at reasonable prices.

If Cologne's museums are available, we recommend: The Archiepiscopal, opposite the cathedral; the Wallraf Richartz, rich in old masters, especially those of the Cologne school, and also in modern painting, and the six institutions devoted, respectively, to applied art, ethnography, trade and industry, history, natural history, and prehistoric man. For restaurants of high luxury, try the Wiesel in the Budengasse, or Rettburg's in the Komödienstrasse.

BACK TO THE CAVES.

Neanderthal and Piltdown men in caves
Lived long before the dawn of culture came.
They used no vaulting arch or architraves,
And yet their lives and ours seem much the same.
They hunted game and dragged their conquests home,
And loved their mates and children, we suppose;
Then when they fretful grew would widely roam,
And stay awhile, returning when they chose.

On Iwo Jima cave men fight today;
Corregidor's dark tunnels carnage know.
With tooth and nail and many a grimmer way
Men fight like beasts, the same as long ago.
Great God, we pray that when the caves are clean
The beast in man may never more be seen.

Horseradish Tears.

This year we had a cataclysmic January. We had no January thaw.

No, but I remember January thaws and what happened. It was then that the horseradish dared to poke its head above ground the barest fraction of an inch, and we would pounce upon it with spades, and dig it up out of the thawed earth, and prepare it for the table.

Mother would get the grater, seat herself on the back steps so the wind would blow away some of the horseradish fumes and minimize her weeping, but she wept nevertheless. She said as long as she wept horseradish tears she might as well weep really, so she remembered her dear mother in Denmark, who was such a good, kind woman. Naturally she was a good, kind woman, for her child was exactly like her.

Well, we had no January thaw this year. We dug no horseradish, but I remember horseradish tears and horseradish sauce, and tho I did not grate any for the table, I could smell it, taste it, and see it, as in days gone by.

All right, so horseradish is not needed for tears, as one will remember a well loved figure in a blue gingham gown, who remembered her mother.

Of what goes on within those secret mines
Of thought from which eruptive deeds are hurled.

How can the fury of a storm-wrecked road,
Gutted and ghastly in a lightning's blaze,
Impart its image by the barren code
Of legal, truth-tormenting yeas and nays?

And yet a blithe majority can say
Their all with just a single word—"Okay!"

It would not be necessary to make any change as far as his present wife is concerned. She is entitled legally to receive a family allowance check for herself. All that the present wife needs to do is to send a photostatic or certified copy of the marriage certificate, together with her husband's name, army serial number, rank, and organization, to the office of dependency benefits, Newark, N. Those named were commissioned from reserve components Feb. 20, 1942, and include second lieutenants on the promotion list as of Jan. 1, 1944. Obviously, not all second lieutenants will be promoted.

CARELESSNESS AND BURNS.

"DON'T play with fire or you might get burned" is probably one of our best known and most ignored sayings. Every year, over 7,000 persons in the United States lose their lives as a result of burns. About 20 per cent of these victims are children under 5. Such mishaps account also for a large number of nonfatal home injuries.

Carelessness is responsible for most of these accidents. Cigarets and matches may be rationed, but they still cause fires. We would be more alert to their prevention if we could realize the intense suffering, the long period of disability, and the disfigurement due to scars that usually follow.

All wars, and this one is no exception, bring a marked increase in the incidence of burns and scalds. The flame thrower is a vast improvement over flaming arrows, boiling pitch, and tar pots. Wholesale bombing has led to extensive casualties among the armed forces as well as the civilian population. The widespread use of high octane gas has increased the efficacy of our war machinery but not without adding to its hazards. As on the home front, our military leaders admit that heedlessness plays a role in producing many unnecessary catastrophes.

These lesions may be grouped into scalds produced by steam and burns caused by dry heat, chemicals, X-ray, radium, electricity, and the sun. They may be classified on the basis of the depth of the damage to the tissues and the amount of body surface involved. In first degree burns, the skin is reddened; in second, blisters form; and, in third, the tissues are on their way to being rare or medium well done.

Overzealous first aid may hinder later treatment. Simple kitchen burns may be cleansed with soap and water and bandaged. Baking soda compresses or bland ointments may ease discomfort. In serious cases, the condition of the victim may be endangered by shock. Perhaps the best plan is to swathe the victim in a clean sheet, which may be called a "cocoon dressing," and move him to a hospital where skilled care is available. Opiates for relief of pain and transfusions of blood plasma may be called for.

Local treatment should follow the same pattern as with any other wound. Infection is a common complication. It can be combated by gently but thoroly cleansing the parts, and keeping them free from bacteria, until healing takes place. All dirt must be removed from the scorched region and the surrounding skin scrubbed with gauze, white soap, and water. Fragments of skin and tissues which are destroyed beyond repair should be cut away. Sterile petroleum jelly gauze may then be applied and the affected site covered with a snug dressing. The ensuing pressure will prevent the leakage of tissue fluids and minimize swelling.

The use of tannic acid, silver nitrate, or gentian violet solutions have merit. They can be sprayed over the involved area until a protecting crust is formed. But one objection to this method is that all too often infection develops beneath the covering. As an improvement to these treatments sulfadiazine may be applied in solution form and covered with melted paraffin. Splints may be necessary to keep the damaged area from being moved.

T. B. INDICATIONS.

Mr. F. S. writes: What are the symptoms of tuberculosis of the lungs?

REPLY.

Many times there are no symptoms and the diagnosis is made thru a routine examination. When signs are present, they may resemble those of any lung infection—coughing, chest pain [pleurisy], loss of weight, fever, rapid pulse, and night sweats.

FOOT CORRECTION.

Mrs. E. W. writes: My 3 year old daughter is pigeontoed. How can this be remedied?

Report on Healing.

Ninety-seven per cent of the men wounded in this war will recover, army and navy surgeons predict, but many of them will have serious injuries that in the long run will respond only to occupational therapy.

This is a grave statement and one that could well be borne in mind whenever the eye meets one of those signs saying "The army needs women hospital technicians!" The exclamation point after the phrase is rightfully placed. The army really needs them.

To get a clear view of what occupational therapy is and does, visit the occupational therapy shop at the army's Vaughan General hospital at Maywood. You will come away with a hundred little scenes etched indelibly on your mind.

This is the department to which surgery says, "We have done all we can. What can you do?" The shrapnel is out of the boy's leg, the wound is healed, the blood flows in its old familiar course, but the leg won't work. The burn that seared an arm from hand to shoulder has left only a fading scar, but the flesh is taut, the nerves shortened, the hand useless. The hand that was mangled by a shell fragment has had two fingers removed, the splintered bone excised, and now has healed, but the man behind the hand doesn't know what to do with only three fingers. He can't even move them.

Occupational therapy is where you start all over again. Few of the soldiers who come into the o. t. shop at Vaughan have one isolated injury, one simple fracture. They are badly battered. A single piece of shrapnel may have left a large, ugly wound, a smashed bone, and an injured nerve. Or a man may have two injured arms and an injured leg plus a tropical disease and a serious infection. If left to exercise the wounded muscles and limbs of their own volition, these men might wait a long time. They would watch fearfully for the first sharp stab of pain. In occupational therapy they mend as they work, so absorbed they forget to await the twinge.

Over in one corner a boy sands a child's toy horse. He looks fine now, but a severe burn left him with no grasp: He could clasp nothing with either hand. Two or three weeks ago he started working with an ingenious set of coping saws, files, and sand blocks devised by one of the therapists, Lucille Tuttle, and an army private, W. Howard Foster. The tools are in sets of 27 and start with a large fat handle that the barely curved hand can grasp. They end with one as slim as a pencil. The burned boy now is on that one. He has almost perfect control of his hands.

The boy on the high bicycle seat, pedaling away for dear life to operate the jigsaw with which he is cutting a plastic letter opener, came in on crutches but put them aside to ascend the seat. As he pedals, he loosens stiff joints and restores strength to his knees and hips. When he finally gets off the crutches, he probably will be able to walk immediately because of the restored muscle tone. The man sitting at what looks like a sewing machine [and actually is the base of an old foot treadle model] is making a candlestick on a wood-turning lathe. As he works, he pushes the treadle with his left foot. His ankle was badly smashed. When he came in, he couldn't move it at all. The man pulling a lever on a hand print press, printing stationery for himself, had a torn shoulder. He now is moving it for the first time. The boy groping in a box of type for the letter K with the three fingers left on his right hand is learning to make three fingers do the work of five. He started with large wooden type and gradually began to use metal. Every day or so he uses a smaller type. When he gets down to 6 point, when he can set type like this—this is 6 point type—he will be all right.

All of this is occupational therapy, yet it is only a small facet of the work it actually comprehends. Occupational therapy means the difference between the cripple who sells shoestrings on the corner and the man who resumes normal living. Yet the shortage of occupational therapists is startling.

BLACK MARKET CIGARETS.

Chicago, March 3.—I am a hotel steward and here is the condition that exists at the larger hotels on cigarets: The sales girls [or men] have worked up their own black market clientele, usually at 25 cents to 30 cents a pack of smokes. O, no, it is not "selling" over the OPA ceiling, it is just that there is a "tip" involved. The average eight hour shift can produce 18 to 20 cartons for "diversion" to these special sales. Each girl should make for her "cut" [two girls usually are the crew] $10 to $12 apiece. My girl friend likes to average $65 for six days. Then she sloughs off the balance to first come, first served.

Now, of course, the cigar stand operator does not enter into this picture himself. He gets, say, 45 cartons twice a day. The girls just "divert" around 50 per cent as their personal business. Sometimes the operator really doesn't care. It keeps his help happy and he gets his profit.

Hotels also divert 60 per cent of their smokes [cigars also] to the cigaret tray service [cigaret girls who roam the dining and theater cafe rooms]. You see, it is simple to understand—why sell at 19 cents what brings 35 cents? Don't think the cigaret girl keeps all the "tip." It is worked like a cloakroom concession, and, believe me, when that girl starts on her turn with 60 packs, she should have a minimum of $28 to turn in, or she is soon on her way out.

MINES SHUT DOWN.

Chicago, March 1.—This coal shortage is a joke—no less! I have just returned from southern Illinois, in the heart of the coal mining district. The mines are not working regularly. Only last week they were closed for two days. The reason? So much coal on hand, standing on the tracks, that isn't sold and no buyers—they close up the mines. There is plenty of coal to be mined and men to do the work, but there is a surplus on hand, and yet they tell us there is a coal shortage.

I know what I'm talking about as my father is a mine examiner at one of these mines. MRS. H. E. LEWIS.

NO TRIGGER FINGER.

Boonville, Mo., Feb. 28.—The New Dealers recently took 4,700 soldiers from camps and placed them in war plants. Two weeks ago I saw a young father of two children leaving for Jefferson barracks. He has worked in a vital war plant two years, and is supervisor over 21 machines. His trigger finger is missing, so the New Dealers placed him on "limited service." Can these things be a part of the planned confusion to prolong the war?

FATTENING THEM UP.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—It occurs to me that the pampered Nazi war prisoners here in the United States will be available for rehabilitation work in liberated Europe soon. I hope they get less pampering then than now. And I trust the Poles and Russians will find them especially useful, strong, and well fed.

PETER PEEL ON PARKS.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—I have served for 10 years as chairman of the extension of play spaces committee of the Chicago recreation commission. From that vantage point I have observed the growing need for more parks and playgrounds in the city of Chicago.

Some years back, when man power was more plentiful and leisure time was not so fully occupied with war time activities, the recreation commission stimulated neighborhood groups to clean vacant property and erect there play places for their youngsters. At best that was a stop gap.

Now the Chicago park district has made a proposal that, with little or no increase in taxes, should provide many more play areas for Chicago's population.

The editorial support THE TRIBUNE is giving the plan deserves especial commendation.

In view of the relation between participation in organized recreation and decreased juvenile delinquency, and of the greater safety enjoyed by our young people when they have proper play spaces and can release the streets for traffic, I urge every citizen to back the proposed bond issue of the Chicago park district that will enable the board to carry out its intelligently conceived program for expanding its facilities.

LOAFING IN WAR PLANTS.

Chicago, March 4.—How can strikers sleep? Not very well, I'm sure, knowing for each day they are off or loafing some man, maybe my son, may be giving up his life for the lack of air cover or supplies.

I worked in an ammunition factory. Go to a rest room and what do you see? Girls washing, setting hair, fixing nails, knitting, sleeping, and gossiping for hours. Yes, we got our quota and in time, but by those who stayed at machines working full time and steady.

My husband works in a war plant, and remarked he wished he could take a camera to work and take pictures of many sitting on one chair, feet propped on another, sound asleep in front of machines they are supposed to watch. If he woke them and asked them to keep busy, they would come back with, "You can't fire me, we will strike." And the union upholds that. What does the "no strike pledge" mean?

DISGUSTED MOTHER.

"UNIFIED" TRACTION.

Chicago, March 3.—The one weak spot in the traction setup is that the city is not acquiring the motor bus line. The two broken down systems are being obtained, but the highly profitable bus line is not.

The taxpayers should demand all or nothing. Dividends of 100 per cent are being paid by the bus line. They enjoy a monopoly of certain thorofares.

GAIN IN TIN CAN SAVING FOLLOWS TRIBUNE EXPOSE

Salvage Highest Since Last August.

Tin can salvage collections in Chicago were sharply higher during February in what war production board officials said yesterday was a reversal of a long downward trend which brought collections in January to a virtual standstill with only 37.3 tons shipped by the city. In February the city shipped 90.7 tons, which salvage officials termed a gratifying increase.

February figures for the entire metropolitan area—which includes private scavenger collections as well as city, hotel, restaurant, and suburban collections—were not available from the WPB yesterday, but officials said preliminary reports were "very encouraging, with collections 'way up."

Highest Since August.

The city February collection was the highest since last August and compared with 124.4 tons collected in February, 1944, Albert Konefes, assistant to L. M. Johnson, city commissioner of streets and electricity, said.

The reversed trend in tin can saving dates from early February when an exclusive story in THE TRIBUNE saved a carload of washed and flattened cans from a Lake Calumet dump. The Tribune story showed the cans were routed wrongly thru an erroneous waybill which later was attributed to a railroad clerk's error.

More Tin Needed.

The Tribune story showed the continuing need for the cans and the WPB announced that every precaution now is used to prevent a repetition of the error.

McKenna said tin cans must be continued to be collected until the war with Japan ends.

CHICAGO TRANSIT BILLS OFFERED IN LEGISLATURE

Swift Action Sought on Public Ownership.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—A swift course was outlined today for the Green-Kelly traction legislation after its introduction in house and senate. Leaders of both political parties look to the public ownership plan to settle Chicago's ancient transportation muddle.

"The metropolitan transit authority legislation is the result of careful study by city and state authorities of the urgent needs of the people of Chicago and suburbs for adequate, modern, fast, and safe local transportation at low fares," the governor said today at a conference with men who drew the bills.

"The people have every right to better transportation service than they now are getting and they are insistent upon definite action. My only interest has been to provide prompt relief for the people and to create a finally sound system which can in the future meet the needs of the expanding metropolitan area."

Provisions of Plan.

The plan calls for:

1. Purchase and operation of the street car and elevated lines by a seven man authority with power to buy, lease, or construct other transportation facilities including business lines.

2. Borrowing of the needed money, to be repaid only out of earnings of the lines. It is expected that the street car and elevated lines could be bought for about 87 million dollars.

3. Strengthening the borrowing ability of the authority by giving tax exemption to its property and to the securities it sells. The authority would have power to raise fares if necessary to assure a return to investors.

4. Territory of the transit setup could include all of Cook county except the small portion west of a continuation of the Cook-Du Page county line.

Public Approval Needed.

Gov. Green emphasized that public approval must precede creating the authority, even after passage of the bills by the legislature. With this factor in mind, the public has been invited to attend hearings before the public utilities committees of senate and house next Tuesday. The hearings will be held in senate and house chambers to accommodate large audiences.

"The whole plan calls for the approval of the voters of Chicago and the voters of each of the 85 other municipalities in the metropolitan area before they would be included in the proposed district," he said.

"Furthermore, purchase of the lines under the plan will have to meet the approval of the federal court which has jurisdiction over the surface and elevated lines thru bankruptcy proceedings now pending before Judge Michael L. Igoe."

Believes Funds Available.

Green said city officials estimate the present transit lines can be purchased for about 87 millions. Valuations have to be left to qualified experts, he said.

As to getting the money, he said competent investment authorities have given every indication that the proposed revenue bonds would find a ready market. He pointed to features that the bonds would be free from income tax and adequate fares may be established to get sufficient revenues to meet principal and interest.

Salaries of $15,000 a year would be paid to members of the authority, the chairman to receive an even higher figure. He would be elected by the members.

Mayor Kelly would appoint four members and Green three. However, the seven year terms would be staggered to provide one vacancy each year.

Provides Merit System.

Members could be removed for cause by joint action of the governor and mayor.

The authority would appoint the operating personnel. In connection with this, the bills provide for a merit system, seniority rights and a comprehensive pension plan for all employes. All services operated by the transit authority are removed from the jurisdiction of the state commerce commission, which, however, retains its supervision over any lines not coming under the authority.

Operation is to be started Sept. 1 wherever voters have approved participation in the new setup.

CAFES SEE CRISIS IF OPA CANCELS RATION BACKLOG

Chicago hotel and restaurant men last night predicted that a move by the office of price administration to "recapture" excess food and point inventories carefully saved by efficient buyers "is going to be bad" for them.

The OPA program, under which local boards were given until May 1 to reduce surplus cafe inventories of meats and processed foods as well as points above their original allocations, is designed to put "people who eat at home and people who eat out on the same basis as far as food is concerned," James F. Riley Jr., acting area director, said.

Lewis Ermeling, secretary of the Greater Chicago Hotel association, said 'my guess is that in general it's going to be bad."

Donald Kiesau, vice president of the Chicago Restaurant association, said restaurants are in the "worst condition" they ever have been in regard to rationing, and that the new order "will penalize the provident restaurant which has economized on points during slack periods to build up a reserve for better times."

The OPA canceled most outstanding red and blue points in housewives' hands over the Christmas holiday.

DIRECT ELECTION OF PARK BOARD WINS APPROVAL

House Committee Backs Armstrong Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—The house judiciary committee today approved a bill by Rep. Armstrong [R., Chicago] to require the direct election of Chicago park commissioners. A companion bill for the election of Chicago school board members was held up in the house education committee to await amendments suggested by critics of the metropolitan educational system.

Rep. Armstrong.

Members of the school and park boards are now appointed by Mayor Kelly, who is working closely with Gov. Green on a legislative program for Chicago.

Armstrong's plan is for Chicago to be divided into five districts, each of which would elect two park commissioners. An 11th member would be elected at large. Terms would run eight years. School board members would be chosen in the same manner.

Immune from Removal.

Supporters of the Armstrong bills complained that the appointed boards can't be removed from office and consequently disregard public opinion.

The judiciary committee voted, 12 to 4, to recommend passage of the bill for elective park commissioners. The motion was seconded by Rep. H. B. Harris [R., Lincoln], Republican floor leader.

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic federation, declared that political organizations would dominate the election of board members, with the result that conditions complained of would not be corrected. Ballots already contain too many names for voters to be expected to make intelligent choices, he added. Rep. Lee [R., Chicago] said that in one four-year period Chicago voters had been forced to choose from 2,000 candidates for public office.

Urges Nonpartisan Election.

Ald. Bohling [7th] appeared before both committees to urge enactment of the Armstrong bills, saying they would make the school and park boards responsible to public opinion.

Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, legislative chairman of the Women's City club, offered to support Armstrong's school bill if it is amended to provide for a nonpartisan election of board members, with nomination by petition and names rotated on ballots by precincts. Further action was delayed a week, when Armstrong said such amendments would be offered.

Others criticizing the schools included Dr. John A. Lapp, president of the Citizens' School committee; Mrs. Fannie Carter and Mrs. Ida Lawas of the Illinois Federation of Colored Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Arthur Lowenstein, Chicago.

Bill on Public Aid.

Sen. Crisenberry [R., Murphysboro] introduced a bill to create a state department of public aid, and picked up 18 Republican co-sponsors for the measure.

Thus power was shown behind the move to take control of old age pensions, aid to dependent children, and other relief from the 10 man Illinois public aid commission created in 1943.

The action was seen as indication of a desire to cut down the power of the organized social workers, altho Hilliard is credited with doing everything possible to hold them in check.

Tribute to National Guard.

A tribute to the Illinois National Guard, which left Illinois four years ago yesterday, and to the Illinois reserve militia, its home front successor, was contained in a resolution sponsored by Rep. J. Ward Smith [R., Ottawa]. Two of Smith's sons were privates when the national guard was mobilized. One is now a captain in New Caledonia and the other a staff sergeant in the Philippines.

Rep. Welters [R., Chicago] obtained house approval of a resolution asking the federal housing administration to sponsor a slum clearance project in the area between 27th, Federal, 31st, and Dearborn sts.

MOTHER TRIES 9 STORY PLUNGE IN COURTROOM

Restrained at Window After Losing Son.

Michael McManus.

Judge Harry M. Fisher had left the bench and attorneys were preparing an order returning the boy to McManus, a music arranger in Brooklyn, N. Y., when Mrs. McManus screamed and ran 15 feet toward the windows, which are only 1½ feet above the floor.

Restrained by Bailiffs.

Mrs. McManus hurled herself into the air and her shoulder struck a casement. As the window flew open, two bailiffs grabbed her and pulled her to the floor. She would have fallen eight stories down the well of a court to a roof over the county treasurer's department.

Mrs. McManus left the courtroom with her father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Quinlivan, 641 Aldine av., with whom she has been living with Michael in a two room apartment. McManus lives at 852 72d st., in Brooklyn. His wife left him in September, 1943, charging he was cruel to her, and in February, 1944, she took Michael from McManus' home and brought the child to Chicago.

Quits Aerial Career Here.

The aerialist continued her professional career until last December, when she settled in Chicago. She is employed now as a cashier and dice girl at the Shangri-La restaurant, 222 N. State st. Mrs. McManus recently filed suit for divorce on the ground of cruelty, and when she learned her husband had come to Chicago to recover his son, she obtained an order from Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg to restrain McManus from leaving the city.

McManus, represented by Atty. Leon Silvertrust, appeared before Judge Fisher yesterday for a writ of habeas corpus to obtain custody of Michael, and Mrs. McManus, with Attorneys Meyer Gladstone and Irving Kruger, contested his petition. Relatives of both parents were in court, and Michael, a brown eyed child in a blue snow suit with a hood, passed his smiles and good cheer indiscriminately among them.

Rules Father Is Legal Guardian.

Judge Fisher ruled that a father is legal guardian of a child, and that Mrs. McManus "took the law into her own hands" in taking Michael from his father. The judge ordered the boy returned. Mrs. McManus kissed the child fervently and sent him to her husband.

Two bailiffs outside the courtroom attempted to serve McManus with the writ of ne exeat issued by Judge Feinberg. They were restrained by Judge Fisher. When this "last chance" of stopping her husband failed, Mrs. McManus dashed to the window.

McManus and Michael walked quietly out of the room.

How to make a WAR GARDEN

BY BEN MARKLAND.

THERE are five classes of vegetables that deserve major consideration in planning the 1945 war garden. These are tomatoes, snap beans, root crops such as carrots and beets, leaf vegetables [lettuce, spinach, cabbage, chard], and onions. In plotting the rows, space for early planting should be allocated for lettuce, spinach, onion sets, onion seed, carrots, and beets. Space prepared later in the spring may be saved for tomatoes, snap beans, and other tender vegetables that should not be planted until danger of frost is past.

Gardeners whose vegetable plots are small will get more return from leaf lettuce, if it is planted in a patch rather than in rows. A corner five feet wide and five feet long will produce enough early lettuce for four persons.

Second Crop Possible.

This type of patch production is not recommended for summer planting because of the weed problem, but weeds usually are not troublesome in early spring plantings. After the lettuce becomes bitter, the entire patch can be uprooted and replanted to rows.

Gardeners who have plots that can be planted early in the spring also should plant head lettuce. Few home gardeners have been successful with this crop in past years, but new varieties, which head more easily than old types, make it a practical vegetable for the novice.

Great Lakes and Bibb varieties are the new types which head well, especially if planted early in the spring to mature ahead of the hot weather of midsummer.

Shade vs. Sunlight.

Most vegetables thrive best in full sunlight, but will grow with six hours of sunlight. Recent tests made by Prof. F. W. Went of California Institute of Technology indicate that tomatoes can stand partial shade, a point to be considered by gardeners now plotting their rows. Prof. Went planted eight plots of Earliana tomatoes, each containing 800 square feet. Two of the plots were left open to full sunlight, others covered by artificial shades at 2 p. m., and others similarly covered at 3 p. m. and 4 p. m. The plots in full sunlight produced only 37 grams of tomatoes per plant, those covered at 2 p. m. produced seven grams per plant, those covered at 3 p. m. 272 grams per plant, and those covered at 4 p. m. 121 grams per plant.

["The Gardener's Diary," published by THE TRIBUNE, contains recommendations of vegetable varieties grown in the sample gardens on the Whedon farm. The booklet is available for 15 cents over the counter, 18 cents by mail, from The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st. and 435 N. Michigan av., Chicago.]

MANY LANDLORDS TO REFUSE NEW LEASES MAY 1

Many Chicago landlords are not offering their tenants renewal leases for those which expire May 1, John Joseph Ryan, area rent control director for the office of price administration, said yesterday, but tenants will be protected against eviction whether they renew or not. He said some landlords apparently are gambling that rent control will be lifted within the next 14 months and that without leases their tenants will be subject to increases or eviction when rent control ends. Tenants, however, are protected by OPA regulations against eviction without cause in the absence of a lease, or when renting on a month to month basis, Ryan said.

Dog Butchery Hearing Postponed by Agreement

Assistant State's Atty. Crowley announced yesterday the state will agree to a request for a continuance made by Atty. Mal Coghlan, representing Antonio Fradet, who is charged with cruelly killing a dog belonging to a tenant in Fradet's building at 17 S. Springfield av. Fradet's preliminary examination was slated for this morning in Felony court before Judge Gibson E. Gorman, but will be postponed to March 22.

APPEALS FOR 900 IN WAR WORK IN DE KALB, DIXON

The regional war production board yesterday made an appeal for 900 new workers in plants in De Kalb and Dixon which manufacture wire screen cloth for the army and navy, to be used for protection from insects in the tropics. John Nuveen Jr., regional director, said the industry is producing at approximately only 75 per cent of capacity because of lack of workers, and that the WPB industry advisory committee had completed a study which showed that all of the new workers can be inexperienced, and a high proportion of them may be women.

Additional 1944 tax rates for Cook county villages and towns, announced yesterday by County Clerk Flynn, continued to show an upward trend. Most of the suburbs had greater raises than the city of Chicago, whose 1944 rate is $3.97, compared with $3.90 for 1943.

Representative rates in the suburban area, with township and school district indicated where there is overlapping, are:

Pie 1	1943.	1944.

Fighting Men's Kin Keep Close Watch on War

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHILE Iwo Jima and Cologne have been dominating the headlines Chicago families anxiously have been studying dispatches from those far-flung battle fronts for news of fighting sons and husbands. The latter campaign is of special significance to Mrs. George W. Kellner of Highland Park, whose three sons are fighting in Germany. Capt. George Kellner is on duty there with the 1st army, while 2d Lt. William Kellner is engaged in sweeping land mines. Their brother, 1st Lt. Robert Kellner, who participated in the invasion of Holland as a paratrooper, has completed a pathfinders' course in England and now is serving with advance forces in Germany.

Headed in another direction is the brother-in-law of the three young men, Lt. Comdr. Henry Coulton, whose wife, the former Carola Kellner, will return from San Diego, Cal., to the north shore this weekend to be with her mother while Comdr. Coulton is serving in the Pacific.

Capt. John T. Benedict, who had expected to return to Lake Forest on leave last month, will not come home from England for several months, but his latest award—the distinguished flying cross—is on its way to his wife, now staying with her family in Nashville, Tenn. Capt. Benedict, son of Mrs. James E. Baggot, received the award for his services as pilot of a Flying Fortress, having completed 34 missions.

Mrs. John D. Ames momentarily is expecting a long distance call to tell her that Lt. Col. Ames has returned to this country following two years of army duty in Italy. He will spend a 30 day leave in Winnetka with his wife and children.

Other Service Notes.

Home on a 30 day leave, which he is spending with his wife and parents, the Nathaniel Blatchfords, in Winnetka, is Sgt. Nicholas Blatchford of the army. Sgt. Blatchford has been stationed in Newfoundland, to which base he will return soon. The junior Mrs. Blatchford's brother, Lt. Fred Greeley, who was missing in action in Europe for six months last year, has returned to this country and is stationed in Hondo, Tex., with his bride of a few months.

Mrs. John F. R. Seitz of Lake Forest was thrilled to learn that her husband, Col. Seitz, and his regiment have received a Presidential unit citation for action against the Germans since Dec. 16. Col. Seitz led a combat team which was one of the first to hit the shore of Normandy on invasion day, and was with a regiment of the 1st division which took Aachen.

Lt. [j. g.] Frank J. Wenter has been awarded a silver star for commanding a boat wave in the invasion of Lae and Finschhafen. The citation accompanying it reads, "He personally led the assault waves of landing craft from his ship to the beach and, despite bitter enemy resistance from machine guns and mortars, made each landing on schedule at the designated points without loss of a single craft."

Here and There.

The woman's committee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will entertain at luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the Casino club to observe its 10th anniversary, which was passed last year without a celebration. Mrs. Telfer MacArthur is chairman of the committee.

A gala audience will welcome back the Russian Trio from its successful trip to Palm Beach at a chamber music concert at 11:30 a. m. today in the Arts club. Among those with tickets are Mrs. Welsh Dickinson, Mrs. Russell Hobbs, Mrs. John Pollack, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mrs. Arthur G. Cable, Mrs. William F. Peter, and Mrs. Albert Byfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Noble Lee [Merva Wilkins] are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Elizabeth Noble, Feb. 13 in the Evanston hospital. The baby and her 2 year old brother, Edward Jr., are grandchildren of the late Edward Thomas Lee, who founded the John

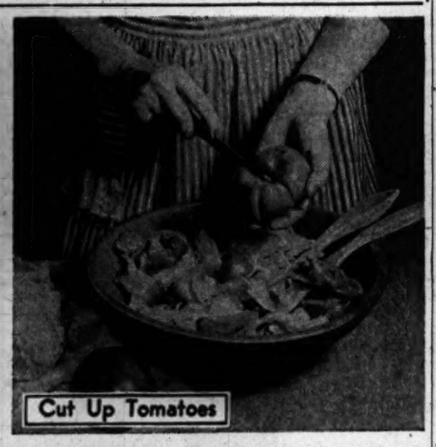
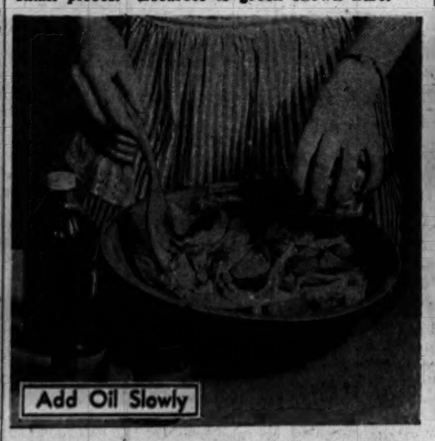
Mary Meade Prepares a Salad of Tossed Greens

1. In preparing a tossed salad, use an oversize salad bowl to allow room for tossing. Wash greens well and crisp, if necessary, in ice water. Dry very well with towel, as oil will not adhere to wet greens. Break off leaves, then tear into small pieces. Escarole is green shown here.



2. To the escarole add crisp, dry lettuce torn into coarse pieces, or any other desired green—tender spinach leaves, celery leaves, watercress, chicory, endive. Cut washed, fully ripe tomatoes into eighths after removing blossom end. Do not peel as this may make tomatoes mushy.



3 Over the salad ingredients trickle olive oil or any other salad oil, and toss lightly after additions in order to coat every piece of greenery. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and herbs, and pour small amount of cider or wine vinegar over leaves. Herbs here are rosemary and tarragon.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photos.]

4 Toss gently with large spoon and fork for a few minutes, then taste to determine the necessity for more vinegar and seasoning. A whiff of garlic may be added by rubbing the bowl with cut clove of garlic at start. French dressing may be used in place of oil and vinegar, if desired.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Two C's.

Curriculum and counsel—two c's—are essential in career training in the field of fashion, according to Julia Coburn of the Tobé-Coburn School for Fashion Careers. Much of the time of this warm, friendly, imaginative woman is occupied with teaching, guiding, developing, and then placing her fashion fledglings.

Sales experience, in Miss Coburn's judgment, is of utmost importance. "Studies at school don't make you a vice president," she tells the girls. "Start selling in a store when your study is finished; learn merchandise and people; learn why people buy things." She has a cute maxim she offers the students, "It's the taste of the fish and not of the fisherman that determines the bait."

"Show initiative and ability," she urges the young aspirants. "Be completely alert to everything going on; read the ads; read magazines; read newspapers; know what other businesses are doing. Everywhere there is opportunity; a store holds merchandise, people, life!"

Middle Westerner.

Altho her school is in New York, Miss Coburn was born in Kansas City, went east to school, and had two offers to teach when she was graduated from Vassar. [She now is studying for a master's degree at Columbia.] Interested in writing, she "stumbled," she says, out of college into an advertising job in Toledo; became advertising manager of a large store; several years later went abroad; then came back to the United States to a magazine promotion job; finally found herself in the fashion editor's chair of a woman's publication.

Midway, thru these various migrations—it was on the train going from London to Salzburg—the idea of the fashion school was born, or nourished, rather. For, in the reflective mood produced by gazing out a train window, she recalled a conversation with Tobé at a Fashion Group luncheon. "Some one should train young women for fashion careers," Tobé had said. "If you ever would like to do it, I'll go in with you."

The school which opened in Rockefeller center in the fall of 1937 came into being as a result of this idea lurking in a fertile mind. She knew, says Julia Coburn, that she'd never be happy until she gave it a try.

A Sense of Excitement.

Today there are about 600 alumni with whom the school keeps in contact. "No excuse for our existence," Miss Coburn believes, "unless we help students get jobs in the work for which they are trained—and then keep in touch with them." The first class of the shortened two year war course is now graduating. To what jobs will they go? Merchandising, styling and fashion coordination, research and teaching, advertising, editorial and publicity positions. There is no end of possibilities, Miss Coburn says.

"Is there anything special you'd like me to stress?" I ask. "Yes—a sense of excitement in a job—enthusiasm," she replies with an infectious, enthusiastic smile.

Spring on Way in Lounging Garments, Too

BY REA SEEGER.

Most spring fever patients are playing with the idea of permanently parking the winter flannel or quilted and padded house coats and lounging about in the new pastel colored springtime beauties. The new collections include precise checks against white backgrounds, used for slim tailored coats with a tie sash belt; solid pastels in equally trim models piped in cool white, and a grand assortment of prints.

Some stunning two-tone combinations make other house coats that look like hostess gowns—navy blue with a yoke of flush pink, panels of pink in the sleeves, and a vee panel in front. Other color combinations are just as flattering. Pastel colored crepes—with blush pink the favorite and soft blue second—have cleverly draped skirts, three-quarter sleeves, and deep vee necklines accentuated with lace frills to match lace cuffs on the sleeves. Very simple models achieve a fine spring appeal with huge cabbage size roses tucked in the tie sash belt at the side.

The pale blue hostess gown with a pink rose is undeniably the most romantic creation, but the pink lace numbers give the blues a good run for a selling record. A few early cottons and piques have arrived, the crisp colored striped, tailored coats looking effective and smart because of the vivid colors, red or bright blue with white. Perky bows of material define the neat normal waistline and the skirts are satisfyingly wide without violating federal restriction. If your bundlesome winter robes have a jaded appearance this is the time to change over into the slim, lush springtime models.

Bonnets Open Crowned

New York, March 6 (AP).—"Hair-conditioned" hats will be the big news of the American Easter parade this year, the opening style show of New York's annual "spring hat week" indicated today.

Women with crowning glories will have full opportunity to display them in the new open crowned Easter bonnets, designed to fit around coronet braid hair-dos. Thus a shining cluster of curls or braids actually forms the crowns of some of these uncrowned halo hats. [The wearer supplies the braids, the milliner the halo.]

Little of the Paris outside influence was evident at this afternoon's show of the Millinery Creators' guild. Hats for the most part are light, wearable, and becoming—tho definitely more important than they have been in recent years.

The wide brimmed, wide crowned sailor, laden with flowers, remains one of the top styles of spring, and is shown in black, brown, or white straw, in lacy horsehair braid and in fabric.

Despite their size, the hats retain a lightness achieved by use of sheer materials and feather-weight trimmings.

Ralph Kirkpatrick Brings Taste, Wit, and Skill to Harpsichord Recital.

It wouldn't be polite to call Ralph Kirkpatrick's harpsichord recital a pleasant surprise, so suppose we say it surpassed our rosier expectations? I treasure too many of Mr. Kirkpatrick's recordings to have been unduly disappointed when Wanda Landowska's illness sent him to fill in on the Musical Arts series usually devoted to the harpsichord's lustier offspring, the piano, but even so I was not prepared for a performance that took command of Orchestra hall. It had the wit, taste, and skill to explore the radiant resources of a patrician instrument.

In these days of transcriptions gone wild, there is something wonderfully refreshing about the real thing. Here was the music of Bach and Mozart, of Scarlatti and Couperin, or Rameau and the sonorously named Jacques Champion de Chambonnieres, as they set it down. The "Concerto nach Italiaenischem Gusto" was our old friend the Italian Concerto, superbly played. The Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue began with a liquid loveliness almost unique in my harpsichord experience and marched straight into brilliance. Mozart's lovely variations on "Ah! Vou dirai-je, Maman," were a revelation in texture and style, with a crystalline perfection of form.

The Scarlatti Sonatas were a gleaming trio, and there was a gala excursion into Couperin's five gaited suite, "The Ceremonies of the Great and Ancient Federation of Musicians," which brings in the noble and the not so noble but much more fun, then adds the pensioners before breaking up the meeting in a melee. Only a man with a joyous sense of humor could have written it—or played it.

If you feel too unhappy about missing this, remember that Mr. Kirkpatrick appears in Mandel hall, University of Chicago, Friday night in sonata recital with Alexander Schneider, violinist.

Van Vactor Visits.

David Van Vactor, composer, conductor, and former flutist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, went thru town yesterday on his way to Chile, where at the invitation of the government he will conduct the Santiago Symphony in a series of five concerts featuring the music of North America. Mr. Van Vactor also will direct a series of 32 concerts of chamber music, and he has been invited to conduct a chorus of 2,000 voices. The engagement was arranged by coöperation of our own state department, which pays part of the fee in the general direction of the good neighbor policy. Chile, says Mr. Van Vactor, wanted him for a year, but he will be able to manage just six months, as he is returning next season to his post as assistant to Efrem Kurtz, conductor of the Kansas City orchestra.

Reminder.

"The Glass Menagerie" plays the first of three Wednesday matinées this afternoon at the Civic. These are extra performances added to the schedule before the play closes March 24 to invade Broadway.

Thru the Looking Glass

There just isn't any short cut to perpetually well groomed, perfectly coiffed hair. Nor can the sheen and beautiful highlights that are so nice to read about be had by wishing for them. We only wish it all could be acquired by some simple means, but the fact remains—if you want pretty hair you have to work and work at the job. O, we'll grudgingly grant that here and there you'll find some tresses that always look lovely and whose owner smugly swears she "never touches it except to run a comb thru it." However, we never are convinced that it's the whole truth, and if it is we don't think the beautiful dream will last for long.

Nor will a weekly trip to the hairdresser's suffice for keeping the coiffure in apple pie order seven days a week. In between, you've got to have a session with your hairbrush, not just one or two nights, but every night. Brush and brush until every hair is polished and gleaming, until the scalp tingles and the hair fairly crackles with life. A brilliantine or other hair dressing will help, but it's the brushing that actually puts a healthy shine on the locks.

And you can bet that the beauty whose hair looks exquisitely dressed by day wears at least a few pin curls by night. It's hardly possible, even with the best of permanents, to avoid having to coax a few curls to stay put via occasional resetting. It can only follow that if the hair looks straggly before you retire and you're just too lazy to do anything about it, it's going to look twice as bad the next day. No matter how tired you are at night, give the hair the attention it needs, and you'll start the next day with tresses of which you can be proud.

Mother Goose Book Fills Vital Role for Child

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"When I look back upon my own childhood the book of 'Mother Goose' stands out and, even now, I can recall some of my favorites without recourse to the verses themselves," a mother writes.

"My little daughter is old enough to be interested in them, but I've been wondering whether it is still the thing to teach the 'Mother Goose' rhymes to children. What is your opinion?"

And my reply is: I think they fill a place which no other book for children fills. The reason "Mother Goose" rhymes have lived thru so many generations is because they deserve to do so. If any better collection of verses had come along, it would have superseded them. They hold their own with children because they have such a universal appeal to childhood. There seems to be an undying traditional quality about them, as there is about many other classics for children.

You can't imagine them being out of date any more than you can imagine it of "Red Riding Hood," or the "Sleeping Beauty," or "Cinderella," or the "Three Bears." Time proves whether literature is of the caliber to become classic—and it has proved that of "Mother Goose."

"Mother Goose" is part of our language now, of our literature. "Mother Goose" is a very part of childhood, and as far as education is concerned, no child's is complete without it.

Just try to find a book to substitute for "Mother Goose." You can't. It is rich and vibrant; it is full of variety of subject, vocabulary, and rhythm. Compare some of the rhythms at random. For instance: "Little Miss Muffet," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Jenny Wren," "Cock Robin," "Bo-Peep," and countless others are different as can be.

The rhythm is delightful and the rhymes have another virtue, now that we are analyzing this old friend, for they are full of that valuable thing called vitality; consequently they are free from the fault of being pretty-pretty or sentimental—faults which beset much of the poetry written for children.

At first there will be only a few rhymes children will understand, being very young, for which reason it is a good plan to buy a small "Mother Goose" with only a few selections in it. A little later purchase the full edition. Little by little you will find the children liking this one and then that one, for the book is a veritable mine of interest.

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

(The story of a Chicago hero's escape from German occupied France)

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.)

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

SYNOPSIS: The author enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and won his wings as a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force. On his ninth combat mission, Prosser's Flying Fortress was shot down over France and the crew bailed out. Prosser landed alone in a field, seriously injuring his ankle. As he limped along a forest road, he met two men, Jacques and Marceau, who took him to Marceau's home and furniture making shop where he was hidden in the attic to await the healing of his foot. He met Marceau's mother, Mere Louise; his wife, Renee, and Marcel, who worked in the shop. Marceau arranged, thru his brother-in-law, who worked at the district police station, to get Prosser a false identity card which used his correct name, David, and identified him as a 21 year old electrician. Renee repaired an old black suit coat and lengthened a pair of light blue cotton trousers which Prosser planned to wear over his uniform. He intended trying to reach Spain, first going to Nevers, 135 miles south of Paris. Marceau agreed to take him to Paris and buy his railroad ticket to Nevers.

INSTALMENT X.

At 5 the next morning, which was Sept. 16, Mere Louise shook me.

"David, David, it is time to arise."

Mere Louise had put some coffee and a roll on the table for me. I couldn't have been less hungry, but ate the small breakfast anyway, knowing that I would need it. Marceau also was eating.

Marcel suddenly explained, "David has no hat!" and he rushed over to Jacques, demanded his beret, and gave it to me.

That beret seemed to be part of Jacques. In all the time I was there I had never seen him without it on his head. I felt that I could not take it, but they all said, "You must, few people in Paris go about hatless." So, in fear of being conspicuous, I submitted.

We went out into the courtyard and started climbing into the buggy. Remembering that Mere Louise had kissed me when I arrived, I thought she would do so again, but not being well acquainted with this French custom, I decided to let her take the first step. I hesitated in getting in the buggy, but she made no move, so I decided that she would not. I pulled myself into the buggy and sat down next to Marceau. When I tried to express to Mere Louise the gratitude I felt for all she had done for me, she reached up and embraced me, then Marcel climbed into the buggy and we started on our way, leaving Mere Louise and Jacques waving to us as we disappeared around the bend of the road.

I thought the occasion merited a distribution of American cigarets, but only after a bit of persuasion did Marcel and Marceau consent to take one. Marcel said, "This must be your last for the day because if you smoke an American cigaret in the train French people will smell the smoke and realize it is not a French cigaret."

"Don't worry, David," Marcel comforted me.

When we arrived at the station Marcel and I stayed in the buggy while Marceau went inside to buy the tickets. While we were alone Marcel started to give me some last minute advice on whom to trust and whom to suspect, but he was cut short by Marceau's return. The tickets had been bought, but we had missed one train. The next one was due in 15 minutes. We all went into the station to wait. I leaned against a window in one corner of the waiting room and Marceau and Marcel stood near the door bidding "good morning" to some of their neighbors who took this early train. I did not realize that Marceau would know so many people in the station; it meant that I couldn't take the chance of being seen with him, and would have to follow at his heels. In a few minutes every one made his way to the platform. Marcel came over to me and hurriedly whispered "Bon chance—Au revoir" [Good luck—good-by], and went out of the door.

Marceau started to make his way to the platform with the crowd. I followed and stood fairly near as he talked to three people on the platform. The train soon arrived. I stayed very close to Marceau as he entered with his friends. They took two double seats facing one another, and I sat across the passageway from them.

Soon the people in our carriage began to stand up and gather their things together. We had entered the metropolitan area of Paris, and in a few minutes came to a halt in the Gare du Nord. People left the train and rushed toward the ticket barrier, as any suburban crowd does at a station. Marceau stayed with his friends until after we handed our tickets to the collector at the barrier. Then he made his way to the subway entrance alone. I caught up to him, and he told me to stay right behind him, and said that he would buy the tickets.

At the bottom of the Metro subway stairs there was a long line of German soldiers blocking the entrance. Rather frantically I felt that this was an insurmountable obstacle that barred our way, but Marceau broke right thru the line. I followed, but stumbled over one of the men's rifles and almost stepped on another soldier's foot. Instead of swearing or even hitting me, as I rather expected, he only nodded as I muttered, "Pardon."

We got our tickets and started down some more stairs to the train platform. German soldiers were also lined up in orderly ranks on the staircase and we had to wait in queues next to the soldiers. Most of them appeared to be rather seedy looking, spectacled business men of over 35.

In the train I had to stand next to two German lieutenants. They were exact impersonations of those little caricatures of Berlin banking clerks one sees in language books. One was telling the other about a night club or brothel he had visited the night before. I could not understand much of what he said, but it seemed evident that he liked the French girls. The other said he preferred the German women soldiers who worked somewhere in Paris. My eavesdropping came to an end when Marceau nudged me. "We have to change at the next station." There were no German soldiers in the next train.

This subway line took us right within a few blocks of the Gare de Lyons. The underground exit led us out into a boulevard, on one side of which there was a park and on the other a row of large second Empire buildings.

Soon we turned off on a side street and started up a hill. As we turned, I caught a glimpse of a policeman on the boulevard. There was more than the usual amount of gold braid on his uniform, and I suspected that he was a rather high officer at the gendarmerie. As we went up the hill I looked back and saw that this gendarme had also turned into the side street and to all appearances was following us at a rapid gait.

I told Marceau, but he seemed unconcerned. Nevertheless the policeman was overtaking us. I was beginning to feel rather desperate and could only imagine his demanding my identity card, looking at it doubtfully, and saying solemnly, "Faux—allez" [False, come along]. I tried to walk a little faster, but my foot was so painful that I could not, and it would only have made me more conspicuous. As we reached the next corner, the gendarme was within 10 feet of us. I was terrified and sure that there was no escape. My heart seemed to be clogging my throat and I couldn't swallow, and felt faintly ill. And then we turned up the next street and the gendarme walked straight ahead.

I heaved a great sigh of relief, but Marceau only said, "That is nothing to be afraid of."

Marceau left me near some telephone boxes while he went to buy my ticket. I had given him the money for it the night before, so no one would see me do it at the station and have cause for suspicion. He took a very long time.

Marceau returned and said we must hurry to the train, which was almost full. He rushed over to a newsstand to buy me something to read en route, while I made my way to the ticket barrier. We went thru it together and walked down toward the engine. The rear carriages all had notices on them, "Reserve pour les Allemandes et les Italiennes" [Reserved for Germans and Italians]. They were the first class cars. I did not see any Italians, but there were many Germans, some in the black uniform of the tank corps, others in luftwaffe gray or Wehrmacht green.

Only the first two carriages of the train were left for the French, and they were third class, as were all trains for French people.

Altho we were about half an hour early, every seat in these two coaches was taken, and even the corridors were partially filled. I couldn't have been more disappointed, for standing up all the way to Nevers, a two and a half hour journey, seemed almost impossible on my bad ankle. Altho Marceau was walking fairly near me, we were half-heartedly pretending not to be friends, and we spoke only when necessary, so as I started to climb up the steps into the train we bid one another no long farewell. Marceau mumbled, "Bon chance, David" [Good luck], and I murmured, "Merci, mille fois et au revoir" [A thousand thanks and good-by]. From the vestibule I smiled at him, and then busied myself hunting for a makeshift seat. Some wooden cases next to the W. C. offered marvelous opportunities, but I was afraid that the owner might object, and that my knowledge of French would be insufficient to deal with the resulting situation. I spotted a bar in the passageway between the two carriages which was not large enough for one to sit on completely and comfortably, but at least would have taken some of the weight off one's feet. However, just as I thought I had settled myself on this perch, a man in a blue uniform took a stand only a few feet away. He was not a policeman, but what looked to me even worse, a Fascist party member. The Spanish Fascists had adopted blue uniforms, and I imagined that the French had probably done so, too. So I moved away from this area quickly. Many minutes later I went back into the vestibule just to see if Marceau was still there and smile at him one last time. He had gone—only then I realized how terribly alone I was at that moment.

Seek 78 Cadet Nurse Applicants to Fill Quotas in 5 Schools

An urgent appeal for 78 more qualified young women for cadet nurses to fill spring enrollment vacancies in five Illinois schools of nursing this month was issued yesterday by Miss Mary Elizabeth Falk, state recruitment officer for the United States cadet nurse corps.

Nursing schools at County, Mercy, and St. Joseph's hospitals in Chicago and at Galesburg Cottage and St. John's hospital in Springfield are those in need of additional cadets.

Miss Falk said the need for more students is imperative because of the increased withdrawal of graduate nurses from civilian hospitals. Students provide much of the nursing service in civilian hospitals, she said, thus releasing experienced nurses for jobs in which they are needed. All expense scholarships will be provided accepted applicants thru the United States Public Health Service. Membership in the cadet nurse corps is open to qualified women from 18 thru 35 years of age.

Amherst President Outlines Program to Chicago Alumni

Only by achieving intellectual superiority itself can a college attract intellectually superior students, President Stanley King of Amherst college told its Chicago alumni last night at a dinner in the University club. He spoke on the topic "Amherst Tomorrow."

"It may be assumed that the student body of the future Amherst should be composed of young men of high intellectual ability; we might even dream of a day when Amherst would select as a freshman class of 200 or so from among 2,000 eager and qualified high school students," Dr. King said.

Dr. King touched on all the aspects of this alumni report among which was the suggestion that fraternities be abolished. "My opinion on this is that it is up to the undergraduates to decide," he said.

As to what Amherst would do for returning veterans, Dr. King said that the board of trustees is waiting to find out what the veterans want. Of the 3,000 alumni in service, 1,000 are overseas, he said.

Chicago Girls Take Look at Paris Fashions

BY ANNE BRUYERE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 6.—The most exciting experience two Chicago area nurses, Adrienne Neal, 1833 Seymour av., North Chicago, and Dorothy Carlson, 5822 W. Superior st., had during their 48 hour leave to Paris was seeing Maggy Rouff's new spring fashion parade.

"Upon my arrival in France I became very clothes conscious," said tall, slim, dark haired Dorothy. "Even the poorest French women have the knack of looking elegant by adding a brilliant clip on a dress and a few bright flowers on a hat. They make girls in uniform look very tomboyish. I didn't used to care about clothes back home, but when I return I'm going to dress up."

Both young women liked the tunic length spring jackets and the man sized multihued umbrellas to match ensembles, but they didn't care for the huge sleeves in contrasting colors nor fussy trimmings of glittering brass chains, buckles, and buttons.

The first model shown by Maggy Rouff was "Gymnastic," a red, white, and blue vertically striped suit with bright red initials of the wearer on a large single pocket.

Maggy Rouff also presented a new type jacket styled like a loose box coat. "Je Viens Tout de Suite" is the name of a brown suit with banana beige pin stripes, shown with a matching cylinder shaped bag. Both Chicagoans chose this suit to wear to the Arlington Park races.

New spring formals are made of satin, sheer crepe, and chiffon. The nurses thought "Nattier," a white satin gown with multihued sequins and embroidery from bodice to hips, and "Nuit de Rio," a sophisticated gown in black crepe, revealing curves, and topped with gigantic puffed sleeves of rose colored spangles, were too fussy.

'Twin' Aprons

Mother and daughter, or big and little sister, may have pinafore aprons to match with the use of these two patterns. Both models are identical except in size. There are ruffled "wings" down the sides of the apron top, and bow ties in the back. Style No. 3781 is designed for sizes 2 to 8. Size 4 requires 1⅞ yards of 35 inch fabric. Style No. 2595 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch fabric. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Service Wives Double Use of Baby Aid Plan

The number of wives of service men using the federal emergency maternity and infant care program in Illinois last year was more than double the 1943 total, while the infants receiving care thru the plan increased seven times.

Under the program, which is for men in the fourth to seventh pay grades, exclusively, 10,547 mothers and 316 infants qualified in 1943. Last year, 21,739 mothers and 2,243 infants had attention, records of the state department of public health showed. The health department's over-all report shows that 35,060 mothers and 3,126 children have been authorized to receive hospital and medical care under EMIC from the program's start, Nov. 28, 1842, to last March 1.

EMIC provides 10 days of maternity care in a hospital ward costing up to $8 a day with a flat fee of $50 for the doctor, which includes prenatal and post-natal care. There is also a provision of another $50 fee for major surgery arising from childbirth or circumstances of pregnancy. The maternity plan carries the essential care of the newborn, but an additional $20 is allowed for the care of a sick infant up to one year of age.

A woman wishing to use EMIC gets an application from a health or welfare agency which her doctor signs and sends to Springfield to clear thru the division of maternal and child hygiene of the public health department.

Wives and children of men in the specified pay grades may have the benefits after such men are discharged if application is made prior to date of discharge. In these cases, according to Dr. Roland R. Cross, director of the public health department, "the care authorized by this agency will be continued for the wife until six weeks postpartum and for the infant to its first birthday."

In Illinois, EMIC is administered thru one office which, since last July 1, has been directed by Dr. Henrietta Herbolsheimer.

Cook county has the highest number of EMIC users of any county in the state, with a total of 15,404 mothers and children treated since the plan began and up to last Feb. 1. The 1943 total of maternity and pediatric cases was 4,216, while the 1944 figure was 10,544. In 1943, a total of 4,111 mothers received care, and last year Cook county had 9,748 maternity cases under the plan.

THE QUESTION.

How did you know when you were in love?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. William Herivel, housewife, Red Bank, N. J.—All my life I had visions of a beautiful white wedding. My fiance was in the army and stationed in Washington, D. C., I'd known him many years, and this was the longest time I'd been away from him. When I saw him again I knew I was in love. We had a simple wedding.

Mrs. Marc Maseman, housewife, 830 N. Dearborn st.—When I didn't see him I missed him and when I did see him I was always happy and couldn't think of any one else. He has such pretty eyes. When I found myself actually wanting to be married to some one I was convinced it must be love.

Mrs. Dave Rutter, desk clerk, 51 W. Delaware pl.—If you saw a picture of my husband you wouldn't wonder why I knew I was in love. It was love at first sight. After living in the city all my life I was willing to give up city conveniences to move to the farm because he was a farmer.

Frank Hayes, cook, 6539 Harvard av.—I met my future wife and went out with her a few times. Then she left the city. I couldn't wait for her to return and wrote her a letter asking her to come back right away. I couldn't bear the thought of having her go away again, so I asked her to marry me.

Mrs. Fred Anderson, housewife, 832 N. Dearborn st.—Every time I looked at him my heart beat out thrilling little thumps. I knew I'd never be happy without him. He was constantly on my mind. Every place I went I kept wishing he could be there, too. That, I knew, must be love.

Jerry Holmes, maintenance man, 51 W. Delaware pl.—I was 33 years old before I got married and was sure I wanted to be a bachelor until a charming lady broke down my resistance. She had everything it took to make a house a home. I just couldn't let her get away from me.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 6.—Pan Berman, after his six months' holiday in Florida and New York, has returned to prepare "Sea of Grass," Conrad Richter's story for Metro, which is about New Mexico and its people in the 1890s. . . . Andy Lawler finally found a story he'd like to produce for Twentieth Century. It's called "The Lonely Journal." Imagine Andy, who's never been lonely in his life, having a title like that. . . . Cecil De Mille is paging Betty Hutton for his next picture. . . . Louise Allbritton wants to go to New York for Edmund Goulding's play, but Universal insists that she stay home and make a picture. . . . Bettejane Greer Vallee was tested at R. K. O., and now the studio's looking for an important picture for her. . . . Mary Pickford and Mary Martin won him, not in a raffle but thru good management—Mainbocher, noted designer, who will come out to do for Mary in the picture "One Touch of Venus" what he did for Martin in the play. . . . Gene Raymond got a letter from Charlie Koerner, head of R. K. O., saying, "We're waiting to pick up your contract where we left off, as soon as you're out of the service." But that isn't the way most of our returned soldiers are being treated in Hollywood, let me tell you.

Strange Passage for the Gables.

As Clark Gable was checking out of the Waldorf Towers his former wife, Rhea Gable, was checking in from Houston, Tex. . . . Freddie Lonsdale and Gilbert Miller now speak as they pass by. Lonsdale is houseguesting at the Cheever Cowdin home in Bel Air while writing a new play for Ray Goetz. . . . Kay Francis' picture, "Divorce," called for five divorces in its original script. That's now been cut down to four. . . . The Spencer Tracys are taking a bit of sun at the Arizona Biltmore. . . . Even tho he hasn't got much furniture, Fritz Lang already has moved into his new home on Summit Ridge drive. . . . For those who still want to know what Maggie Sullavan is up to, I can tell you. She's doing absolutely nothing and loves it. She won't have to move out of her Brentwood home until May 1.

A Regular Old Home Week.

Jeanette MacDonald's cocktail party for Colleen Moore and husband, Homer Hargrave, brought out all the newlyweds, with Gloria Swanson looking like Baby Gloria, and her husband, Bill Davey, saying hello to all his many friends here. Diana Fritzmaurice told me her elder daughter will be 16 next week. Norma Shearer wore a gold cross around her neck, so tiny you could scarcely see it. The Nelson Eddys were there, Mrs. Eddy in a gay taffeta turban with green feathers. Ernst Lubitsch greeted Aileen Pringle and husband, James Cain, then turned to greet Gloria, and there were so many old friends with new partners that he said, "It's like walking thru a crystal maze." . . . Ava Gardner, who's been ill with a serious ear infection in New York, tells friends she intends to marry Artie Shaw soon. . . . All of Bob Walker's New York dates, as I said before, were reserved for Florence Pritchett, New York fashion editor.

Yes, They Were There.

Mary Pickford's luncheon at Pickfair for the returned men of the air forces who had been in Nazi prisons, also a few of the boys who had been in Jap prisons, with the girls from the Red Cross driving them there in station wagons, was a charming affair. Those fellows really have some wonderful stories to tell. They've already visited 15 towns and have 6 more to go. The hardest thing they do is to tell a wife, sweetheart, or mother that they did know her man over there but he's no longer alive. But thru these boys I feel certain this country will experience a spiritual upheaval. They all talk of it, and they talk of God—not as a mystical character but as their only friend. . . . Jimmy Bredero will soon be taking his one man show, which means he'll sketch our fellows over in the South Pacific. . . . Don Budge is part of an athletic team soon to be sent overseas to entertain service men.

Coming or Going?

Bill Eythe is not only in a stew but in a quandary. Because of an actress' sickness Bill was brought back here for "Dragonwyck," but when he stood up beside Vincent Price Vincent dwarfed him, so the part was given to Glen Langan. And now Bill can't get reservations back east for another holiday. . . . The town hasn't yet recovered from the sudden shock of Mark Sandrich's death. He was only 44. . . . I hope you didn't miss Bea Lillie on the Hall of Fame radio show. It was the old Lillie plus. . . . Maria Montez makes a quick trip to New York to see Pierre Aumont's parents before they leave for France. . . . Elizabeth Taylor is getting some riding tips from the 15 year old son of the Brazilian air minister, and in return she's teaching him how to jitterbug.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	1 heart	1 spade	2 no trump
Pass	3 clubs	Pass	3 no trump
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of Hearts.

A gambit of a most unusual type is observed in the defense of the hand shown today, in that three tricks are deliberately conceded to the opposition for the purpose of gaining one unit of time. And it proved to be a very sound investment.

The auction was normal in all respects but for the question of the opening bid. Some players with hands of this type prefer to preempt with a call of three diamonds, but I would not undertake to quarrel with an opening bid of one which may turn out to have good strategic value.

The opening lead was somewhat of a lucky stab and yet it was based on a certain amount of logic. East's vigorous bidding indicates great strength in spades and diamonds and surely at least a mild club stopper, it is therefore reasonable to expect that he has no special support for hearts. West made no effort to insist upon his major suit so that it cannot be too well reenforced. North's side values are very likely in hearts, since he made a free bid and from declarer's excitement it can be gathered that the North's spade suit itself is not very robust. From his failure to double it may be inferred that North is not very well prepared for a diamond lead so that a lead in that suit will very likely sacrifice a trick.

South therefore led the jack of hearts which was covered by the king and the ace. The seven of diamonds was returned and the ten went to South's queen. The nine of hearts was continued and declarer refused to cover with the ten. Nevertheless, North overtook with the queen, despite the fact that it established three good heart tricks in the dummy. He continued with the six of diamonds and declarer was helpless. The diamonds were now established and declarer could do no better than run with his eight tricks.

Had North practiced false economy and permitted the nine of hearts to hold, the diamonds could not have been established in time and the ace of clubs would have been extracted from the south hand.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM.

DEVORE NAMED NOTRE DAME'S HEAD COACH

SENN SENIORS BEAT LINDBLOM, 35-32; ENTER FINALS

NORTH SIDERS HOLD 25 TO 13 LEAD AT HALF

Second Semi-Final Game Today.

[OTHER PREP NEWS ON NEXT PAGE.]

Senn High school's Bulldogs advanced to the final round of the City league senior basketball playoffs by defeating Lindblom, 35 to 32, yesterday afternoon before a capacity attendance of 4,000 high school students in the De La Salle gymnasium. It was Senn's 19th straight victory.

South Shore's Tars, defending league champions, today will meet Von Steuben on the same court in the second semi-final contest. The winner will play Senn for the championship and the right to represent the City league in the state tournament in Champaign next week. No date has been set for the City league championship contest, but it is expected that it will be played this week.

Early Lead Sets Record.

In yesterday's contest, the Bulldogs, boasting one of the best all-around offenses in the league, refused to be bothered by the tight Lindblom defense thruout the first half. Senn registered a 25 to 13 lead at the intermission after leading, 7 to 4, at the end of the first quarter.

The 25 point total was more than other league teams had been able o average in complete games against Lindblom.

Starting the third period the Lindblom defense tightened and the Bulldogs were limited to two points in the quarter while Lindblom was scoring 10, making the score 27 to 23 as the period ended. Opening the final period Senn was held scoreless as Lindblom made the score 27 to 25, and then tied it when Guard Bernie Stahurski dropped in a field goal.

Last Chance Is Gone.

Stahurski led the scorers with 19 points. Bob David of Senn paced the victors with nine points.

Coach Tony Maffia of South Shore will send the Tars against Von Steuben today without a single member of the quintet which last season won the City league title and finished third in the state tournament. The squad also will be missing most of the players used when it was ousted in the early rounds of the University of Chicago tournament.

Victors in the south section race, the Tars will be favorites over Von Steuben, which lost only to Senn in the north section.

3 MORE DODGERS SIGN; INCREASE TOTAL TO EIGHT

Brooklyn, N. Y., March 6 (AP).—The signed contracts of three more Brooklyn ball players have reached the Dodgers' office, President Branch Rickey announced today, bringing the club's total to eight.

The latest to agree to terms were Tom Brown, 17 year old shortstop; Second Baseman Ed Stanky, and Mike Sabena, third baseman recently purchased from the Boston Braves. Sabena played for Hartford of the Eastern league and Indianapolis of the American association last season.

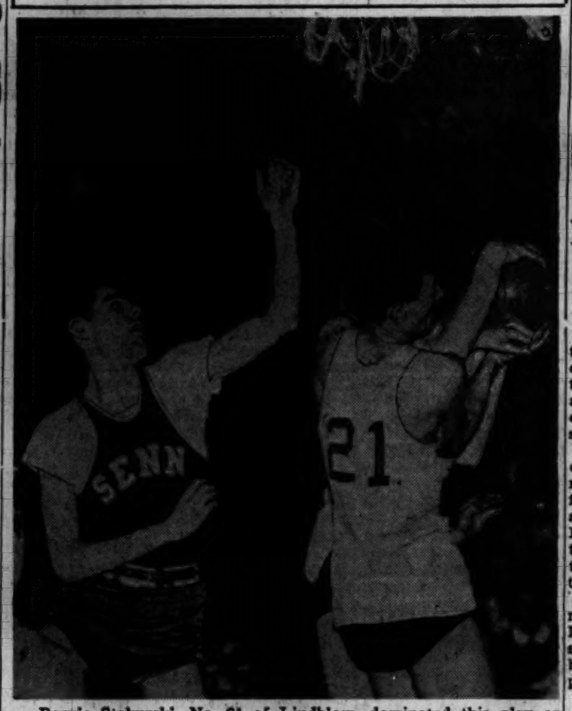
Previously signed were Ray Hayworth, Curt Davis, Luis Olmo, Howie Schultz, and Goodie Rosen.

Rickey also said that Clyde Sukeforth, 43 year old catcher formerly listed as a coach, would return to the active list this season.

GIANTS SIGN FOUR MORE.

New York, March 6 (AP).—The New York Giants today announced they had signed four more players—a full infield—to 1945 contracts, thus raising the team's list of signees to 13. The latest signed are First Baseman Phil Weintraub, Third Baseman Napoleon Reyes, Second Baseman George Hausmann, and Shortstop Roy Nichols.

CHANCE AT THE TITLE IS NEXT



Bernie Stahurski, No. 21 of Lindblom, dominated this play as well as the semi-final game played with Senn yesterday, but the north siders triumphed, 35 to 32, despite the individual prominence of the Lindblom star who scored 19 points. Senn's Bob David was left entirely out of this play.

This candid shot of the cheering student section, taken yesterday at the Senn-Lindblom game in the De La Salle gymnasium, will be duplicated there this afternoon when South Shore, defending senior champion, engages Von Steuben, in the second semi-final contest. The winner will meet Senn for the City league title. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Irish Five Routs Detroit, 87 to 43; Boryla Gets 31

Notre Dame, Ind., March 6 [Special].—Vince Boryla, Notre Dame's 17 year old scoring star, had a big time tonight as Notre Dame closed its basketball season with a 87 to 43 victory over the University of Detroit.

Before the game, Boryla, who will be inducted into the navy on Friday, was elected honorary captain of the team for the 1944-45 season. Then he went out and broke three all-time Irish scoring records. His 31 points for the contest was a new high for a Notre Dame player in a single game and also was a record for the Irish fieldhouse. In addition he ran his season total to 322 points for 20 games, breaking Leo Klier's record of 293, made last season.

Glovers from 11 Cities Seek Four Titles

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

What a treat is in store Friday night for Golden Gloves fans when the featherweightr, the bantams, the lightweights, and the welterweights are called for their semi-final and final battles in the colorfuf windup of The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.'s 18th Tournament of Champions in the Stadium.

In these four weight classes, 16 of the nation's finest amateur boxers, representing 11 cities in the vast Golden Gloves territory, will return for the climactic fights from which will emerge four lads privileged to wear diamond studded golden gloves and compete as members of the Chicago Intercity team against the New York champions in the Stadium on April 4.

They'll Rank with Best.

There will be 24 bouts in all Friday night, 16 semi-final affairs and eight championship engagements in the eight standard weight divisions, from flyweight to heavyweight, the first being scheduled for 8 o'clock in the 112 pound class. Another capacity crowd is expected, the higher priced seats long ago having been taken up, but leaving at this time plenty of reserved space at $1.20.

Getting back to the four weight classes which in the past produced such sterling leather throwers as Leo Rodak and Troy Bellini, featherweights; Ted Kara and Willie Joyce, bantamweights; Henry Rothier and Pete Lello, lightweights, and Danny Farrar and Savior Canadeo, welterweights, there's an excellent chance that a couple of Friday night's battlers will take their places with the Golden Gloves greats.

Papke Boosts Stevehson.

For instance, in the 118 pound division, Fort Worth has well founded faith in the ability of Hector Marquez to make the grade, while Kansas City has reason to be proud of Bob Jarvis, a high school sophomore. Then there are Russell Dungy, the Gary knockout artist, and Sam Patton, a clever puncher from Columbus, O.

CUBS TO LEAVE FOR INDIANA CAMP TONIGHT

16 to Make Trip; 11 Unaccounted For.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Robert Clarendon Lewis, the Cubs' traveling secretary, is going to head out tonight for the club's spring training camp in French Lick, Ind., and nothing is going to stop him even if he has to make the jaunt in solitary grandeur.

Of course, Robert expects to have company. He has made arrangements whereby it will be possible for him to rout from Pullman bunks a total of 16 athletes at Orleans, Ind., at the unhappy hour of 4:25 tomorrow morning, after which there'll be an 18 mile bus ride to the French Lick Springs hotel.

But these are troublesome moments for baseball, so whether Lewis has even a part of his prospective happy family of 16 will not be known until the Monon train pulls out at 9:15 this evening.

11 Still Unaccounted For.

As an indication of the ease with which baseball executives should be able to sprout gray hair, James Gallagher, the Cubs' vice president, who usually doesn't care to be disturbed about questions covering who has or hasn't signed, weakened long enough yesterday to confess that there are 11 men on the 37 player roster from whom he hadn't heard in months.

The fellows presumably received their contracts but failure to reply one way or another doesn't necessarily mean they are unhappy about the wage offers. The players, at least many of them, are up in the air, what with the uncertainties about the 1945 season, so they're just sawing wood. And besides a lot of them appreciate they have the club owners over a barrel so are not concerned about orders, at least not until the opening of the season, which is when the pay starts.

Merullo, Chipman to Be Delayed.

Lewis will keep looking for all 16 of his worthies right up to train time but as early as yesterday afternoon he began to suspect at least some of them were going to give him the slip. Len Merullo was still in the vicinity of Boston yesterday and admitted it might take him a week to get underway. Bob Chipman, the lefty, holds a winter job and can't abandon it until a replacement is found.

Besides Merullo and Chipman, those scheduled to accompany Lewis tonight are Phil Cavarretta, Pete Elko, Paul Erickson, Virgil Garriott, an outfielder from the Los Angeles club, Ed Hanyzewski, George Hennessey, Don Johnson, John Ostrowski, Andy Pafko, Joe Stephenson, Frank Secory, Bill Schuster, Hy Vandenberg and Al Nusser.

The other men on the roster are supposed to go direct to camp from their winter hideouts but just when they'll get there is Manager Charley Grimm's worry. The boss reached camp several days ago so as to train his worry faculties into the proverbial pink.

Dykes Due Tomorrow.

James Dykes, who master minded the White Sox into seventh place last season, will emerge from his winter retirement tomorrow noon, if the train on which he is riding from California abides by its schedule. The Sox will leave for their Terre Haute, Ind., camp at 7:30 p. m. over the C. & E. I. Sunday but the makeup of the party depends entirely on who shows up, the players having been told to go

Luke Johnsos Rejects Rams' Coaching Offer

Luke Johnsos, co-coach of the Chicago Bears, said yesterday he had rejected an offer of $20,000 annually to coach the Cleveland Rams, rival club in the National Football league.

Johnsos, former Northwestern university star end and a player with the Bears from 1928 thru 1936, declared he had turned down an offer by the Rams a year ago. Subsequently, the Rams hired Aldo [Buff] Donelli, former Duquesne university coach, who recently entered military service.

"I have a wife and four children," Johnsos said. "I have no desire to leave Chicago or the home I have established here." Johnsos is employed by a paper company.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago's Blackhawks, striving desperately to gain the last position in the 1944-'45 Stanley cup play-offs, will meet the fifth place New York Rangers in the Chicago Stadium tonight. Hawk officials yesterday indicated that more than 12,000, one of the largest week day crowds of the National Hockey league season, will attend.

The Blackhawks now trail the New Yorkers by one point, or half a game. Tonight's match will be the 10th and last of the regularly scheduled games between the two. The Rangers have won three of the preceding nine, the Chicagoans, two. Four ended in ties. The Hawks defeated New York on the Stadium rink, 8 to 3, on Nov. 1, but were not able to win another game against the Blue Shirts until last Thursday, when they scored a 5 to 3 triumph in Madison Square Garden. The Rangers won here, 3 to 1, on Dec. 20 and 4 to 3 on Jan. 24, in addition to a 6 to 2 decision in New York on Feb. 15.

Four Draws Represent Record.

The four draws between the rivals present one of the most unusual records of the season, no other two foes in the league boasting as many deadlocks against each other. The ties were 4 to 4 in the Stadium on Nov. 23, with 1 to 1, 3 to 3, and 0 to 0 results in three games on the Garden ice on Dec. 10, Dec. 24, and Jan. 7, respectively.

Last night Acting Manager Johnny Gottselig and his Blackhawks derived considerable pleasure over the 5 to 2 defeat dealt the Boston Bruins by the Toronto Maple Leafs. The setback held the Bruins to their present margin of one game over the Hawks and one-half game over the Rangers.

The Blackhawks, who a few days ago were almost entirely out of the playoff picture, which calls for series among the first four teams at the end of the regulation season, have jumped into contention by collecting five league points in their last three games.

Boston, Mass., March 6 (AP).—The Toronto Maple Leafs took the steam out of the Boston Bruins' drive for the fourth and last National Hockey league play-off berth by giving them a 5 to 2 drubbing tonight before 10,000 in Boston Garden. Pivotman Ted Kennedy paced the victors with a pair of unassisted goals.

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—Minor leagues in organized baseball today pledged compliance with the voluntary travel reduction policy recently adopted by the majors.

DEVORE ASSUMES POST RELINQUISHED BY MC KEEVER

He Will Serve Until Leahy Returns.

South Bend, Ind., March 6 [Special].—Hugh John Devore late today was appointed acting football coach and athletic director at the University of Notre Dame, his tenure to continue until the return to civilian life of Lt. Frank Leahy of the navy. The announcement was made by the Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of Notre Dame.

Hugh Devore.

Devore will succeed Ed McKeever, who on Feb. 27 resigned as acting coach and athletic director to become head football coach at Cornell.

Devore, 34, who has been line coach at Notre Dame for two years, was a star end for the Irish in his playing days.

Walsh, Crowe to Remain.

Adam Walsh and Clem Crowe, Father O'Donnell's statement said, who are on leave of absence from other colleges, will continue on the coaching staff. Walsh is detached from his post at Bowdoin college and Crowe from Xavier of Cincinnati. An additional staff member will be appointed. Notre Dame will hold spring practice late this month.

Father O'Donnell's complete statement follows:

"I have appointed Mr. Hugh Devore of the class of 1934 acting director of athletics and head coach of football. He will serve in this dual capacity until Lt. Leahy's return from the Pacific. Messrs. Walsh and Crowe, who are on leave of absence from their respective colleges, will continue in their present positions.

"Appointment of an additional assistant will be announced later. I am sure that this staff will give an excellent account of itself during the war time period.

"I also take this opportunity to wish Mr. McKeever Godspeed in his new field of endeavor."

Native of Newark, N. J.

Devore, who was born in Newark, N. J., was graduated from St. Benedict's prep school in that city in 1930.

He entered Notre Dame in the fall of 1930, playing freshman football and basketball. He soon won recognition as an aggressive lineman in scrimmages against the Irish varsity. Devore became a regular end in 1931 and continued at that position thruout his varsity career. In 1933 he was co-captain with Tom Gorman.

Crowley's Aid at Fordham.

After being graduated in 1934 at Notre Dame, Devore remained on the campus as assistant freshman football coach. In 1935 he began a three-year association with Jimmy Crowley as his line coach at Fordham. Devore left the New York school in the spring of 1938 to become head coach at Providence college. In the spring of 1942 he joined the coaching staff at Holy Cross as aid to Ank Scanlan. There his work as a scout was regarded as a major factor in Holy Cross' spectacular upset victory over Boston college in 1942.

In the spring of 1943 Devore returned to Notre Dame as line coach. He is married and has four children, Hugh Jr., 6; George, 5; Madeline, 3, and Marie, 18 months.

FOUR CHAMPIONS TO DEFEND BIG 10 TRACK CROWNS

Illinois Rated Biggest Threat to Michigan.

Four defending champions will compete Saturday in the 35th annual Western conference indoor track meet at the University of Chicago.

Michigan, defending champion, has two of the four, the Hume twins, Robert and Ross. They won the mile in a dead heat, 4:24.5. Robert will try to repeat in the two mile, which he captured in 9:45.9 last year. Bob Kelley of Illinois will enter the 880, which he won in 1944 in 1:56.9. Ohio State is represented by John V. Schmidt, who took the pole vault at 13 feet 6 inches.

The Hume twins bettered their time in the mile by :06.8 against Great Lakes this year. Ross Willard and Charles Birdsall of Michigan have been doing most of the running at two miles for the Maize and Blue but the time of the Hume twins is better than that of the Willard-Birdsall combination. All four will compete in the two mile.

Schmidt Supreme in Pole Vault.

Kelley's time in the half mile was bettered by Ross Hume in the dual meet at Champaign last Saturday. Ross did the half mile in 1:56.1, but will not compete in the 880 on Saturday.

Schmidt has vaulted two inches over the mark he made in the Maroon fieldhouse last year. He took the pole vault at 13 feet 6 inches but has since recorded 13 feet 8 inches in practice and 13 feet 6½ inches at Bloomington last week. Robert Phelps of Illinois is a contender for Schmidt's crown.

Illinois a Title Threat.

Last year Kelley placed second in the 440; Julian Witherspoon of Michigan took second in the 60 yard dash, John R. Thomas of Ohio State was runner-up in the shotput, and Armin Bauman of Minnesota was second in the high jump. All four are entered in these events Saturday.

Indications point to a battle for the title between Michigan and Illinois. Michigan has entered seven men and Illinois five with experience in last year's meet. Michigan will bring Dick Bernard, Birdsall, Richard Forrestel, Julian Witherspoon, the Hume twins, and George Vetter. Illinois has Marce Gonzalez, Paul Hamer, Robert Kelley, David Nichols, and Robert Phelps.

Monarchs and Primas Head Classic Card

Bill Flesch and his Monarch Beers, if they can maintain their present pace, have a good chance to go into a tie with the Prima Beers for the lead in the Classic Bowling lead tonight when they meet the leaders in a three game series at Garden Recreation, 4047 N. Milwaukee av. The Monarchs are tied with the Keeley Half and Half team for second, three games back of the leaders.

Keeley's face a tough evening with the Washington Shirts, which have taken four out of six previous clashes. In other pairings the Meister Braus, defending champions, now in fourth, will meet the last place DuBouchetts, Congress Arcades face the Sunkist Pie team, and Thompson's Restaurants will battle Chapin and Gore to break their seventh place deadlock. The games will begin at 9 p. m.

OHIO STATE FIVE ACCEPTS BID TO N.C.A.A. TOURNEY

Columbus, O., March 6 (AP).—Coach Harold G. Olsen said tonight that Ohio State university had received and accepted an invitation to compete in the eastern division play-offs of the National Collegiate Athletic association basketball tournament in New York City March 22.

Olsen said the decision was reached by a unanimous vote of the team members and the university athletic board.

The Buckeyes, who won 14 games and lost 4 during the season and finished second in the Western conference, were selected after Iowa, the champion, declined to compete and De Paul accepted a bid to the New York invitational tournament.

This will be Ohio State's third appearance in the N. C. A. A. event. Last year, the Buckeyes lost to Dartmouth in the eastern division finals.

ICE SHOW CAST WILL APPEAR AT HINES HOSPITAL

The cast of "Ice-Capades of 1945," skating revue now playing the Chicago Arena, will present a special floor show without skates at the Hines hospital tomorrow afternoon. Many in the show's cast of 154 will take part in a singing, dancing, and novelty revue developed by the company for presentation at canteens, camps, and military hospitals.

HAWAIIAN STAR TO LEAD OHIO IN SWIMMING MEET

Little Keo Nakama, of Hawaii and Ohio State, will be the spotlight figure in the 35th annual Western conference swimming meet in Northwestern university's Patten pool Saturday.

Nakama leads a Buckeye team that may upset the strongly favored defending champion, Michigan. The Hawaiian distance swimmer is bidding for his fifth and sixth conference titles Saturday and he should win the 220 and 440 events without too much difficulty.

Two years ago as a sophomore Nakama set a 220 record of 2:11.2 and a quarter mile mark of 4:46.4. He repeated his victories in 2:13.0 and 4:52.6 last season. He is N. C. A. A. champion at 440 and 1,500 meters, A. A. U. champion at 400, 800, and 1,500 meters, and holds the world's mile record of 20:29.0.

Buckeye Divers Prominent,

Seventeen year old Seymour Schlanger may figure prominently in the 100 and 220 events to add to the Buckeye total. And a trio of Ohio State divers—Robert Stone, N. C. A. A. runner-up last year; Hobart Billingsley, and Ted Christakos—can dominate the springboard competition.

Purdue figured to be in the title fight until V-12 transfers took away the Boilermakers' three top point men: Henry Ahlquist, free style; Elroy Heidke, breast strike, and Bill Porter, middle distances. Without them the Boilermakers will be pressed to take third place honors.

Two Man Race Envisioned.

One of the most interesting events will be the breast strike race involving Heini Kessler of Michigan and Minnesota's Vern Ojampa. Kessler won the conference last year with a 2:34.3 performance. Ojampa, out of competition last season, has done 2:33.5 this winter while maintaining an undefeated record.

Last year Michigan scored 72 points to win the title. Northwestern had 42 for second, followed by Minnesota with 18, Purdue with 17, and Ohio State with 15.

MORRIS CHOICE OF ALL ON BIG 9 HONOR QUINTET

Four seasoned performers and a brilliant rookie, Northwestern university's Max Morris, who won the only unanimous vote, compose the 1945 All-Western conference basketball team selected by the league coaches for the Associated Press.

Morris, who was the conference scoring champion with 189 points, was named on the first team by the nine coaches who placed only one member of Iowa's championship Hawkeyes, Guard Herb Wilkinson, on the quintet.

Ohio state's runner-up Buckeyes grabbed two berths as Forward Don Grate and Center Arnold Risen repeated from the 1944 all-star five. Another veteran, Walt [Junior] Kirk of third place Illinois, rounded out the mythical team. Kirk, a clever ball-handler who steadied an inexperienced Illinois team, collected all but one of a possible 18 votes.

Redskins Beat Gears to Even Playoff Series

The Sheboygan Redskins defeated the American Gears of Chicago, 49 to 36, in the Coliseum last night to even their play-off series for the western division title in the National Basketball league at 1-all. The Redskins led, 22 to 14, at the half. Monday night the Gears beat the Redskins, 50 to 49, in Sheboygan, and the final play-off game will be played tomorrow night in Sheboygan.

The winner will meet either Fort Wayne or Cleveland in three out of five games for the league title beginning Monday.

The White Liners defeated the None Better Ice Creamers of Chicago, 71 to 26, in the first game at the Coliseum last night. Lineups:

STATE MAY LIFT DEER HUNTING BAN AFTER WAR

Springfield, Ill., March 6 (AP).—If deer continue to multiply in Illinois deer hunting may be legalized after the war for the first time in 42 years.

The state conservation department made the prediction today, saying that it expects the 5,000 deer now in the state to double in number within five to 10 years.

Harold L. Gray, state game superintendent, said tentative plans call for "controled" hunting. Only a few licenses would be issued and only a few deer could be taken under a system as yet undetermined.

11 CITIES VIE FOR FOUR TITLES IN GOLDEN GLOVES

er, William Stevenson, one of the toughest battlers of the year, while another Ohioan, Pvt. Frank Tunstill, carries the hopes of Columbus. Tunstill was runner-up in the 1944 finals in the Stadium. Kansas City will be represented by Jack Darthard, a classy fighting machine, and Virgil Franklin will be in there for Oklahoma City. Franklin was the 1944 National A. A. U. bantamweight champion.

Paige Chicago's Hope.

Two of the best in the lightweight division are Chicago's Bernard Paige, a former sailor, and Roscoe Scally of Los Angeles, who packs a terrific right hand punch. The other two are Bob Crosley of Fort Wayne, Ind., who came to Chicago for the sixth time as Fort Wayne's Tournament of Champions representative, while St. Louis has Curtis Smith, a semi-finalist in the 1944 National A. A. U. tournament.

In the welterweight class are two knockout specialists and a pair of clever counter-punchers. One of the boys with a K. O. record is Lalo Berezzo of Youngstown, O., a member of the Cleveland squad. Lalo learned his way around the ring from Tom Carney, the man who developed the great little Tony Janiro. The other is Gilbert Garcia of the Fort Worth team. Garcia, coached by Jimmy Webb, who at one time was a contender for the light heavyweight title, has won the Houston district championship the last three years.

Great Team Battle Likely.

The other two 147 pounders haven't had much experience, but they looked good in boxing their way into Friday's show. One is Pvt. Robert Wilson of the Sioux City, Ia., team, and the other is Bill Guerry of Columbus.

A great battle for team honors is bound to develop with Kansas City sending five boxers into the semi-finals, Los Angeles four, Chicago, Cleveland, Columbus, and Fort Worth, three each, and Oklahoma City, two. Nine other cities of the original 27 which had representatives in the first three days of the Tournament of Champions, each have one boy left for the climax of the sport's show of shows.

SENATORS TO OPEN DRILL

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—The Washington Senators will lead the major league parade tomorrow by opening spring training.

Within the next 10 days, most other American and National league teams will begin preparations for the game's fourth war time campaign.

As the Senators prepared for their first warmup at nearby College Park, Md., Clark Griffith, 75 year old owner, said:

"We're going to play even if we have to use nine old men. There will be no hesitancy about going ahead."

Tigers Trade Henshaw, Floyd to Buffalo Club

Detroit, Mich., March 6 (AP).—Pitcher Roy Henshaw and Shortstop Leslie Floyd have been traded to the Buffalo Bisons for Catcher Milton Welch and Ed Mierkowicz, an outfielder, the Detroit Tigers announced tonight. Henshaw, who makes his home in Chicago, joined the Tigers late last season. He played with the Chicago Cubs in 1933, went to Los Angeles in 1934, and rejoined the Cubs in 1935, when he won 13 and lost five. In December, 1936, he was traded to Brooklyn, along with Woody English, for Linus Frey, an infielder.

301 TO COMPETE IN BAIT AND FLY CASTING MEET

BY BEN MARKLAND.

A total of 301 fishermen, ranging from 10 year old youngsters entered in the junior event to 70 year old grandparents, will compete in The Chicago Tribune bait and fly casting tournament which opens Saturday night in conjunction with the International Sportsmen's show in the Coliseum.

The club event, for anglers who belong to the nine local casting clubs, drew the highest entry, with 95 competitors listed. The fishermen's contest, for nonclub members, drew 80 entries. This event, to be run in three sessions, opens with 27 of the 80 casters competing in the first contest Saturday night.

26 Husband-Wife Teams.

The husband-wife event, on the schedule for the first time, drew a surprisingly high entry of 26 teams. Several nationally known casters are included in the listing for this event, to be held March 16. Among the favorites will be Mr. and Mrs. Harry McDonald, 601 W. 47th st.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chatt, 7308 Crandon av.; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Garnsey, 4567 Woodlawn av., and Mr. and Mrs. Anton Tomisek, Berwyn. Mrs. McDonald is a national champion, and Howard Chatt and Chester Garnsey both have won national titles.

Thirty-nine boys and girls under 17 entered the junior event, and 31 fly casters will compete in the dry fly contest on the final day of the show—March 18.

Many Sideline Events.

F. W. Kahler, manager of the sportsmen's show, said yesterday that 20 outdoor acts will be included in the floor show twice daily. Among the features will be demonstrations by hunting dogs, expert archers, and log rollers.

ST. PHILIP WINS CATHOLIC SENIOR SECTION CROWN

St. Philip's Gaels won the Catholic league north section senior basketball championship last night by routing St. Patrick, 52 to 35, on the St. Patrick court. St. Philip will meet Leo High school, which last week clinched the south section title, for the Catholic league championship. The date has not been determined.

The victory was St. Philip's 10th in 11 contests and dropped the Shamrocks from a second place tie with Fenwick, who took undisputed possession of the second position by defeating St. George, 47 to 28.

Clear Title Almost in Grasp.

The St. Philip juniors were assured of at least a tie for the north section title as they also won from St. Patrick, 57 to 38, to gain a full game over the idle St. Ignatius five.

The nip and tuck battle for first place in the south section junior race continued as Weber and Leo each was victorious to remain tied for the lead. Weber defeated Loyola, 45 to 30, and Leo routed St. Rita, 52 to 23, to give each team its 10th victory in 11 contests.

May End in a Tie.

Both Weber and Leo will conclude their league season Friday, but there is little likelihood that the deadlock will be broken since the teams will switch last night's opponents. The Red Horde will play St. Rita and the Lions will meet Loyola. St. Rita is in the south section cellar with one victory in 10 games, while Loyola is next to last with two victories in 11 contests.

FEDERAL DATA CONTESTED IN WARD'S BRIEF

Early High Court Hearing Asked.

In asking the Supreme court to issue a writ of certiorari for a direct and immediate review of the decision of Judge Philip L. Sullivan, who held that federal seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co. properties was illegal, the government has omitted some facts and misstated others, Ward's asserted in a brief delivered yesterday to United States Atty. Woll.

Despite this, and despite the company's implied belief that the government lacks legal ground to seek the writ, the company joins with the government in asking the Supreme court to review the case immediately, as the quickest way to get the army out of its stores.

File Brief Today.

The brief will be filed with the Supreme court in Washington, D. C., this morning. It scoffs at the contention in the government's petition that "unless the decision of the District court is reversed the government . . . would stand stripped of power to deal with consequences which might develop into the most serious crisis in the history of the war . . ."

"Since the opinion below expressly affirms the constitutional power of the government to order the settlement of war time labor disputes and to take such steps as the seizure of property to enforce industrial peace," the brief says, "'the government' has in no sense been stripped of its power to deal with any crisis that may arise.

"The petition further asserts that an essential issue in the case is 'whether the case presents a proper application of the war time powers of the congress and President.' Only war time powers of the President acting alone are in issue; those of congress are not questioned.

President's Duties Defined.

"The President of the United States and 'the government' are not synonymous terms. The duty of the President is to exercise command of the armed forces of the nation and to execute the laws which congress has enacted to aid in the prosecution of the war. Except for his authority as a military leader the congress must first legislate before the President can act. It is congress which must decide the extent to which the President may wield the 'war power' inherent in the sovereign United States."

Pointing out that the government petition mentions that Ward's owns three factories, the brief says that the petition fails to state that none of them is covered directly or indirectly by the order of seizure.

Altho asserting that Ward's has consistently refused to abide by directives of the war labor board, the petition fails to point out that Ward's refusal has been based upon its belief that the board's orders violated the law and that the company filed suit to establish the illegality of the orders, the brief comments.

No Violation Claimed.

"Finally, no claim is made that Ward's has violated any law in handling its labor disputes or in refusing to adopt the directives of the war labor board," the brief says.

"The petition and the petitioner's affidavits demonstrate conclusively that the real reason for the seizure was the unwillingness of Ward's to abide by the directives of the war labor board which Ward's believed to be illegal. Since war labor board directives are, as the District court pointed out, 'admittedly only advisory,' Ward's stands before this court deprived of its properties and ousted from its business by force because it refused to accept 'advice' which it regarded as improper and as an infringement of its rights."

Detroit, Mich., March 6 (AP).—The Automobile Manufacturers association today reported in its 1944-'45 yearbook that the industry's 1,000 plants have made approximately 24 billion dollars of aircraft, guns, ammunition, tanks, military vehicles, and other products. Cumulative war orders received since Sept. 1, 1939, have been more than 32 billion.

During 1944 production of aircraft and equipment accounted for 45 per cent of the industry's 9 billion 361 million of output.

Santa Fe Sets Traffic Peaks in War Goods

Freight and passenger traffic of Santa Fe railway last year was carried to new peaks by an increased volume of military traffic, F. G. Gurley, president, told stockholders in his annual report yesterday. Net earnings, as previously reported, declined from 1943.

Movement of military forces continued heavy thruout 1944 altho troop movements were somewhat reduced, Gurley said. War freight volume, however, increased substantially above 1943 levels.

Revenue freight loads totaled 1,986,381 cars, a gain of 9.1 per cent from the preceding year. Revenue ton miles aggregated 37,603,481,000, a 17.7 per cent increase. Including military movements a rise of 7.26 per cent to 6,250,295,000 passenger miles occurred. Gross revenue was $56,961,515, up 12.09 per cent.

Efficiency Is Increased.

Substantial progress was achieved in increasing the efficiency and capacity of the railroad, said Gurley in commenting on property improvement. Principal items in this program were more double track, centralized traffic control, enlargement of yards and terminal facilities, and additional equipment.

The large volume of freight to be moved left almost no margin between demand and supply of cars, he said. Santa Fe's most acute box car problem concerned those needed for grain loading, which requires cars in first class condition. Repair forces worked overtime and Sundays to condition cars.

The net earnings of $54,542,634, or $19.91 a share, compared with 1943 profit of $57,440,364, or $21.11 a share. The decline was largely the result of increased taxes, said Gurley. Taxes last year totaled $158,347,230, equal to $65 per share and more than 10 times dividends paid.

Southern Pacific Sets Record.

Southern Pacific Transportation system in 1944 had the largest volume of traffic in its history, A. T. Mercier, president, said in his annual report. Help shortages remained the principal bottleneck.

Increased expenses, chiefly wages, materials and supplies, and taxes resulted in lowered 1944 profits.

Consolidated net earnings, as previously reported, excluding a Mexican subsidiary, were $41,847,064, or $11.09 a share, compared with $67,133,187, or $17.80 a share, in 1943.

END PETROLEUM RESERVE CORP., SENATOR URGES

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] today introduced legislation to force liquidation of Petroleum Reserve corporation, an RFC subsidiary. Moore said the corporation now "exists in name only" and that "other than the secretary of interior, who desires to be petroleum czar in the new order of American burocracy, I know of no one who defends its existence."

CONTROL CLAIM OF ALLEGHANY IS CHALLENGED

ICC Asked to Hold Rail Rule Illegal.

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—An interstate commerce commission official today recommended that the ICC declare Alleghany corporation, Allan P. Kirby its president, and Robert R. Young, board chairman, to be in illegal control of Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company and its subsidiary roads, the Nickel Plate and Pere Marquette.

In his 60 page report, C. E. Boles, assistant director of the ICC bureau of finance, proposed that the commission order Alleghany and its two officers "to take such action as may be necessary . . . to prevent a continuance" of the alleged violation of the interstate commerce act.

Boles ruled that Alleghany, a holding company, lost control of C. & O. in 1938 and regained it in 1941 and 1942 without ICC approval. An amendment to the law in 1940 requires ICC permission for noncarriers to acquire control over more than two carriers.

Would Solicit Suggestions.

Alleghany has contended it never actually lost control of C. & O. and, therefore, was not subject to the amendment or in violation of law.

Before entering the proposed order, the report suggested that the commission afford Alleghany and its officers an opportunity to make suggestions as to appropriate action to be taken by them to divest Alleghany of control of the railroads.

Alleghany contended that its control of C. & O. was maintained thru Young's influence as a director.

"The mere fact that he [Young] received support of the board is not proof that he dominated it," said the report. "Nor is the fact that he was named a member of the special committee to consider financial matters proof that Alleghany dominated the board thru him.

"Apparently they [Alleghany] take the position that if Alleghany had the power to control Chesapeake and Ohio and the other rail carriers prior to Sept. 18, 1940, the actual exercise of this power at a subsequent date would not result in a violation.

"Distinction Quite Apparent."

"Such narrow construction is neither within the letter nor the spirit of the statute. The mere fact that the word 'control' is to be so construed as to include the 'power to exercise control' does not mean that the two are to be construed as the same thing. The distinction is quite apparent.

Other recommendations on applications considered with the control case were:

1. That C. & O. be authorized to purchase Norfolk Terminal and Transportation company and to assume obligation for $500,000 of Terminal first mortgage bonds.

2. Dismissal of Alleghany's application for an order authorizing its acquisition of control of Norfolk Terminal and Transportation.

EXPORTS LOWER IN JANUARY ON LEND-LEASE DIP

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—Total United Staies exports declined in January because lend-lease exports dropped to 650 million dollars from 683 million in December and an average of 941 million a month in 1944, the census bureau reported today.

Non lend-lease exports totaled 255 million, compared with 250 million in December and a 1944 monthly average of 246 million.

Total exports in January were 905 million. In December they totaled 934 million and the 1944 monthly average was 1 billion 187 million.

Import value in January was 332 million, a slight reduction from the 336 million imports of December. The 1944 monthly average was 326 million.

MINE OPERATORS AND UMW TALK ON THREE ISSUES

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—John L. Lewis and the bituminous coal operators' committee skipped over the 10 cents per ton royalty demand of the United Mine Workers today to discuss three less spectacular ones.

Conference Chairman Ezra Van Horn said the demands discussed today were free explosives and accessories for the miners; making all except one foreman at each mine a "mine worker" and thus eligible for union membership, and elimination of the historic northern and southern differential in some wage rates.

Stock Market Rises to New 7½ Year Peak

New York, March 6 (AP).—Pivotal industrials, led by steels, pushed the stock market to the highest average level in 7½ years today with gains of 1 to 2 points for favorites.

Investment demand, seeking an inflation hedge, inspired the principal bidding. The good war news again lifted shares of companies with good post-war prospects. More pleasing earnings and dividends announcements aided bullish sentiment. Low priced issues, restricted by recent stiffening of margin requirements, moved narrowly.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up 0.3 at 62.6, a peak since Sept. 4, 1937.

Alleghany stocks dropped ½ to 2½ in the wake of an interstate commerce commission examiner's proposed report charging that control of Chesapeake & Ohio and other roads was effected in violation of the interstate commerce act. C. & O. common was off ¼.

RAILS HIGHEST SINCE 1928.

New York, March 6 (AP).—Railroad bonds pushed ahead to new average highs since 1928 in today's market. Other groups were steady but activity was limited.

The Associated Press average of 20 rails advanced 0.2 to 99.8, the highest since the group touched 101.1 on Jan. 6, 1928.

A strong investment and speculative demand for railroad securities coincided with release of several annual reports of large carriers disclosing record tonnage last year and reductions in debt.

CHICAGO PRICES GAIN.

Price gains were extended and turnover rose to 57,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most actively traded issues included Central and South West Utilities, up ¼ to a 1944-'45 peak of 2⅝; Admiral corporation, up ½; Peabody Coal, up ⅝; Commonwealth Edison and Chicago corporation common, both unchanged. Also at new highs were Republic Steel, up 1¼, and United States Steel, up 1⅝.

COMPLETE WELL ON OIL LAND OF HINES LUMBER

The first oil well in a 9,000 acre pooled tract in the new Baxterville field in southern Mississippi, of which Edward Hines Lumber company owns about 3,000 acres, was brought in recently and is producing at an estimated rate of 600 barrels of oil daily, James G. Badger, secretary and treasurer, said yesterday.

Details of the company's oil operations will be included in the annual report to be mailed to stockholders this month, he said. Thru a subsidiary the company owns an undivided half interest in certain mineral rights underlying about 250,000 acres in southern Mississippi, including the 3,000 in the Baxterville field.

The lumber company will receive approximately 17 per cent of the royalty from any production in the pooled acreage. Mississippi authorities estimated reserves in the field are 30,000 barrels an acre, and the company's geologist said the sands underlying the new well will produce about 50,000 barrels an acre.

Wholesale Total Gains 9 Pct. During January

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—Sales of wholesalers in January were 9 per cent larger than dollar volume in January, 1944, the census bureau reported today.

PREDICTS OVERNIGHT CHICAGO TO NEW YORK FREIGHT AFTER WAR

New York, March 6 [Special].—Overnight freight service between Chicago and New York was forecast today for after the war as part of a vast improvement in railway freight and passenger operations made possible thru use of improved roller bearings in locomotives and cars.

H. O. Smith, executive secretary of the Anti-Friction Bearing Manufacturers association, said that roller bearings had proved their superiority and predicted that most freight cars built after the war would be so equipped.

"The post-war period may see a high speed roller bearing equipped freight train leaving New York City in the evening and arriving in Chicago the following morning," he said.

Railway figures show that locomotives have done 75 per cent more work after being equipped with anti-friction bearings.

Chez Paree's Building Sold to Ansco Film

Ansco division of General Aniline and Film corporation yesterday bought the three story building at the southwest corner of Fairbanks ct. and Ontario st., the top floor of which is occupied by the Chez Paree night club. The price was an indicated $150,000. Sherwood Steele, of Ross, Browne & Fleming, was sole broker.

E. Allan Williford, vice president of Ansco in New York, said that the property, containing 80,000 square feet, will be remodeled to care for expanded activities of the company in Chicago. The building will house sales offices now at 433 E. Erie st. and will be used for the processing of 16 mm. color reversible movie film and black and white 16 mm. movie film. It also will have laboratories for the processing of all types of professional and amateur still pictures.

Mike Fritzel, owner of the Chez Paree, said his lease expires Aug. 1 and he expects to move to a new location on the near north side. He has been in the building 14 years.

The Ontario-Fairbanks corporation, Sturm-Bickel company, trustee and fiscal agent, owned the building. It is a steel and concrete fireproof structure built in the 1920's by the Automat corporation as a commissary. Later it was used as a commissary by the Rakiios restaurant chain. The floors below the Chez Paree are now used for warehouse purposes. Milliken & Volfers was attorney for the seller.

HALLICRAFTERS REGISTERS ITS STOCK WITH SEC

A registration statement covering 225,000 shares of common stock was filed with the securities and exchange commission yesterday by the Hallicrafters company, Chicago radionics manufacturer. The company listed 150,000 of the shares as already outstanding and 75,000 shares as new financing.

Directors of the Central Electric and Gas company have authorized the sale of 41,000 shares of common stock to supplement funds available for bond sinking fund requirements and other corporate purposes. The shares will be offered to common stockholders of record March 15 at $2.40 each.

CUT MORTGAGE DEBT ON FARMS 20% IN 5 YEARS

Position Held Good by Reserve Bank.

A 20 per cent reduction in farm mortgage debt thruout the country in the last five years and high incomes have placed farmers in their soundest and most liquid position in recent history, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago said yesterday.

"How well farmers will be able to maintain this improved position will, of course, depend on how well agriculture prospers in the next few years," the bank said. "There will no doubt be occasions when farmers will want to draw on their accumulations in the post-war years, but it appears likely that farmers will give a good account of themselves in managing these savings."

Total Cut to 5¼ Billion.

Farm mortgage debt on Jan. 1, 1945, totaled 5 billion 250 million dollars, a 1 billion 336 million reduction since Jan. 1, 1940. Two-thirds of the decrease occurred during 1943 and 1944.

The total in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district decreased 23 per cent in the five years to an estimated preliminary total of 1 billion 451 million dollars. The reduction of one-third on Illinois farms was the largest in the district, from 419 millions to an estimated 278 millions.

During the last war the 7th district accounted for about one-third of the nation's farm mortgage debt, but had less than 29 per cent last Jan. 1. The Illinois debt, about 6½ per cent of the national total in the earlier period, has ranged from 5½ to 6 per cent in recent years.

"The national total farm mortgage debt reached a peak of 10 billion 786 million dollars as of Jan. 1, 1923, and has shown a continuous decline since," the bank said.

Lending Distribution Shifts.

The heavy entry of the government into farm lending was shown in a graph accompanying the bank's report. Since 1910 the proportion of total farm mortgages held by life insurance companies has increased slightly. The proportion held by commercial banks has decreased, altho to no large extent. Federal land banks and other agencies in the 1930s substantially increased their holdings, with a corresponding decrease for individuals.

A recent study showed that United States farms had total assets of approximately 53 billion dollars on Jan. 1, 1940, said the bank. Farm real estate accounted for 33 billion 600 millions.

Liquid Assets Increased.

"As of Jan. 1, 1944, the farm real estate was estimated to have increased to a value of over 45 billion 500 million dollars, while the value of live stock on farms had nearly doubled and the worth of machinery and equipment was up one-third," it said.

Currency, bank deposits, and war bonds held by farmers increased nearly 8 billions in the four years.

MAY WHEAT UP TO NEW PEAK ON SHORT COVERING

May wheat advanced 1⅛ cents to touch a new peak of $1.71 a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade on aggressive short covering and light offerings. Mills also bought in early trade. The gain was trimmed to ⅞ cent at the close. Deferred deliveries of wheat were dull and finished unchanged to ⅛ cent higher.

Buying of other grains tapered off. Corn futures finished unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Oats were weak, losing ⅛ to ⅜ cent. Rye was ¾ to ⅞ cent lower and barley ⅛ cent lower to 1 cent higher.

With ceiling prices prevailing for cash wheat in leading markets and no quick easing expected in the shortage of box cars to move grain from the country to terminal markets, shorts and hedgers in the May future were put on the defensive.

Chrysler Net Profit Rises to $5.70 a Share

Chrysler corporation net earnings last year rose to $24,819,489, or $5.70 a share, from 1943 profit of $23,322,566, or $5.36 a share, K. T. Keller, president, reported yesterday. Sales increased to $1,098,073,025 from $886,467,702. War materials volume was $1,036,082,839, an increase of $188,370,335. Civilian sales of $61,990,185 included 7,983 trucks for essential civilian needs.

K. T. Keller.

The company's 1944 tax bill was $64,739,794. Net current assets on Dec. 31 were $192,811,343, including $126,727,389 in cash. Expenditures on property, plant, and equipment were $7,468,715, and depreciation and amortization of $10,253,021 were charged to 1944 operations.

Link-Belt Income Dips.

Link-Belt company reported 1944 net income of $3,264,142, or $4.31 a share, compared with $3,312,410, or $4.39 a share, in 1943. Sales rose to a new high of $74,489,004.

Victor Chemical Works, Chicago, had 1944 net profit of $1,056,624, or $1.41 a share, against $1,147,605, or $1.53 a share. Sales rose $370,000 to $14,934,280. August Kochs, president, told stockholders labor, material, and supply costs increased.

Northern Indiana Public Service company net earnings last year decreased to $3,350,281 from $3,878,594 despite record operating revenues of $30,765,022, said Dean H. Mitchell, president. The decrease reflected an increase in tax provisions to $1,068,061 more than in 1943.

Utility's Profit Steady.

Public Service Company of Indiana reported 1944 net profit of $2,874,844, or $1.93 a share, compared with $2,883,219, or $1.93 a share. Output of electricity increased 300 million kilowatt hours.

Coca-Cola company net earnings in 1944 were $23,221,445, or $5.72 a share, compared with $23,726,222, or $5.93 a share. Net earnings for the fourth 1944 quarter were $5,146,688, against $5,639,174 in 1943. Directors declared a dividend of 75 cents a common share.

U. S. INVESTMENT ABROAD IS SET AT 13.3 BILLIONS

New York, March 6 (AP).—American nationals have about 13 billion 350 million dollars invested in foreign countries and foreigners had property valued at 8½ billion blocked in this country in mid 1941, the National Foreign Trade council announced today.

Basing the figures on treasury department testimony at recent congressional appropriations hearings, the council's tabulation was the most exhaustive and detailed of its kind compiled since the start of the war.

Largest American investments of both individuals and corporations were in Europe and amounted to 4 billion 635 million, the council said. Investments in Germany were 1 billion 290 million and in the United Kingdom 1 billion 30 millions. American owned property in Canada and Newfoundland was valued at 4 billion 400 million, and in South America at 1 billion 605 million.

Of the 675 million of American investment in Asia, 90 million was in Japan, 170 million in the Philippines, and 165 million in China and Manchuria.

AUTHORIZE MORE ELECTRIC RANGE OUTPUT FOR 1945

Three more manufacturers yesterday were authorized by the WPB to produce domestic four burner type electric ranges.

The Norge division of Borg-Warner corporation, Effingham, Ill., may produce 1,350 ranges in the first quarter of 1945 and 2,000 in the second. Gibson Refrigerator company, Greenville, Mich., will make 5,000 in the first quarter. Roberts & Mander, Hatboro, Pa., will make 2,000 in the first quarter and 4,000 in the second.

JUDGES ASSAIL ONE-SIDEDNESS OF LABOR LAW

Lack Power to Halt Strike, They Say.

St. Paul, Minn., March 6 [Special].—One-sidedness of the national labor relations act in permitting employes to flaunt national labor relations board decisions while forcing employers to comply with them was criticized by three federal judges in an opinion today.

Sitting in an injunction suit involving three St. Paul breweries, the judges ruled that no legal power existed for the courts to interfere with the right to strike, even tho caused by union dissatisfaction with an NLRB decision.

A temporary injunction issued three weeks ago forbidding the AFL International Teamsters' union from inciting or carrying on a strike against the breweries was dissolved by the court, comprised of District Judges Gunnar H. Norbye, Robert C. Bell, and Matthew M. Joyce.

Lack Power to Legislate.

"We are not unmindful of the apparent harsh consequences of our ruling," the judges said, "but such a result must not be permitted to affect our judgment in applying the law. We do not have the power to legislate in labor disputes. We have only such equity jurisdiction as congress has seen fit to grant."

The judges held that a "labor dispute" existed between the striking union and the breweries even tho the trouble arose thru victory of an independent union in a NLRB supervised collective bargaining election by results of which the breweries have abided.

Since 1903 the AFL Teamsters and Brewery Workers' union have struggled for the right to represent brewery truck drivers in St. Paul. When the AFL national convention in 1941 decided in favor of the Teamsters the Brewery Workers withdrew from the AFL and have remained independent.

Vote 9 to 1 Against Strikers.

Last December the NLRB ordered plant-wide elections to determine which union should represent the drivers. A strike in protest was called by the teamsters. The election Jan. 12 resulted in a 9 to 1 victory for the independent union.

When other AFL workers in the breweries refused to cross teamsters' picket lines, the breweries closed. They obtained the temporary injunction, dissolved today, by contending no legitimate labor dispute existed. Picketing ceased Feb. 12, but only half the drivers returned to work.

Remarking on the "utter absence" of provisions in the national labor relations act to require a union to cease a strike or labor dispute after NLRB has designated another union as bargaining agent, the judges said:

"The employers are bound to comply with orders of the board but employes are free to flaunt the board's decision, and to create the anomalous and often calamitous situation of an employer being caught between the upper and nether millstones."

Settled by virile peoples from the Old World—with limited resources but great courage—farms were wrested from the prairies, towns and cities were built. FEBRUARY PLANE OUTPUT BELOW PAR 4TH MONTH

Lags 3 Pct. Behind WPB Schedule at 6,454.

Washington, D. C., March 6 (AP).—Airplane production fell behind schedule in February for the fourth consecutive month, the war production board reported today.

Production totaled 6,286 planes, 3 per cent below the schedule of 6,454. In January 6,535 planes were accepted. The March schedule calls for 6,937 planes of all types.

Two army and three navy plants fell 227 planes behind schedule, more than the over-all deficit for the month, but several manufacturers exceeded their schedules.

One Superfort Plant Lags.

The WPB said the Ranton-Seattle B-29 factory missed its schedule by "a substantial number" but that much of the deficit was made up by the three other Super Fortress plants.

"The continued failure to meet schedules at Ranton has necessitated a further downward revision in its program," the WPB said. "The reduced schedule will more nearly represent probable output and will avoid the mal-distribution of material that results from the use of unrealistic schedules."

The report did not give production figures for any of the four B-29 plants. The others are Boeing at Wichita, Kas., Martin at Omaha, Neb., and Bell at Marietta, Ga.

The Douglas plant at Tulsa, Okla., which builds the army's new twin engine B-26 Invader, turned out 65 per cent of its month's schedule. The plant's failure was attributed mainly to changes in design.

Corsair Output Down.

The Chance Vought plant at Stratford, Conn., which produces the navy Corsair [F4U] navy fighter, missed its schedule "by a wide margin for the second successive month," the WPB said. Material shortages held up production.

For the first time in many months, the Grumman plant at Beth Page, N. Y., failed to meet its schedule of navy fighters. This was attributed to inability of the Liberty aircraft part plant at Farmingdale, N. Y., to supply tail surfaces.

The Lockheed plant at Burbank, Cal., delivered 40 per cent of its schedule of a navy patrol bomber. Lagging deliveries of subcontracted wings from Goodyear at Phoenix, Ariz., were blamed.

February deliveries by types include:

Bombers, 2,263, or 4.3 per cent below schedule; fighters and naval reconnaissance, 2,873, or 2.3 below schedule; transports, 604, or .6 per cent below schedule; trainers, 207, on schedule; communications and special purpose, 339, or 1.2 below.
